Washington, D. C., April 16—In accents warm with friendly humility President Truman today officially inaugurated his administration by outlining the objectives for which he will strive in an address before a joint session of congress.

He pledged himself to win the war, to support and defend the ideals of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, to hold fast to the unconditional surrender formula, to make no change in the war command, to work for a strong and lasting peace thru world organization, and to punish war criminals.

He closed with an earnest plea to his former congressional colleagues to coöperate with him so that he might complete "one of the greatest tasks ever assigned to a public servant" and with the solemn assertion that he asked only to be "a good and faithful servant of my Lord and my people."

Both Sides Applaud

Both Republicans and Democrats applauded the speech warmly. On every side in both houses of congress the address was praised for the sincerity of the President and the earnestness of his call for teamwork in victory.

In rising before a joint session of congress, which in the last 12 years had been wooed by the mellifluous tones and liquid phrases of his predecessor, Mr. Truman gave the American people their first chance to judge their new chief executive.

He spoke in a plain, simple language that matched his delivery and was devoid of any eastern accent. Each paragraph of the address was on a separate piece of paper and he looked up as he turned the sheets bound in a black folio.

Gets Warm Welcome

The new President was given a warm welcome as he walked briskly and smilingly down the center aisle of the house, where both branches of congress, the cabinet, and members of the Supreme court were arrayed before the speakers' rostrum.

Up in the President's gallery Mrs. Bess Wallace Truman and the Trumans' grown daughter, Mary Margaret, were interested spectators. In the diplomatic gallery was British Foreign Minister Eden. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt did not attend.

As he took his place at the battery of microphones below Speaker Rayburn and Senate President McKellar, who shared the rostrum, the bright newsreel lights flared. In the nervousness of the ordeal, Mr. Truman evidently forgot he was chief executive and plunged into his address, getting as far as "Mr. Speaker" when Rayburn broke in on him in a whisper which carried over the radio networks.

"Just a Moment, Harry"

"Just a moment," the speaker said. "Let me present you, will you, Harry?"

Rayburn then introduced the President of the United States. Mr. Truman did not back track but went on with, "Mr. President, members of congress." He opened with a gracious tribute to his predecessor, getting his first burst of applause when he said we must carry on because President Roosevelt would have wanted us to do so.

The heaviest enthusiasm greeted his announcement that the direction of the war "will remain—unchanged and unhampered." He mentioned Admirals Leahy, King, and Nimitz, and Generals Marshall, Arnold, Eisenhower, and MacArthur.

In this connection it was noted on Capitol hill that he made no promise to keep the civil administration unchanged, which was regarded in many quarters as positive indication that Truman will revamp the cabinet.

Given Rights to Property; No Value Set

New York, April 16 (AP)—The late President Roosevelt in his will filed today bequeathed to his widow the income from a trust fund to be set up from his residuary estate.

Upon her death, half of the remaining principal, with any accumulations, is to be paid equally to his children or to their heirs.

Will Filed in Poughkeepsie

The will, filed in Dutchess county Surrogate's court, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was made public here by John C. Farber of the law firm of O'Connor and Farber, who said in a statement: "No attempt has been made as yet to place any valuation upon the assets of the estate."

Upon the death of Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the late President's mother, on Sept. 7, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt received nine-tenths of her net estate of $1,089,872 and her Hyde Park, N. Y., property.

Last year Mr. Roosevelt conveyed the main house and adjacent grounds of the Hudson valley estate to the federal government, with the provision that Mrs. Roosevelt and their children could live there during their lifetimes.

Widow Has Choice of Goods

The will, executed Nov. 12, 1941, soon after his [illegible] provides that Mrs. Roosevelt have the right to select any personal property she desires. A clause added a limitation that she select the articles within six months after her husband's death.

Mr. Roosevelt directed that his five children each shall have the right to select one-fifth of the remaining personal property. Any not chosen by them will be offered as a gift to the government for display at the Franklin D. Roosevelt library or the main house at Hyde Park.

The late President asked that his family leave "the greater part of the personal property" at the main house for the government "so that the general character of the house be not altered."

Selection for "Personal Use"

The will added that this should not be construed as a restriction on members of the family. Mr. Roosevelt, however, asked his heirs "to select only such articles of personal property" as they "may be in a position to use personally in their own homes."

Mrs. Roosevelt was given the use of and was also charged with the responsibility for keeping property at Campobello Island, New Brunswick, Canada, in repair, and paying all taxes and costs of maintenance. She must notify the trustees within six months of her intention to sell the property.

Mr. Roosevelt directed that a simple stone be erected over the grave of himself and his wife in the garden of the Hyde Park estate.

The 14 page printed will included the following specific bequests:

To St. James's church, Hyde Park, $5,000 for the cemetery fund and for upkeep of the Roosevelt family burial plots.

To the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, all of Mr. Roosevelt's real estate in Meriwether county, Georgia, including his personal property at that place.

To each servant and employe whose salary was paid by Mr. Roosevelt, $100.

Mr. Roosevelt specifically men-

Truman's Mother 'Not Really Glad'

Grandview, Mo., April 16 (AP)—Mrs. Martha E. Truman, 92, mother of the nation's new chief executive, tonight expressed confidence in her son but added with restraint, "I can't really be glad he's President, because I am sorry that President Roosevelt is dead."

"If he'd have been voted in, I'd be out waving a flag, but it doesn't seem right to be very happy or wave any flags now," she said in her first interview since her son became President.

"Harry Will Get Along"

The little white haired lady, who despite her age had waved many a flag for her son in various political campaigns, said confidently that "Harry will get along all right."

Mrs. Truman added proudly: "I knew Harry would be all right after I heard him give his speech this morning. I heard every word of it, but Mary [a daughter] is going to read it all to me again. Every one who heard him talk this morning will know he's sincere and will do what's best."

Stays Close to Radio

She has seldom left the radio since President Roosevelt's death was announced Thursday. Alert and cheerful, Mrs. Truman is conversant with many phases of world affairs.

Mrs. Truman said she hadn't wanted her son to be Vice President. She thought he could do a good job as a senator and chairman of "his committee."

When newsmen took her photograph today she commented that she hoped "Harry gets to see this. He's too busy to come home now."

HIS ONLY REFUGE

ONCE IN A LIFETIME—A HUNGRY MAN ASKS ADVICE ON NEW JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 16—A hungry man rapped on Mrs. Leonard Davis' door last Thursday night, a few hours after President Roosevelt's death. He said he didn't want to put her out any, but he'd like to have a roast beef sandwich.

Well, Mrs. Davis had some roast beef and told the fellow to come in, because he was a neighbor who lived down the hall of her Connecticut av. apartment house.

He looked a bit uneasy, then said his wife and daughter were hungry, too. Mrs. Davis had him return and get them. They were very neighborly. They told Mrs. Davis they'd had an extremely trying day; not a bite to eat since breakfast. And they needed some one to talk to. The man said it was a question of a new job.

The women chatted and the man got to feeling better about his job.

Mrs. Davis knew what neighborliness really meant when her guests had left. It was a night that could have come but once in a lifetime.

PAY INCREASED, PHONE WORKERS VOTE TO STRIKE

New York, April 16 (AP)—Members of two long distance telephone workers' unions, the Long Lines Telephone Workers and the Traffic Employes association, voted overwhelmingly late tonight to strike against a war labor board order for a $3 a week wage increase.

The local telephone workers had demanded increases of $5 a week.

Free Warsaw Army Women Held by Nazis

BLANKENHAIN, Germany, April 16 (AP)—American troops today liberated 350 Polish women fighters—330 of them officers or officer candidates—captured by the Germans in the collapse of Gen. Bor's ill fated revolt in Warsaw last October.

The 89th infantry division released the officer group, ranging in age from 14 years up to a 64 year old feminine captain, from a stockade in the woods near this town, nine miles south of Weimar. The 4th armored division liberated 20 combat riflewomen along with 900 other allied prisoners found in another camp.

Liberators Almost Mobbed

The women soldiers, some dressed in freshly washed pants and shirts borrowed from American prisoners held in the same camp, almost mobbed their liberators. All were bursting with excitement. They estimated that 3,000 fighting Polish women were captured in Warsaw and scattered in camps thruout Germany.

The women said Gen. Bor was held until recently at another camp in this area, but that the Nazis moved him when American forces approached.

Some Shot as Bandits

"Some of us girls were treated as war prisoners and thrown into camps like this," said Pvt. Eva Domaszewicz. "Others were condemned as bandits and shot or put at forced labor."

Just before the Americans burst into their camp the officer group had a brisk skirmish with German women who tried to lower a white surrender flag which the Poles had raised as a signal to the approaching forces.

YANK AND RED FLYERS LINK TACTICAL AIR WAR ACROSS EUROPE

ADVANCED HDQ., U. S. 9TH AIR FORCE, April 16 (AP)—American and Russian planes met and exchanged greetings over the central German battle zone today. Four Lightnings of the 474th fighter group were the American representatives in the first tactical joining of the east and west air battle fronts.

Lt. Charles A. Garver

The Lightning pilots, one of them Lt. Charles A. Garver of 270 S. Western av., Lake Forest, Ill., didn't recognize the Russian planes at first, but when identity was established there was a friendly waggling of wings and maneuvers before the allied planes departed for their respective fields.

The Russians were apparently first to recognize their allies, pilots said, for they suddenly started aerial acrobatics.

3 U. S. ARMIES PUSH WITHIN 85 MILES OF RUSSIANS; LEIPZIG IS OUTFLANKED

Strategic Air War Against Nazis Won: Spaatz

LONDON, April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—At least 845 German planes were destroyed yesterday by allied fighters in a climactic blow against the Nazi air forces.

Last night an observer commented: "The luftwaffe has been knocked out. It still has planes, but the Germans have not the fuel or the pilots to fly what is left of their front line craft. The luftwaffe has been reduced to nothing more than a nuisance value."

Gen. Spaatz, commander of the United States strategic air forces in Europe, comprising the 8th air force in Britain and the 15th air force in Italy, said in a special order of the day:

"The advances of our ground forces have brought to a close the strategic air war waged by the United States strategic air forces. It has been won with a decisiveness becoming increasingly evident as our armies overrun Germany. From now onward our strategic air forces must operate with our tactical air forces in close coöperation with our armies."

Attacks Run Thru Night

More than 6,000 allied planes joined in yesterday's daylight assault on the enemy. The German radio reported the air attacks were being continued thru the night by Russian and British bombers. Berlin had been raided four times in a day.

Nearly 2,000 fighter pilots participated in the record daylight blast, splintering 812 German planes on the ground and shooting 33 others from the sky. Capt. Robert Ammon, Reading, Pa., claimed a new individual record of 11 enemy planes destroyed. The 8th air force reported eight heavy bombers and 34 fighters missing.

Smash 2,953 in 16 Days

The great assault, overshadowing the previous single day's record of 403 planes destroyed, raised to at least 2,953 the number of enemy aircraft wrecked in the first 16 days of April.

Upwards of 40 enemy air fields in the Pilsen-Prague area of Czechoslovakia were strafed.

The British air ministry announced that R. A. F. planes had bombed railway targets on both sides of the German Czechoslovakian border during the night.

HUNGRY BERLIN MOTHERS RIPE FOR REBELLION

[This article was written by a correspondent of the Stockholm Morgontidningen, who has watched the decline of Hitlerism since 1942 and was one of the last two Swedish correspondents in Germany.]

BY OLLE OLLEN
[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press]

STOCKHOLM, April 16 (AP)—Hunger riots were occurring daily in the northern and eastern sections of Berlin when I left the German capital eight days ago.

On the eve of my departure hungry mothers of starving children stormed food shops in the Alexanderplatz and almost lynched an SA [stormtroop] guard who had suggested they economize on their bread rations.

The population is ripe for rebellion but it will be a hunger revolt, not a fight for freedom.

Forgotten What It Is

The Germans have forgotten what freedom is. As long as starvation stays away from their doors there never is any chance of insurrection even tho 90 per cent of the capital's citizens heartily wish for a speedy end to the Nazi hierarchy.

Not even the iron grip of the SS [elite guard] can prevent hungry mothers from storming bakeries or bread wagons which are not provided with a military guard.

A month ago Berlin was an apathetic city, a city like dough not yet in ferment. No machine gun pistols rattled unexpectedly in the streets. No "freedom fighters" tried to accelerate with bombs the inevitable development. There were no great illegal organizations functioning, only weariness and loquacious hopelessness.

Suddenly the situation grew acute a week or so ago. Now only allied columns with field kitchens can prevent a "mothers' hunger rebellion."

Will Fight to Death

It is certain that the Nazis' last bastions will be defended by desperadoes who will fight to postpone their own doom and will not hesitate to use all means to prolong the struggle a few days or weeks.

Hitler still has not turned everything over to his aides, even if Himmler and Propaganda Minister Goebbels are now chiefly responsible for the Nazi leadership.

Gestapo Chief Himmler is more active than ever before and permits himself to be seen oftener. He spends most of his time in his headquarters at Zossen, 22 miles south of Berlin, which is packed with arms and is the nerve center of military activity.

Berlin's dictator, Dr. Goebbels, now lives in his fortress. His beautiful propaganda palace on Wilhelmplatz was destroyed by three direct hits during a Mosquito bomber raid.

Berlin Reports New Elbe Crossing by Simpson's Men

PARIS, April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Three American armies battled possibly 85 miles from Russian lines today, hammering five miles beyond the Elbe river, outflanking the great fortress city of Leipzig, and driving a steel wedge 30 miles [illegible] the enemy's eastern front base of Dresden.

Another American army, Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th, broke into the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg, 90 miles north of Munich. The city is an outer bastion of the Germans' Alpine retreat, where the final shots of the war in Europe may be fired.

[The American broadcasting station in Europe (ABSIE) said last night Nuernberg had been captured. The broadcast was monitored by NBC in New York.]

Troops of the 45th infantry division battled into the Nazi shrine city after a broad encircling movement that brought them up on the northeast.

Rainbow Division in Attack

The 12th and 14th armored divisions and the 3d and 42d [Rainbow] infantry divisions, teamed with the 45th Thunderbirds in a violent assault on the Bavarian metropolis, all but flattened by allied aerial assaults.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's United States 9th army was 52 miles southwest of Berlin after hacking out a foothold five miles beyond the Elbe. Unconfirmed enemy reports said the Americans had forced a new crossing farther north at Havelberg, 45 miles northwest of Berlin and some 85 miles from Russian lines.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army cut loose with a 14 mile tank dash that swept into Wurzen, 12 miles east of Leipzig. An estimated 1,000,000 civilians in Leipzig faced an ordeal of fire and steel because 40,000 German troops are bent on making a Stalingrad of that refugee swollen fifth largest city of the reich. Infantry battled up seven miles south of the city.

85 Miles from Reds

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army, as well as the 1st, was 85 miles from Russian lines and slashing into the rear area of German forces on the eastern front. Both were up to if not across the western boundary of German territory marked for Russian occupation.

The 3d army laid siege to Chemnitz, was seven miles from the border of Czechoslovakia, and shoved a steel fist on northeast of Chemnitz 30 miles from the Elbe and Dresden.

[The Paris radio reported without official confirmation today that American and Russian spearheads had met in the Elbe river valley south of Dresden. The broadcast did not give the source of the report, which said the meeting had taken place between Pirna and Tetschen. The Luxemburg radio said without official confirmation that allied troops had reached the Czech border.]

Attack Dessau Approaches

The 1st army at Wurzen was 28 miles from the Elbe—along which the Germans may make their final stand in central Germany—and was less than two miles from the river farther north as it opened an attack at the approaches to Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin.

With the British and Canadians threatening the north German ports of Bremen, Emden, and Hamburg, and with the allies squeezing enemy pockets in western Holland, the Ruhr and on France's Atlantic coast, German soldiers were giving up by the thousands.

A total of 66,191 prisoners were counted on Sunday, most of them from the Ruhr, where a German panzer lehr [model] division which had fought in Africa and Normandy surrendered.

Launch Bremen Assault

In the north, the British 2d army launched a big assault on Germany's port of Bremen, advancing to within two and a half miles of its southern outskirts. Farther east the British cut loose with a 15 mile surge

The Pied Piper, American Style

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION IN GERMANY, April 15 [Delayed]—Maj. Ernest L. Booch of Quincy, Ill., formally serves as divisional provost marshal. Today, however, he was a combination of truant officer and "Pied Piper" in reverse.

As an anti-Nazi propaganda gesture, Maj. Booch personally delivered 28 teen-age youngsters to six towns near Kronach, from which they had set forth at 3 a. m. last Sunday on orders.

They marched in the direction of the Czechoslovakian border after being told the Americans would kill them if they were caught. But they grew homesick, hungry, and tired, and they slipped away and began the trek home. They were picked up by the 11th armored division troops yesterday.

Mother Is Thankful

The blue uniformed youngsters were loaded in an army truck and taken first to the Kronach town hall, where the burgomaster was informed he was responsible for their behavior. Then, their uniforms removed and burned, they set off for home dressed in the civilian clothes each wore under his uniform.

The first stop delivered two brothers to a humble house on the edge of a tiny town. Their mother and grandmother peered from a window, obviously in fear of us. When Maj. Booch's interpreter told them their sons were home once more, the mother uttered a heartfelt "Danke schoen!" [Thank you!].

Find Another Group

We picked up a group of five other kids, as young as 13, marching to their homes near Coburg, carrying a white flag and accompanied by a mongrel dog. They too had been roused from their beds without warning before dawn Sunday and told to march or else.

Military police guarding the youngsters from Kronach include Pvt. Warren Herbert, 6929 Racine av., Chicago, and Staff Sgt. F. D. Daggett, whose wife, Dorothy, lives in Urbana, Ill.

from its Aller river bridgehead that wound up 40 miles southeast of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city.

The Canadian 1st army won the battle of north Holland by capturing Groningen, a city of 120,015 population, and fanned out all along the North sea coast to within five miles of the port of Emden.

Farther south Canadian armor all but pinned four German divisions against the Zuider Zee with a lightning drive that rolled up northwest of Arnhem to within five miles of the old Dutch water line guarding Utrecht, Rotterdam, and Amsterdam.

Ruhr Battle Near End

The battle of the Ruhr was almost at an end, with 176,000 German troops and three enemy generals already captured. A 1st army officer styled it "the greatest defeat any German army ever suffered on German soil."

Of all the great munitions cities that stud that rich industrial region only Duesseldorf remains in enemy hands.

Another big trap was sprung on the new but ragtag German 11th SS [elite guard] army in the Harz mountains southwest of Berlin. The trap closed when the 1st and 9th armies, the ones which fashioned the Ruhr trap, met four miles north of Koethen, 26 miles southeast of Magdeburg.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army swung up to the Elbe river on a front of more than 100 miles.

A field dispatch reported that the 2d armored [Hell on Wheels] division, which lost one Elbe river bridgehead just south of Magdeburg to a smashing attack on Saturday, had joined the 83d infantry division in deepening to five miles a second bridgehead at Barby to the southeast.

The Americans were about 52 miles southwest of Berlin's Potsdam suburbs after repulsing one small counter-attack.

Preparing to Cross in North

German commentators said the 9th army was "preparing to cross the Elbe at several points" north of Magdeburg. There was no confirmation that the 9th had crossed at Havelberg, which is about 50 miles northeast of Magdeburg.

Hodges' 1st army closed on Leipzig from the west, south, and east. The closest approach was at Zwenkau, less than seven miles south of the city, where the 69th infantry division was engaged by 15 German railroad guns and scores of anti-aircraft guns.

Elements of the 9th armored division were near Stockheim, 11 miles southeast of Leipzig, and infantry was closing in west of the city after crossing the Saale river.

House to house fighting still raged in Halle, the northwestern gateway to Leipzig, 16 miles away.

Third armored division forces, headed for the Elbe river southwest of Berlin, reached Bitterfeld, 16 miles north of Leipzig.

Patton's 3d army, having severed all German north-south roads, was slashing eastward to head off the last means of southward retreat thru Czechoslovakia.

His 6th armored division appeared well on the road to that goal after driving to within 30 miles of Dresden and the Elbe river at an undisclosed point.

City of Hof Captured.

To the southwest the 4th armored division hammered to within two and a half miles northwest of Chemnitz, whose strategic worth as a communications center already has been greatly nullified by the cutting of its highways on the north and south. Other 4th armored troops were three miles west of the city.

Farther south the city of Hof, eight miles from the border of Czechoslovakia, was captured, and other forces were nearing Schwarzenbach, five miles south and seven miles from the frontier.

The 12th armored division of Patch's United States 7th army, swinging 14 miles southeast of fallen Bayreuth, captured Neustadt, center of the Bavarian hops trade about 65 miles west of the big Czech munitions city of Pilsen.

The French 1st army on the 7th army's west flank, advancing as much as 12 miles, captured Offenburg, where stands the monument to Sir Francis Drake for introducing the potato in Europe. Offenburg is 11 miles southeast of Strasbourg. The French were nine miles or less from Stuttgart.

Northwest of Arnhem

Gen. Crerar's Canadian 1st army, winding up the battle of northern Holland, turned swiftly to the battle of western Holland. Swinging 10 miles northwest of Arnhem, armored units were 17 miles east of Utrecht and five miles from the old Dutch Grebbe line, which failed to hold when the Nazis blitzed The Lowlands in 1940. The Germans have formed what they call the 25th army for the defense of Holland and Rotterdam.

The British "Iron Third" division, which fought at Dunkerque and was one of the first British outfits ashore on D-day, had opened the battle of Bremen on Saturday. Resistance dissolved until the British reached Brinkom, two and a half miles from the southern fringes of the port.

The 7th armored ["Desert Rats"] division, which led the original drive on Bremen, was revealed to have been shifted to the east and it yesterday raced out of the Aller bridgehead, capturing the highway center of Walsrode, about 48 miles southwest of Hamburg. Pushing five miles east, the 7th armored then liberated 6,500 British and American prisoners of war at Fallingbostel.

HELL ON WHEELS BOYS SHARE RIDE BACK WITH NAZIS

Captives Accompany Them Across Elbe

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 2D ARMORED DIVISION AT THE ELBE RIVER, Germany, April 16—Veterans of the 2d armored [Hell on Wheels] division today were welcoming back their comrades who swam or rowed back across the Elbe from their shattered bridgehead to rejoin their units. Many brought back prisoners who willingly paddled over to get out of the war and escape the pistol-enforced commands of their Nazi officers.

The bridgehead was abandoned in the face of strong German blows and the inability of our tactical air force to push up its bases fast enough to provide air cover. The bridgehead defenders also were handicapped when their ammunition ran low after supply lines were overextended by their race of more than 200 miles across the heart of Germany from the Rhine to the Elbe river in 19 days.

"A Bitter Disappointment"

Maj. John Smothers, Princeton, Ind., said: "It was a bitter disappointment, and, as usual, the infantry blames the aviation and artillery, altho I suppose they are facing a terrific job of getting field guns and ammunition forward along such lengthy supply lines."

Pvt. William Bergemann, 5004 N. Kildare av., Chicago, said: "I'm glad to get a chance to tell my mother [Mrs. Katherine Bergemann] I got back safe, but I'm sorry we're not on our way to Berlin."

Sgt. Frank Korte, 1001 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park, Ill., said: "I bet Hitler threw everything he had left at us. If we could have got forward a little way to take the direct fire off that bridge site, we would have made the bridgehead stick, and maybe be in Berlin by now."

After They Take Berlin

Get Along Home is the name of a tank driven by Sgt. Vernon Irvin, Indianapolis, Ind. "And that's just what we want to do after we take Berlin," he said.

Corp. Fred Wilkes of Dugger, Ind., asked why his tank was named "Gaiter," explained: "Our tank commander is from Florida and we named it after the alligators they have there."

Churchill Cabinet Stands By Awaiting Big German News

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 16—The Churchill war cabinet today was reported in almost continuous session in anticipation of big news from Germany as Britain intensified preparations for V-E-day celebrations. Ministers have been told to stay within easy reach of Downing street, it was said, even when the cabinet is not sitting so they can assemble immediately for important decisions needed.

British coal miners today staked a claim to a bumper victory day by asking mine owners for a week paid holiday when Germany's defeat is announced. The coal owners' reply is expected by Wednesday. The miners consider a government proposal for a two day holiday insufficient.

Railroad workers in various parts of the country, including London, desire two V-E-day days off, the same as other workers and object to working on either day even for extra pay. Union official disapprove of their demand.

MADRID NAZIS WAITING
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The French Press agency, in a wireless dispatch dated Madrid and heard by FCC monitors, said that the German embassy in the Spanish capital had expected German capitulation yesterday.

The dispatch added that in Barcelona the personnel of the German consulate had "remained on the premises the whole day awaiting events."

Ike Sees Delay

AN ADVANCED COMMAND POST, April 16 (AP)—The war in Europe probably will not end until allied troops have occupied Germany completely, Gen. Eisenhower told a group of visiting United States radio correspondents today. The general said he did not believe there ever would be a formal German surrender.

"Nazi units, including divisions, corps, armies, and finally army groups will give up separately as they exhaust their ammunition and gasoline, or find themselves hopelessly trapped by allied encirclement," he said.

"But there will be no announcement of V-E day until all important enemy pockets on the western front have been wiped out."

Peace April 28, Prisoners Say

CREDLINGEN, Germany, April 16 (AP)—German prisoners taken at scattered points along the United States 7th army's front in this vicinity today said the German army was filled with rumors that Nazi troops would lay down their arms April 23.

Nazi Troops Led to Water; Balk at Sailing Home

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—The German high command has been compelled to use force to make troops embark at Norwegian ports for the hazardous sea voyage to Germany as a result of "almost inevitable" allied air attacks on enemy troop ships, the Norwegian Telegraph agency said today. The agency said the allied strafing and bombing had resulted in frequent troop mutiny or near-mutiny on the ships.

Monkey Snubs Luzon G. I. but Leaps Into Jap's Arms

DIVISION COMMAND POST, Luzon, P. I., April 15 (AP)—Pvt. Dalas R. Haycox, Fort Wayne, Ind., and two comrades at an outpost for the 43d division east of Manila saw a monkey in a tree and tried to catch it. The monkey evaded them, but when a Japanese stepped out of the dense foliage the monkey leaped into his arms. The Jap ran before the Yanks could reach their weapons.

4 RED ARMIES MOVE ON BERLIN, GERMANS SAY

LONDON, April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—The Germans reported today that soviet parachutists landed behind German lines less than 23 miles from Berlin yesterday even as Adolf Hitler was demanding a defensive death stand against what he called the "last massed" Russian offensive against the Nazi capital.

The Red army air borne troops dropped in Berlin's defense ring somewhere between the city's eastern limits and heights won by the Red army 23 miles to the east, a Berlin radio commentator said, as German reports indicated that four Russian armies totalling perhaps 2,000,000 men were on the move.

Late German broadcasts asserted the parachutists had oeen wiped out. At the same time the enemy said that soviet assault waves tore a deep breach in enemy lines on both sides of Frankfurt on the Oder, 33 miles east of Berlin.

120 Mile Front Ablaze

The offensive burst at 3:50 a. m. yesterday, the German high command announced, and drove forward along a blazing 120 mile front at two points 85 miles from the American 3d and 9th armies. Berlin conceded a rapid link-up was possible.

Hitler commanded east front soldiers to "drown the bolshevik assault in a blood bath" and hinted darkly at German treachery, warning his soldiers to watch for German officers who might give retreat orders. Those giving such orders must be shot at once, he ordered.

One thousand Russian guns thundered thruout the day in Berlin, the enemy admitted. Soviet assault units battled into massive, reinforced fortifications under cover of hundreds of planes bombing and machine-gunning German positions on Berlin's eastern approaches.

New Footholds Won

All along the front, Red army engineers were speeding amphibious tanks and armored units into bridgeheads across the Oder and Neisse rivers which were being built up hourly. At least two new footholds across the Oder were reported—the latest at the river's elbow east of Eberswalde.

In the Austrian Alps, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Ukrainian army battered thru 1,100 foot hills to within 29 miles east of Austria's second city of Graz. Other spearheads battered thru the Danube valley to a point 59 miles east of Linz.

Farther north, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian army ripped a 12 mile breakthru in southern Moravia and plunged within 18 miles southeast of the Czechoslovak war production city of Bruenn [Brno].

Drive from 3 Points

The attacks on Berlin were coming from these directions:

1. Frontally, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian army was striking from bridgeheads across the Oder east and northeast of Berlin, on a 37 mile front from the Oder-Neisse river confluence near Fuerstenberg, 43 miles southeast of Berlin, to Wriezen, 23 miles northeast.

2. North of the central sector, the 2d and 3d White Russian armies of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky and Alexander M. Vasilevsky were reported tearing up communications between Berlin and the Baltic port of Stettin.

3. Southeast of Berlin, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian army was reported striking west from new bridgeheads across the Neisse river within 50 miles northeast of Dresden for a linkup south of Berlin with the American 3d army 85 miles away.

RUSSIA INSISTS LUBLIN REGIME ATTEND PARLEY

Jolts Earlier Hopes of Agreement

Washington, D. C., April 16 [Special]—Hopes built up today in diplomatic circles that Dictator Stalin would consent to formation of a more democratic and more representative Polish government than the Lublin [Warsaw] regime as a prelude to the allies' San Francisco security conference were shattered tonight by a broadcast from Moscow.

Stalin has yielded to the plea that he send Foreign Minister Molotov to San Francisco, but that, Washington officials were informed tonight, is as far as he intends to go in making concessions to the allies.

Insists on Lubin Delegates

The broadcast tonight from Moscow, seen here as upsetting conjectures about Stalin's position, said the Russian government continues to insist on the necessity of participation by the Polish provisional government in Warsaw in the allied parley.

This came in the face of repeated statements from London and Washington that until the Polish provisional government is reorganized it is impossible to invite its representatives to the conference. For weeks the London Polish regime and the Lublin regime backed by Moscow, have sought the allies' invitation.

Time Right to Insist

Observers here believed that Stalin, having agreed to send Molotov as Russia's representative after previously naming a less important official, Ambassador Gromyko, because President Truman asked it, now was maneuvering to gain acceptance of a Polish regime preponderantly Communist in makeup.

It was believed Stalin considered the time ripe to insist on the Lublin setup without change.

Earlier information available in Washington had indicated Stalin was prepared to permit participation of all four of Poland's old political parties in a new government. The cabinet would contain 20 members, in which members of the London government in exile as well as elements midway between the London and Lublin government groups would take part. The Communists would have only four members in the cabinet, the reports said.

Washington had been encouraged to believe Stalin was having a change of heart by yesterday's statement of former Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk announcing acceptance of the Yalta conference decisions on Poland, which hinted a coalition might not be out of the question. The Yalta conference agreed to hand over a portion of eastern Poland to Russia.

In diplomatic circles tonight it was believed Stalin would continue to demand that an unchanged Lublin government be represented at the San Francisco parley which will open April 25.

Molotov to See Truman

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov will visit President Truman at the White House en route to the San Francisco world security conference, the Moscow radio said today. Premier Stalin's decision to send Molotov to San Francisco was said to have been a direct result of Truman's invitation.

YANKS HAVE AN EXTRA REASON TO FREE CZECHS

WITH THE U. S. 90TH INFANTRY NEAR CZECHOSLOVAKIA, April 16 (AP)—Doughboys of this division are looking forward to the liberation of Czechoslovakia, now less than eight miles away, for two reasons:

They want to tear the German yoke from the necks of the Czechs, and the rule against fraternizing with civilians would not apply in friendly Czechoslovakia.

HOW NORTH SIDE PHYSICIAN FLED NAZI HELL-HOLE

Remains with Wounded and Saves Own Life

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 15 [Delayed]—Maj. Charles A. Serbst, 1557 Olive av., Chicago, was commander of a surgical unit at Wiltz, Luxemburg, southeast of Bastogne, Belgium, when that town was overrun by the Germans last Dec. 20 in the Ardennes breakthru. He had refused to abandon several American soldiers on whom he had just operated and by that decision probably saved his life. Those who tried to get out were caught in enemy cross fire and most were killed. Serbst's wife is chief surgical nurse at the Edgewater hospital, Chicago.

Serbst was taken prisoner. His story from then on, until he and three other American officers escaped March 27 from the Hammelburg oflag [prisoner of war camp for officers] near Wuerzburg, is a harrowing tale of forced marches and suffering from hunger, cold and of cramped, filthy quarters.

Expect to Go Home.

Serbst and his companions in escape told the story today at the base hospital here, in which they are recovering from their experience. Besides Serbst, they are Maj. Robert C. Christensen, Davenport, Ia., of the 28th division, who was captured Nov. 9 in the Hurtgen forest, Maj. William H. Saunders, Lexington, Ky., of the armored infantry attached to the 9th armored division, who was captured in the vicinity of Houffalize, Belgium, Dec. 19, and Maj. Henry L. Fisher, Holyoke, Mass., one of the few survivors of the 106th division, whose regiment, the 422d, was almost wiped out early in the Ardennes fighting.

All seemed to have borne up well and expected to be on the way home physically fit shortly.

By Dec. 28 Lt. Gen. Patton's counter-offensive had increased to such intensity and his artillery was shelling Wiltz so heavily that the Germans decided to transfer their prisoners.

Serbst reached Hammelburg Feb. 1. There the prisoners were quartered in regular army barracks, 40 to a room. They slept in the usual three decker bunks on straw. They were issued two cotton blankets. There was a stove in each barracks, but only enough coal for a half hour's fire daily. There were two latrines for 1,400 officers.

Tell of "Green Peril"

The day began at 8 a. m. with breakfast of ersatz coffee without sugar or milk. Shaving was with a community razor. Luncheon consisted of vegetable soup and potatoes and what the officers called "the green peril," a sort of dehydrated grass which, they all swore, contained live worms. Supper consisted of soup, turnips, and potatoes. On Thursdays and Sundays there was a quarter of horse meat for the 1,400 prisoners.

"At 4 p. m. on March 27 the Hammelburg camp received artillery fire from American tanks, and a Serbian general [a prisoner] requested that we contact the Americans inasmuch as a number of Serbian officers had been killed," Serbst continued.

"This was done—Lt. Col. John Watters, a son-in-law of Lt. Gen. Patton, who was a prisoner, carrying our flag and others carrying white flags and accompanied by a German officer, hurried toward the tanks. The artillery fire had torn large holes in the wire fences. Fourteen hundred Americans and 4,000 Serbs broke out of the camp. We were stopped, however, by a road block."

Helped by German

"For the first four days we had no sun and were guided mostly by the sounds of battle, which we presumed to be in the west," Serbst said. "Rifle shots in the woods caused us to make many detours. At night we slept on the ground in the woods. Our food was consumed by April 1, but that day we found a pile of potatoes and filled our pockets. Later we found some beets. We ate them raw.

"By the fourth we were so desperate for food that we decided to go into a village. We saw German soldiers 400 yards away, but they paid no attention to us. We decided to do a hobo act, and, finally, we saw a man in the yard of a house and spoke to him. He signaled to us to come in. He asked, 'Amerikaner?' We said, 'Yes.' 'Hammelburg?' 'Yes.' He called members of the house. He served us hot soup, fried potatoes and meat."

The farmer gave them a place to sleep in his barn. They stayed there until April 6, when American troops came thru the neighborhood.

Nuts and Clocks

Postmaster Ernest Kruetgen inspects alarm clocks to be auctioned.

Nylons and cigarets are missing from the list of unclaimed articles which will be sold at auction today and tomorrow at the main postoffice, but there will be grass skirts and coconuts from the South Pacific, ivory from India, and hundreds of other trinkets men in service have sent home for souvenirs.

Parcels that have been improperly addressed and packages which have broken open and contents scattered make up most of the G. I. merchandise. The postal authorities make a definite effort to trace the ownership of such articles and after a year offer the accumulation for sale, Ernest J. Kruetgen, postmaster, said.

Included in the list of scarce items are towels, sheets, camera films, table radio sets, auto parts, and metal fixtures. Yesterday the baby clothes on display with the other merchandise received the envious glance of several prospective bidders. Some shoes are also included and ration coupons will be required, Kruetgen said. The auction will be held on the ninth floor of the postoffice, Canal and Van Buren sts., from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. today and from 8:30 a. m. until all articles are sold tomorrow.

CONCENTRATION CAMP OF 21,000 FREED BY YANKS

WEIMAR, Germany, April 16 (AP)—Twenty-one thousand miserable men were wasting away, hundreds too far gone to be saved, when the United States 80th division cracked open the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp.

In the first 24 hours of American administration, more than 150 inmates died of malnutrition and disease, and another 38 succumbed in the next six hours.

It is estimated conservatively that tens of thousands have died in Buchenwald. Buchenwald's capacity was estimated at 80,000, and inmates said 20,000 to 30,000 men had been moved eastward afoot as the Americans approached.

Ration Increased

About all the small American administration staff could do in the first few hours was to increase the soup ration, add meat and vegetables to it, and release five interned doctors to go to work.

In barracks 61, 12 naked bodies were loaded onto hand trucks, then transferred to a truck collecting corpses for the journey to the six burner crematorium. Barracks 61 of the hospital section has two rows of four tier shelves, divided at 5½ foot intervals into cubbyholes, with a central gangway between the two rows. Patients were thrust in feet first.

Captured Flyers Killed

WITH THE U. S. 4TH ARMORED DIVISION IN GERMANY, April 16 (AP)—A liberated British prisoner of war said today German civilians had killed two captured American airmen, one by lynching and the other by kicking him as he lay wounded.

"One American airman was lynched and left hanging to a lamp post in Chemnitz," said the Briton, a medical lieutenant colonel captured in Greece in 1941 who had been in charge of a hospital prison camp overrun by the 4th armored division.

"Another airman was kicked to death in the Chemnitz railroad station," the colonel added. "We will produce eyewitnesses of these atrocities for the war crimes investigation committee."

100 Americans in Hospital

This hospital camp is shared by 900 allied soldiers, including 100 Americans. Men in one ward hobbled about on stumps where feet used to be. They were victims of frostbite caused by bailing out at high altitudes or by winter marches with nothing but bread crusts to eat.

Outside, clustered about a garbage bin, was a group of Russians, many with legs or arms gone, ravenously licking the insides of empty C ration cans.

INVADED LANDS SUFFER SPREAD OF DIPHTHERIA

Washington, D. C., April 16 [Special]—Nazi armies carried diphtheria with them to all parts of invaded Europe where the disease has now "broken all bounds," the bulletin of the united nations' relief and rehabilitation administration's health division said today.

Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium, northern France, and Czechoslovakia have especially suffered from the epidemic. Only Great Britain and Hungary, where immunization was pushed to the limit, escaped the scourge.

In Norway, according to the report, there had been only 17 cases in the last six months before invasion. Since then there have been 50,000 cases in Norway and about 150,000 in the Netherlands where death from diphtheria now runs barely behind the mortality from tuberculosis. In Germany which had 49,000 cases in 1927, there were 238,000 cases in 1943.

Negotiations for Exchange of Belgian King Collapse

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 16 (AP)—The Brussels newspaper Laatste Nieuws said today that negotiations had fallen thru to free the interned Belgian king, Leopold, and some French political leaders in exchange for Nazi chiefs who have sought refuge in Swiss territory. The newspaper said the negotiations were undertaken by the Swiss government.

FINAL ARGUMENT IN CHAPLIN CASE HEARD BY JURY

Los Angeles, April 16 (AP)—Attorneys completed final arguments and the court read part of its instructions today preparatory to submitting Joan Berry's paternity suit against Charlie Chaplin to a jury tomorrow.

Joseph Scott, attorney for the comedian's 24 year old former protegee, told the jury in closing rebuttal that "this case will have repercussions heard around the world."

Atty. Charles E. Millikan, defending Chaplin against Miss Berry's contention that he fathered her 18 month old daughter, Carol Ann, said she "dreamed up" her story of an intimacy with him.

"Don't feel that sin in Hollywood will be ended if Chaplin is declared the father of this child," Millikan pleaded. First trial of the suit ended last January with the jury deadlocked at seven to five in Chaplin's favor.

At least one Chicago war worker has a war bond he'll never cash in. He is Martin E. Rook, 25, of 1002 E. 41st pl., who last night bared his chest while Paul Hensen, a tattoo artist, put a $25 war bond on it in tasteful black and red. The bond is made out in Rook's name. There was no co-owner.

The tattooing took place at a dinner of the Cook county special events committee at the Colony club, 744 N. McKiernan presided, assisted by Les Lear, chief master of ceremonies for the committee.

MEDIC PRAISES WOUNDED G.I.'S SENSE OF HUMOR

The greatest person in the world is the wounded American fighting man with his unfailing sense of humor, Col. Leo P. A. Sweeney, 45, of 9715 Winston av., said yesterday. The colonel, an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist in Chicago before entering the army four years ago, was chief surgeon for the peninsular base section of the army, with headquarters in Naples, Italy, before he returned home Sunday for a period of detached service.

Col. Leo Sweeney

Next in Col. Sweeney's regard are the army nurses. "Those women do a grand job," he said, "and there aren't enough of them." He also paid tribute to his wife, Elaine. "The women at home have a weary time," he declared, "and my wife has done wonderfully, caring for our three children and doing volunteer war work." The Sweeney children are Lee, 17, James, 14, and Lois, 12.

Col. Sweeney has two bronze stars for campaigns at Naples and Anzio. He also wears a ribbon signifying the order of the crown of Italy, which he received for service to Italian civilians and military personnel.

OFFICERS FROM MIDWEST FREED IN GERMAN CAMP

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BRUNSWICK, Germany, April 15 [Delayed] — This Tribune correspondent today visited 60 American prisoners of war at the German officers' camp No. 79, four miles outside of Brunswick, where 2,500 British officers also had been in captivity. We gave them cigarets, candy bars, and news of Roosevelt's death and the progress of the war.

Lt. K. A. Lund

Sgt. Billy McCleary, East Grand Forks, Minn., was among the first Yanks to enter Brunswick. He learned of the Americans imprisoned in Oflag 79 and drove his jeep, mounted with a machine gun and a wire cutter prong, thru the barbed wire gateway and liberated the captives as Nazi guards fled before fire from the machine gun.

The imprisoned men lost on an average of 12 pounds in weight from the insufficient diet the Germans gave them. They had received no letters, no packages and no Red Cross food packets, and little food from their British comrades' meager packages.

Britons Fare Better

"It burned us up to see the 'limeys' eating American food sent from the United States for prisoners of war when we had none," a lieutenant said, "but they had been prisoners a year and the authorities had their names and addresses. We were captured recently and the Germans had never bothered to inform the International Red Cross at Geneva about us."

Some younger officers seemed on the verge of tears at the prospects of THE TRIBUNE informing their parents, wives, and sweethearts that they are alive. Several throttled their emotions as they gave their home addresses, saying their girl friends or wives would surely read them.

I found officers boiling potatoes and cabbage they had dug from near-by fields.

Most of the men were aviators who had been shot down while bombing Berlin or captured in the Ardennes and in the first abortive attempt to cross the Roer river last December. Altho lean and wearing dirty, unpressed uniforms and soiled shirts from lack of soap, the men appeared in excellent physical condition.

Midwesterners Released

Among the freed Americans were Lieutenants Robert Hakala, Sioux City, Ia., captured at Bitche on Jan. 2; Donald Reichle, Milwaukee, Wis., shot down raiding Berlin on March 18; Edwin Grant, Gary, Ind., 99th division, captured in the Ardennes on Dec. 16, and K. A. Lund, 4157 N. Bell av., Chicago, aviator shot down over Berlin March 8.

TRIBUNE BRINGS GOOD NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben A. Lund, 4157 N. Bell av., had had no news of their son, 1st Lt. Kenneth A. Lund, 22, since he was reported missing in action March 23, until they were informed by THE TRIBUNE yesterday of his liberation.

"That's the best news of our lives," said Lund.

Lt. Lund graduated at Lane Technical High school. A brother, Wilbur G. Lund, 19, is a naval aviation cadet at San Antonio, Tex.

Hundreds of Yanks Fell to Leaders' Ambition

Sleeper for Ike

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—An English railway sleeping car has been converted into an armored coach for Gen. Eisenhower and is now on the continent for his use. The car contains a conference room and a combined dressing and sleeping compartment. The roof, sides, and ends are armor plated and the windows, of bulletproof glass, have steel shutters.

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BRUNSWICK, Germany, April 16—At 6 o'clock the morning of Nov. 11, 1918, Marshal Foch and German Gen. Winterfeld signed an armistice agreement in a railway car in the Rethondes forest outside Compiegne, France—the identical car in which Adolf Hitler dictated an armistice to Marshal Petain's representative in June of 1940.

Petain, then commanding general of the French armies; Field Marshal Douglas Haig, commander in chief of the British forces in France, and Gen. Pershing, commander of the American forces, flashed the news to their army commanders along the western front that the armistice would become effective at 11 o'clock.

Raced for Sedan

But certain commanders of certain American units, on receiving the notification that the war would be over five hours later—at 11 o'clock—staged a macabre race to reach Sedan first, Sedan being the nearest large town along the front and carrying a symbolic meaning as the spot where the French general Bazaine surrendered to Von Moltke in 1870 in the Franco-Prussian war.

Hundreds of American soldiers paid the price of their lives in the senseless, hurried, and unprepared attack and advance against the Germans' prepared positions, strongly held by machine guns and artillery, to satisfy the ambition and boasts of these commanders that they had penetrated farthest to the east toward Germany when the war ended.

The scandal of the slaughtered doughboys, sacrificed during the five hour period between the signing of the armistice and its coming into effect, leaked out thru newspaper articles and resulted in a congressional investigation to fix the blame.

America Lost Interest

In the world-wide relief at peace and the ending of the killing and destruction and in the public interest in the bickerings and double dealings that immediately came to light, disclosing secret agreements reached by our allies concerning the division of the spoils of war which had been kept secret from President Wilson and the United States government, the American people lost interest in the inquiry to fix the guilt on those who were responsible for the unnecessary killing of American doughboys after the war was over.

But the congressmen handling the investigation promised that never again would politics or personal interests or ambitions be permitted to cause casualties among American soldiers.

As an eye witness to this episode 27 years ago, I sincerely hope that this will not be repeated in the present race to Berlin.

Senator Challenges Cuban Colleague to Duel

HAVANA, April 16 (AP)—Sen. Eduardo Chibas, one of Cuba's delegates to the recent Inter-American conference in Mexico City, was challenged to a duel today by Sen. Santiago Rey. Rey said Chibas insulted him in a recent speech assailing Rey's administration while governor of Las Villas province.

CZECHS FREED BY BAYREUTH FALL BEGIN TREK HOME

Yanks Give Rations to Weakened Prisoners

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 11TH ARMORED DIVISION IN BAYREUTH, Germany, April 14 [Delayed]—This major Bavarian city—home of the famed Wagnerian festival—was entered this afternoon by elements of the 11th armored division.

The Wagner Festival theater atop a high hill on the north edge of town was undamaged. But far more important was the freeing of some 1,500 Czech political prisoners from a concentration camp. Their joy at being free once more after years under Nazi terror was wonderful to see. They included shopkeepers, doctors, lawyers, some guilty of writing anti-Nazi pamphlets and others of such offenses as hiding Russian paratroopers. Now they are trekking toward Czechoslovakia.

SS Complicates Surrender

The capture of Bayreuth was complicated by the now almost commonplace rift between the SS [elite guard] and local officials. The burgomeister [mayor] who came out to confer with the armored force colonel in command was not only willing but eager to surrender the town. But he said the SS commander had ordered him to fight.

The colonel threatened to bombard the town, but the burgomeister argued against it, saying he was sure there would be no resistance despite the SS officer's order. So finally the tanks and armored infantrymen entered and by late afternoon had taken the city with very little trouble.

Rather startling proof that the burgomeister was correct when he said the troops didn't want to fight, was obtained by a party of five correspondents, including this reporter, who went to visit the Wagner theater before troops had reached that part of town.

Capture 11 Soldiers

We were walking up a path near the theater after civilians had assured us there were no "soldaten" in the neighborhood when 11 uniformed Germans armed with a light machine gun, bazooka, grenades, pistols, and rifles came out of the shrubbery with their hands raised and surrendered to us. The nearest American soldier—as we found when we marched them back—was at least a quarter mile away.

We also had the pleasure of tramping thru the house of Fritz Waechtler, Bavarian gauleiter. Unfortunately, he fled a couple of days ago, but left behind a luxuriously furnished house whose walls were littered with autographed pictures of Hitler, Himmler, and other high Nazis.

Still hanging in the closets of his rooms were finely tailored uniforms with swastika arm bands embroidered in gold thread. He also forgot to take his SS sword of Damascus steel, on whose blade was a legend showing it was given to Waechtler by Himmler. When we left, a couple of Yank doughboys were sampling his best Rhine wine.

One Stumbles and Falls

We saw one group of six Czechs who had not eaten for two days. They were heading down a street toward the distant Czech border when one stumbled at the edge of a bomb crater, fell, and was unable to rise. Others ahead didn't notice, so we ran across and helped him to his feet. We got some K rations from friendly tank soldiers and fed him and the others. It's a terrible thing to see any one as glad to get food as they were.

We asked the man who had fallen his age, since he seemed at least 60—feeble, stooped, and waxen skinned.

It was with horror that we found he was 37.

He said the Gestapo had beaten him—his head was bandaged—and on one occasion had tied him near a hot stove for five days without food. He said he was given only salt water to drink.

End War Drive Begins

ROME, April 16 (AP)—An offensive described by Field Marshal Alexander as "the last battle which will end the war" was launched today with American 5th army troops joining in the assault begun a week ago by the British 8th army in a mighty effort to drive the Germans from northern Italy.

A bombardment by 1,233 heavy bombers of the United States 15th air force preceded the American jump-off in mountainous territory heavily mined and bitterly defended south of Bologna. German defenses were saturated by nearly 25,000 bombs, the carpet of explosives falling at points within five and a half miles of allied lines.

Special orders of the day issued by Alexander and by Gen. Clark, commander of the 15th army group, expressed confidence that the present attack would attain its objective—complete defeat of some 26 Nazi divisions in Italy—but also warned that there was much hard fighting ahead.

DUCE LAMENTS 'I AM ONLY AN EMPTY BOTTLE'

BAD BLANKENBURG, Germany, April 16 (AP)—Gen. Vittorio Foschini, former minister of information for the Italian armed forces, said that when he resigned 15 months ago Benito Mussolini told him "I do not blame you—all my collaborators have turned villain."

Mussolini put his head down on the desk and said, "I am only an empty bottle—only an empty bottle," according to Foschini.

The former Italian official, his wife, and 80 year old Count Ettore Tolomei, former administrator for southern Tyrol, were held under guard by the Germans until just before the Americans arrived. American military police assumed custody of them.

MAYOR DENIED APPEAL RIGHT IN MONTREAL SUIT

MONTREAL, Que., April 16 (AP)—Mayor Camillien Houde today was refused leave to appeal from the dismissal April 4 in Superior court of legal objections raised by Houde to an action to declare his election last December invalid. Houde had sought to terminate the action, taken by Leo Dore, a Montreal truck driver. Houde argued that Dore did not have funds to make the $1,000 necessary to start proceedings and that therefore the money must have been provided by some other person than Dore. The Superior court ruling was that the city charter provides merely that the money be deposited and does not concern itself with the origin of the funds.

Meat Pours Into London —Strike Keeps It Tied Up

LONDON, April 16 [Reuters]—Altho meat was pouring into London's 33 ministry of transport depots, none of it was going out to the butchers today because the drivers were staging a "stand by strike" to protest against an alleged breach of agreement affecting their subsistence allowances. The men called it a stand by strike because they were holding themselves ready to restart work when the ministry begins negotiations.

CHICAGO YANKS INCH FORWARD ON ITALIAN PEAK

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY FACING BOLOGNA, Italy, April 16—Twenty-four Chicago soldiers are in the front line of a combat unit which at this moment is bearing the brunt of some of the fiercest, bloodiest fighting in Italy as the American 5th army opens its all-out offensive in the Etruscan Apennines.

As I write, men of the unit are clinging to the rocky, barren slope of a mountain 10 air miles south of Bologna, with the Germans, in heavily fortified positions on the crest, looking right down on them. But the Jerries are doing more than just looking. The constant drumfire of mortar shells rains down on the Americans as they painfully inch upward. Every few seconds, heavier shells burst among them. Always, there is the sharp rattle of machine guns and rifles. Every foot the Yanks advance is paid for. Their objective is the top.

Wisconsin Man Commands

A veteran officer from Wisconsin commands the unit, which has been assigned the task of encircling and taking the 2,100 foot high Mount Adone, for months a trouble spot for the 5th army. Adone lies between two main highways leading into Bologna, and German artillery observers and guns situated there have been able to fire point blank at American transport crawling up either road. That's why it must be knocked out.

One outfit moved up under cover of darkness last night and jumped off for the attack against Adone at 3 a. m. today. Silently, they reached the east bank of the Savena river, waded chest deep thru its icy, fast running water, then began the long haul up the mountain slope. Last reports showed patrols of the unit have reached the outskirts of a village on the side of Adone. Progress has been slow.

"Every step forward is a life and death hazard because of thickly sown German mine fields," an officer said. "The Germans spent the winter fortifying their line in these mountains, and they've laid thousands of mines along every possible route of advance. A rapid advance is impossible."

One of the subordinate commanders of the unit is 24 year old Lt. Col. Richard Oshlo of Council Bluffs, Ia. Oshlo was a captain when he came overseas a year ago, and has rocketed to his present rank because of his ability and daring in handling combat commands.

Chicagoans in Unit

Every one of the 24 Chicagoans is a combat soldier. The following are riflemen: Privates 1st Class James Calcese, 1703 Sedgwick st.; Norbert Pogorzelski, 3027 S. Ashland av.; Walter Lesmeister, 928 W. 51st st.; Albert Lopez, 602 S. May st., and Walter Conrad, 4256 N. Mead av.

Browning automatic rifle men from Chicago include Pvt. Claude Smith, 8919 Winchester av., and Pvt. Irvin Wolter, 541 W. 116th st. Other Chicagoans, machine gunners, squad leaders, scouts, mortar gunners, and line men—are Staff Sgt. John Orrinc, 9390 Kreiter av.; Privates 1st Class Leo Kusmierski, 2558 Southport av.; Willis Lancaster, 9544 Avenue L; Adrain Bogard, 839 Diversey pkwy.; John Mack, 4633 S. RED USE OF NAZI CAPTIVES POSES AN ISSUE FOR U.S.

70,000 Are Extradited from Romania

Washington, D. C., April 16 (AP)—Washington officials are preparing for a conference of big five foreign ministers probably this week-end.

Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov is expected here by the end of the week. British Foreign Secretary Eden and Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong are already in Washington. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is expected soon.

Problem of Nazi Labor

A new foreign affairs problem demanding decisions by President Truman is that of soviet transfer of Germans from the Balkans into Russia to help clean up war devastation. Some of Mr. Truman's advisers are known to be opposed to the Russian plan of labor reparations.

The question of reparations was brought up at Yalta, but apparently without agreement. American officials are still discussing the policy of this government. Isador Lubin, appointed by President Roosevelt to go to Moscow as American member of the reparations commission, is still in Washington with no sign when he will leave.

Diplomatic information here indicates some 70,000 Germans from Romania have been taken to Russia, an estimated 100,000 have been taken somewhere—presumably Russia—from Yugoslavia, and there are signs that able bodied Germans are being taken from Hungary.

Policy Still Undecided

Only allied intervention, it was understood, caused Russia to reconsider an original plan to take virtually all of the half million Germans in Romania where they fought with and supported Nazi armies.

Shortly after the Yalta conference President Roosevelt indicated sympathy for the idea of using Germans to clean up the destruction he saw in the Crimea, but no actual policy of that sort has been indicated.

There is no inclination here to believe that the Russians will be swerved from their purpose. The operation in the Balkans is taken as an indicator of what they propose for Germany itself.

FRANCE AGREES WITH AUSTRALIA ON ISLAND BASES

BY DAVID DARRAH

PARIS, April 16—Gen. De Gaulle, head of the French provisional government, reached a broad agreement today with Australian Deputy Premier Frank Forde and Australian Foreign Secretary Dr. E. H. Evatt on the question of international control of strategic Pacific island possessions, which is likely to be one of the main issues at the San Francisco conference.

Forde and Evatt, accompanied by Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner in London, had a long talk this morning with De Gaulle.

Two Nations Reach Accord

The Australians, in France on an official visit after their London discussions, already had reached an agreement with Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who will head France's delegation to San Francisco, for Australia and France jointly to oppose any attempt to establish international trusteeships, as desired by the Washington government, over the strategic islands of French New Caledonia and former German possessions now held by Australia under the former league of nations' mandate. Forde and Evatt also will be at San Francisco.

The London government is believed to be backing the Australian and French position.

The inference from all this is that both France and Australia foresee a plan of American expansion and control in the Pacific, and are holding out for all they can get.

Foreign Office Statement

A ministry of foreign affairs statement tonight said: "Evatt and Bidault were agreed about principles of collective security. Their talks brought out the solidarity of interests of these two powers in the Pacific as well as their identity of views on the usefulness of regional agreements such as the pact of Canberra."

French sources quoted Dr. Evatt as hoping the French would retain complete sovereignty not only over their Pacific islands but also Indo-China.

FRENCH THROW BACK GERMANS ON TWO FRONTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 16—Equipped with American weapons and supplies, French forces today threw Germans out of more of their territory from the Atlantic coast to the Italian Alps frontier.

On the Alps front, French troops, after a five day fight in the sector north of Menton and east of Sospel, threw back German elements in front of the mountain heights and seized the town of Breil. French troops here were pushing forward to cut off a corner of Italy toward San Remo.

French forces on the Atlantic coast supported by 450 American bombers and artillery, continued to crowd the Germans in the Gironde pocket farther into the corner. The French now occupy Royan on the north bank of the Gironde, but there are still centers of Germans resisting in small groups on the opposite side.

CARRIER PILOTS BAG 368 PLANES IN KYUSHU RAID

Destroy Many on Ground in 3 Day Attack

GUAM, April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Vice Adm. Mitcher's task force pilots destroyed 368 Japanese planes in raids on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands, and near the Ryukyus from April 12 to 16.

This disclosure, in Adm. Nimitz's bulletin today, was the first from an American source that Mitscher's pilots had raided Kyushu. No details were given except that many of the enemy warcraft were destroyed on the ground. In addition to those shot down, 60 were damaged.

Carrier pilots shot down 77 Japanese aircraft April 12 to 14 in sweeps over Kikai and Tanega air fields. Over Kyushu, Mitscher's pilots attacked Kanoya and Kushira air fields April 15. There, they shot 29 enemy planes out of the air and destroyed 58 aground. Next day, Yank fighters sweeping Kyushu shot down an additional 22.

On April 16, the Nipponese launched heavy air attacks on United States forces off Okinawa. Carrier pilots shot down 62 of these and ships' gunners destroyed 15. Combat air patrols downed another 67 farther north in the Ryukyus. Ships' gunners shot down 38 more.

Fleet Destroys 242

These aerial victories raised to 1,674 the number of enemy aircraft destroyed by Mitscher's forces since March 18. United States losses have been negligible.

The Japanese launched heavy air attacks against American troops in and around Okinawa yesterday. Yank pilots, ships' gunners, and land based anti-aircraft gunners destroyed 242 of the attackers. Nimitz did not say whether American forces suffered damage in these attacks.

Nimitz disclosed that 9,108 Japanese troops had been killed on Okinawa and 391 taken prisoner up to Saturday. That covered the first 13 days of the Okinawa campaign. Approximately 85,000 civilians have been placed under American military government supervision.

The new figures thus disclosed that despite the deadlocked ground action on the southern Okinawa front, 4,097 Japanese were killed and 169 taken prisoners since April 8. As of that date, Nimitz said, Japanese casualties were 5,009 killed and 222 prisoners.

Land on Another Island

Only United States casualty figures announced by Nimitz were 432 killed, 2,103 wounded and 169 missing—a total of 2,695—thru April 9.

Elements of the 24th army corps landed on Ie Island, off the northwest tip of Okinawa, the morning of April 16 and, advancing rapidly against light resistance, quickly captured a three-runway air field. The defenders were driven back into defense positions.

Marines on northern Okinawa meantime continued their push northward over rugged terrain. There was little change in the lines on the southern front, where naval guns, carrier planes and field artillery continued their bombardment of the strong Japanese defense positions.

INDIANS CAPTURE TAUNGUP, LAST BASE IN ARAKAN

CALCUTTA, India, April 16 (AP)—The city of Taungup, last Japanese supply base in Arakan on the west coast of Burma, has been captured by the 15th Indian corps, a southeast Asia command bulletin announced today.

Taungup lies 125 miles southeast of British-held Akyab and 62 miles west of Prome, on the Irrawaddy river. High ground south of Taungup was occupied by the Indians.

Bombers of the eastern air command attacked enemy targets both north and south of Taungup and a road east of the coastal base was hit. The bombers started a large oil fire northeast of Taungup. The bulletin said 14th army troops operat south and southeast of Meiktila were making "rapid progress" in cleaning out the remaining Japanese forces.

'ALL TOKYO WAR PRODUCTION TO BE BOMBED OUT

GUAM, April 17 [Tuesday] (AP)—Total elimination of Tokyo's war production became a definite goal today after American B-29s added destruction yesterday to the 27½ square miles of the city already in ruins.

Staff officers of Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 21st bomber command here figured all production would come to a standstill without actual destruction of the 65 square mile urban industrial area.

The Japanese cabinet met in emergency session to discuss "the latest devastation of the war," Radio Tokyo said.

Twentieth air force headquarters in Washington said 11 bombers had failed to return from Monday's incendiary raid, the second on Tokyo in 48 hours. Possibly 400 B-29s participated.

THROW A STONE ON OKINAWA AND HIT A CHICAGOAN

Battery C of 96th Full of Them

BY THOMAS MORROW
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. FORCES ON OKINAWA, April 15 [Delayed]—One portion of Okinawa, where a battalion of 96th division artillery is located between two rolling hills, is known as Little Chicago.

Here, you couldn't throw a stone without hitting a Chicago lad. They are busy throwing over 200 large projectiles a day at the Japanese, and ducking, as successfully as they can, the things the enemy throws back.

They are cheerful and well fed. They have gnawed down to nothing several pigs which, they tell you, came into their camp and committed suicide, and a number of chickens which surrendered.

Knock Out Two Guns

"My gun crew is doing right well," Said Sgt. Lawrence S. Pochocki, 2533 46th pl. "We—that's C section, Battery C—have knocked out two Jap gun positions, two ammunition dumps, and one supply dump."

Corp. Joe Bryk, 3750 S. Wood st., maintained he saw some good looking geisha girls while touring Okinawa. "They look okay to me," he asserted. "A guy could do worse than build a home and stay here."

Pvt. Jerry Frystak, 5229 N. Natoma av., was worried about $300 in occupation money he had won in crap and poker games.

"Sad" Sack Kills a Jap

Corp. Erwin [Sad] Sack, 2535 Orchard st., who distinguished himself on Leyte by winning the carabao Derby astride one of the unpredictable animals, killed an infiltrating Jap sneaking up on the camp with demolition charges.

Pvt. Peter Sojka Jr., 727 Noble st., a cannoneer, said, sadly, he was having a bad time with Okinawa fleas. Pvt. Nat Esposito, 3709 66th st., concurred. Corp. William Roney, Route 2, Urbana, Ill., said the climate is better than Leyte but the artillery is worse.

Fast Foxhole Maker

Staff Sgt. Leo Eisenberg, 4209 Jackson blvd., said he would be happy when Okinawa was just a memory, and Pvt. Frank Ruzza, 1607 Humboldt blvd., held that he was the record holder in making foxholes.

Sgt. Robert Malone, 1820 Greenleaf av., was still considering some Japanese who insisted on sharing foxholes with battery members until discouraged by bullets. His buddy, Malone said, got a bullet thru his hat.

Urged by Corp. Frank W. Spaak, route 2, Crystal Lake, whose pride in the outfit knows no bounds, the artillerymen said that if any one wanted to buy one of the guns it would cost $40,000 and a round of ammunition would be an extra $65. Among those who volunteered these bits of information were:

Pvt. George Stendahl, 3949 Shakespeare av., and Pvt. Eugene Beilinski, 1814 S. Lawndale av., Chicago; Corp. Joe Salerno, 726 24th st., Rock Island; Pvt. Russell Kortmann, 2646 N. 74th av., Elmwood Park; Pvt. Russell Byers, Valmeyer, Ill.; Corp. James Chiero, 2408 Jackson blvd.; Corp. Joseph Pajak, 4932 S. Karlov av.; Sgt. Helmer Hanka, 6338 Ellis av.; Corp. Don McNamara, 8139 Honore st.; Corp. Stanley Kouzing, 1745 Wilmot av.; Staff Sgt. Lawrence Shefcik, 7253 Wood st., and Pvt. James Svoboda, 1435 S. Kostner av., all of Chicago.

Other Chicagoans

Others in the battery include: Corp. Harley Coy, Kankakee, Ill.; Pvt. Herbert Biggs, Joliet, Ill.; Pvt. Ovid Atkins, Elgin; Pvt. John P. Ratkowski, 1635 Julian st., Corp. Miles R. Fairfield av., Kenneth Keenan, 200 N. Central av., Joseph Rutkowski, 2416 Burling st., Mike Rusovick, 2154 Jackson blvd., and Mike Burns, 6377 N. Sayre av., all of Chicago.

Also Pvt. Russel Ingals, Aroma Park, Ill.; Sgt. Percy Ellis, Moline, Ill.; Corp. Robert Chama, Riverside, Ill.; Pvt. Fred Butts, 622 Madison st., Litchfield, Ill., and these Chicagoans: Staff Sgt. $2,000 Loot Found

Four men, two of them soldiers with overseas service who police said were absent without leave from Lowrie field, Denver, Colo., were being held in Chicago yesterday. Woodlawn police said they admitted burglaries in 50 to 75 public schools.

More than $2,000 worth of typewriters, fountain pens, radios, and other equipment have been recovered from pawn shops and from the apartment of one of the men, Pvt. Victor Marks, 26, at 6318 Drexel blvd., where police also seized Orene Smith, 20, a waitress, who they said was living with the soldier.

Others arrested are Tech. Sgt. Norman Plummer, 24, of 848 E. 64th st. who, with Marks, has been absent from Lowrie field since March 2; Lester Manning, 26, of 848 E. 64th st., and Harry Rush, 18, of the same address.

Manning was arrested Sunday night in a south side tavern where he alarmed patrons by twirling a revolver. He implicated the others after police found a book in his pockets listing all the city's schools. Seventy-five of the schools bore penciled check marks.

YANKS TIGHTEN BAGUIO NOOSE; BEAT BACK JAPS

MANILA, April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Strongly supported by bombers and fighters, 33d division doughboys drew their noose tighter around the Philippine summer capital of Baguio on northern Luzon Sunday.

Gen. MacArthur reported today the Yanks around Baguio, within three miles of the important city at one point, were overcoming strong Japanese pockets of resistance. Several enemy counter-attacks at night were repulsed.

Japanese strongpoints were being reduced also in the watershed district northwest of Manila as supporting aircraft raked the entire Luzon area with 700 tons of explosives.

Heavy bombers with a fighter escort dropped 111 tons of bombs on four airdromes on western Formosa, destroying at least 16—and probably 21—parked planes. Rail yards and rolling stock were hammered.

ARM OF WOMAN, 78, BROKEN.

Mrs. Ellen Olson, 78, of 5713 N. Talman av., suffered a fracture of her right arm yesterday in a fall at her home.

HOW IWO LOOKS TODAY: A SCENE OUT OF INFERNO

BY FRANK STURDY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

IWO ISLAND, April 16—Iwo Island resembles nothing so much as an old etching of a "Nightmare ot Hell" with the fantastic addition of the equipage of modern war. Everything is there, including the steaming earth, the blotchy craters, the weird stunted trees, and the dead.

In the rocky gulches, where the Japs holed up and fought fanatically, lie the burned-out hulks of American tanks, already rusted, their treads shot off and gun turrets blasted askew. These are sad monuments to the dead whose graves are marked with white crosses in the three cemeteries whose wooden arches bear the devices of the 3d, 4th, and 5th marine divisions.

On the island's central plateau planes line the runways which engineers already have improved for the operation of Super Fortresses regularly raiding Tokyo. They are the deadly machines for which this island was taken, and the lives they are expected to save in crippling the Jap aircraft industry are the justification for the sacrifice of the Americans beneath the white crosses.

Trucks Crawl Like Ants

This scene is alive with men and every sort of machine to move earth and supplies. The chain begins with the cargo ships lying off the beaches. Amphibious ducks take the cargoes, roll their ungainly bulk onto the beaches, and speed to the supply dumps. Hundreds of trucks trail one another like ants along the muddy roads, sorting and redistributing equipment, the whole transport belt pointing toward the waiting airplanes.

Army engineers and navy Seabees have already lengthened and improved the two air strips built by the Japs. Within a few months they will be replaced with two parallel runways, wider and still longer. Meanwhile bulldozers are leveling ground for two fighter strips. When the job is finished, every square yard on the island will be utilized to hold planes or supplies to keep them in the air.

Night Fighters on Base

When the new runways are prepared the bombers, which can stop at Iwo for refueling instead of carrying all the fuel necessary for a round trip of more than 3,000 miles from the Marianas to Tokyo, then will be able to carry bigger bomb loads.

As the island's capacities for servicing planes increase, strafing expeditions at low level over Tokyo may be expected.

Black Widow night fighters are on the air base in force. After every raid on Tokyo, some Super Fortresses make emergency landings at Iwo because of fuel shortage or battle damage. So far the island has been a refuge for more than 200 that might not have reached home.

Build Many Roads

In the short time since the island was taken, the American army has accomplished more construction than the Japs were able to in the years they had it. Roads lace the island, and one called the Loop snakes almost completely around the shoreline.

The Japs never succeeded in building a road to the top of Mount Suribachi. Army engineers did the job by bulldozing thousands of tons of rock and volcanic ash off the steep sides, literally cutting the road into the mountain. At many places steam jets from cracks in the rock, or puffs from the ground.

CHICAGOANS WIN MEDALS FLYING CARGO TO BURMA

Carry Everything You Can Think Of

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH ADVANCED HDQ., 10TH AIR FORCE, Burma Front, April 16—Around this forward base, anything you can think of has been delivered by mechanical storks—United States army air forces combat cargo planes—which have flown the monsoons with the world's most curious cargoes.

It's not unusual for these boys to cut huge truck bodies in half, cram the two sides into their C-47s, and head out to Burma. These air cowboys have brought in construction machinery for airport building that tipped the scales at over 20 tons.

Many Are Decorated

Decorations have been pinned on quite a few members of these smart, alert outfits, many going to midwesterners. Admittedly, flying the unarmed and unescorted cargo planes is not the simplest job in the world. They pin-point food to surrounded hilltops and into jungle hideouts. When Merrill's Marauders were surrounded, they parachuted drinking water to them. They haul casualties back.

First Lt. John F. Kavanda, 29 year old former accountant, of 1422 Belle Plaine av., Chicago, recently was awarded the third oak leaf cluster to his air medal and the second cluster to his distinguished flying cross. Kavanada has completed 215 missions, flying night and day for 10 months, in the Burma theater.

Second Lt. Marshal Feld of 6425 N. Richmond av., Chicago, a former ordnance inspector for Stewart-Warner corporation, received the fourth oak leaf cluster to his air medal and the third cluster to his distinguished flying cross. He has 223 missions to his credit.

Chicagoan Gets Action

Radio Operator Sgt. Stephen V. Jacobs of 2354 S. Albany av., Chicago, saw plenty of action recently. Flying a supply mission, the 22 year old sergeant's plane was free dropping to some troops under Japanese mortar fire. The Nips switched their fire to the low-flying cargo planes, and the aircraft just ahead was struck by a mortar shell, which tore off a wing and sent the plane spinning earthward.

Despite the flames and the Jap fire, Jacobs' craft circled twice more thru the smoke of the burning plane to complete its mission. Sgt. Jacobs received the first oak leaf cluster to his distinguished flying cross and the second to his air medal, just after completing his 280th mission.

Second Lt. Marshall A. Dean of 920 Prairie st., Aurora, a former athletic director at Bethlehem community center, 1853 S. Loomis st., Chicago, received the second oak leaf clusters to both his air medal and distinguished flying cross recently. His engine failed in the Burmese mountains. Lt. Dean had to jettison 6,000 pounds of ammunition trying to get his craft on an even keel and limp to safety on the remaining engine.

Another of the boys is 2d Lt. Robert Trkovsky, 1618 S. 58th ct., Cicero. This veteran pilot, who has completed 240 missions, recently added the third cluster to his air medal and the second to his distinguished flying cross.

Illinoisans Honored

Second Lt. James P. Andrews, 22, of Carmel, Ill., received the third cluster to his air medal and the first for his D. F. C. First Lt. Harlan Lefler, Macomb, Ill., with 203 missions, won the second cluster to both his air medal and distinguished flying cross. Tech. Sgt. Richard J. Eskra of Preston, Ill., received the second cluster to his air medal and the first to his distinguished flying cross.

Two midwesterners recently decorated were 2d Lt. Cecil J. Carlson of Essex, Ia., pilot and 2d Lt. Arvid Omunson, Ashland, Wis., co-pilot.

TRUMAN CALLS ON U. S. TO HELP WIN 'REAL PEACE'

Asks Nation to Maintain World Leadership

Washington, D. C., April 16 (AP)—The following is the text of President Truman's address to congress:

"It is with heavy heart that I stand before you, my friends and colleagues, in the congress of the United States.

"Only yesterday, we laid to rest the mortal remains of our beloved President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. At a time like this, words are inadequate. The most eloquent tribute would be a reverent silence.

"Yet, in this decisive hour when world events are moving so rapidly, our silence might be misunderstood and might give comfort to our enemies.

"A Heroic Champion"

"In His infinite wisdom, Almighty God has seen fit to take from us a great man who loved, and was beloved by, all humanity.

"No man could possibly fill the tremendous void left by the passing of that noble soul. No words can ease the aching hearts of untold millions of every race, creed, and color. The world knows it has lost a heroic champion of justice and freedom.

"Tragic fate has thrust upon us grave responsibilities. We must carry on. Our departed leader never looked backward. He looked forward and moved forward. That is what he would want us to do. That is what America will do.

Dare Not Pause, Session Told

"So much blood has already been shed for the ideals which we cherish, and for which Franklin Delano Roosevelt lived and died, that we dare not permit even a momentary pause in the hard fight for victory.

"Today the entire world is looking to America for enlightened leadership to peace and progress. Such a leadership requires vision, courage, and tolerance. It can be provided only by a united nation deeply devoted to the highest ideals.

"I call upon all Americans to help me keep our nation united in defense of those ideals which have been so eloquently proclaimed by Franklin Roosevelt.

FREEDOM FIGHT GOES ON

Truman Vows to Support Ideals of Liberty

"I want in turn to assure my fellow Americans and all of those who love peace and liberty thruout the world that I will support and defend those ideals with all my strength and with all my heart. That is my duty and I shall not shirk it.

"So that there can be no possible misunderstanding, both Germany and Japan can be certain, beyond any shadow of doubt, America will continue the fight for freedom until no vestige of resistance remains!

"We are deeply conscious of the fact that much hard fighting is still ahead of us.

"Having to pay such a heavy price to make complete victory certain, America will never become a party to any plan for partial victory.

United States' Demand Unchanged

"Our demand has been, and it remains—unconditional surrender!

"We will not traffic with the breakers of the peace on the terms of the peace.

"The responsibility for the making of the peace—and it is a very great responsibility—must rest with the defenders of the peace, the united nations. We are not unconscious of the dictates of humanity. We do not wish to see unnecessary or unjustified suffering.

"But the laws of God and of man have been violated and the guilty must not go unpunished. Nothing shall shake our determination to punish the war criminals even tho we must pursue them to the ends of the earth.

JUSTICE HELD KEYSTONE

Efforts to Improve the Lot of People Pledged

"Lasting peace can never be secured if we permit our dangerous opponents to plot future wars with impunity at any mountain retreat—however distant.

"In this shrinking world, it is futile to seek safety behind geographical barriers. Real security will be found only in law and in justice.

"Here in America, we have labored long and hard to achieve a social order worthy of our great heritage. In our time, tremendous progress has been made toward a really democratic way of life. Let me assure the forward looking people of America that there will be no relaxation in our efforts to improve the lot of the common people.

"Staggering" Problems Ahead

"In the difficult days ahead, unquestionably we shall face problems of staggering proportions. However, with the faith of our fathers in our hearts, we fear no future.

"On the battlefields, we have frquently faced overwhelming odds—and won! At home, Americans will not be less resolute!

"We shall never cease our struggle to preserve and maintain our American way of life.

"At this very moment, America, along with her brave allies, is paying again a heavy price for the defense of our freedom. With characteristic energy, we are assisting in the liberation of entire nations. Gradually, the shackles of slavery are being broken by the forces of freedom.

"All of us are praying for a speedy victory. Every day peace is delayed, costs a terrible toll.

"The armies of liberation today are bringing to an end Hitler's ghastly threat to dominate the world. Tokyo rocks under the weight of our bombs.

"The grand strategy of a united nations' war has been determined—due in no small measure to the vision of our departed commander in chief. We are now carrying out our part of that strategy under the able direction of Adm. Leahy, Gen. Marshall, Adm. King, Gen. Arnold, Gen. Eisenhower, Adm. Nimitz, and Gen. MacArthur.

"I want the entire world to know that this direction must and will remain—unchanged and unhampered!

"Our debt to the heroic men and valiant women in the service of our country can never be repaid. They have earned our undying gratitude. America will never forget their sacrifices. Because of these sacrifices, the dawn of justice and freedom thruout the world slowly casts its gleam across the horizon.

Peace "Must Not Fail"

"Our forefathers came to our rugged shores in search of religious tolerance, political freedom, and economic opportunity. For those fundamental rights they risked their lives. We well know today that such rights can be preserved only by constant vigilance, the eternal price of liberty!

"Within an hour after I took the oath of office, I announced that the San Francisco conference would proceed. We will face the problems of peace with the same courage that we have faced and mastered the problems of war.

"In the memory of those who have made the supreme sacrifice—in the memory of our fallen President—we shall not fail!

"It is not enough to yearn for peace. We must work, and if necessary, fight for it. The task of creating a sound international organization is complicated and difficult. Yet, without such organization, the rights of man on earth cannot be protected.

DURABLE PEACE HIS AIM

Hope Called Secret Weapon of Liberation Forces

"Machinery for the just settlement of international differences must be found. Without such machinery, the entire world will have to remain an armed camp. The world will be doomed to deadly conflict, devoid of hope for real peace.

"Fortunately, people have retained hope for a durable peace. Thoughtful people have always had faith that ultimately justice must triumph. Past experience surely indicates that, without justice, an enduring peace becomes impossible.

"In bitter despair, some people have come to believe that wars are inevitable. With tragic fatalism, they insist that as wars have always been, of necessity, wars will always be. To such defeatism, men and women of good will must not and can not yield. The outlook for humanity is not hopeless.

"During the darkest hours of this horrible war, entire nations were kept going by something intangible—hope! When warned that abject submission offered the only salvation against overwhelming power, hope showed the way to victory. Hope has become the secret weapon of the forces of liberation!

Hope Alone Is Insufficient

"Aggressors could not dominate the human mind. As long as hope remains, the spirit of man will never be crushed.

"But hope alone was not and is not sufficient to avert war. We must not only have hope but we must have faith enough to work with other peace loving nations to maintain the peace. Hope was not enough to beat back the aggressors as long as the peace loving nations were unwilling to come to each other's defense. The aggressors were beaten back only when the peace loving nations united to defend themselves.

"If wars in the future are to be prevented, the peace loving nations must be united in their determination to keep the peace under law. The breaking of peace anywhere is the concern of peace loving nations everywhere.

Coöperation Held Vital

"Nothing is more essential to the future peace of the world than continued coöperation of the nations which had to muster the force necessary to defeat the conspiracy of the fascist powers to dominate the world.

"While these great states have a special responsibility to enforce the peace, their responsibility is based upon the obligations resting upon all states, large and small, not to use force in international relations except in the defense of law. The responsibility of the great states is to serve and not dominate the peoples of the world.

"To build the foundation of enduring peace we must not only work in harmony with our friends abroad, but we must have the united support of our own people.

"Even the most experienced pilot cannot bring a ship safely into harbor unless he has the full coöperation of the crew. For the benefit of all, every individual must do his duty.

TEACHER SUSPENDED 'FOR SLUR ON F.D.R.' WILLING TO FACE FBI

Miss Nellie I. Mills

Allen P. Twyman, attorney for Miss Nellie I. Mills, a science teacher at the Washington High school in East Chicago, Ind., who was suspended last week for an alleged slurring remark in school memorial services for President Roosevelt, said yesterday he would welcome an investigation of her by the federal bureau of investigation.

The memorial services were held Friday. John Dreesen, president of the school board, asserted Miss Mills said, "For the first time in 12 years I can raise my hand and pledge allegiance to the flag."

A final hearing by the school board will be held May 17 to determine whether Miss Mills' suspension shall be permanent. Miss Mills served notice she would fight suspension.

Miss Mills, 53, has taught for 19 years in East Chicago schools and 11 years elsewhere. She lives at 3619 Fir st., East Chicago.

SPEEDY DECISION ON MORGENTHAU'S STATUS IS SOUGHT

Washington, April 16 (AP)—Clarification of whether Henry Morgenthau is to remain indefinitely as treasury secretary with policies unchanged was urged by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.] today before any action is taken toward ratifying the Bretton Woods world financial agreements.

Wolcott, Republican leader of the house banking committee, suggested in a statement to newspaper men that the new administration make a definite assertion on possible changes in treasury personnel and policy.

His proposal came as Chairman Spence [D., Ky.] announced the banking group would resume Wednesday its public hearings on the Bretton Woods agreements, drawn at a meeting of delegates from 44 nations and designed to establish a world bank for reconstruction and development and an international currency stabilization fund.

Wolcott prefaced his statement by pointing to speculation that Morgenthau may not remain in the cabinet.

AN APPEAL TO ALL

President Asks Nation's Help in Achieving Aims

"I appeal to every American, regardless of party, race, creed, or color, to support our efforts to build a strong and lasting united nations organization.

"You, the members of congress, surely know how I feel. Only with your help can I hope to complete one of the greatest tasks ever assigned to a public servant. With divine guidance, and your help, we will find the new passage to a far better world, a kindly and friendly world, with just and lasting peace.

"With confidence, I am depending upon all of you.

"Rational Method" Asked

"To destroy greedy tyrants with plans of world domination, we cannot continue in successive generations to sacrifice our finest youth.

"In the name of human decency and civilization, a more rational method of deciding national differences must and will be found!

"America must assist suffering humanity back along the path of peaceful progress. This will require time and tolerance. We shall need also an abiding faith in the people, the kind of faith and courage which Franklin Delano Roosevelt always had!

"Today America has become one of the most powerful forces for good on earth. We must keep it so. We have achieved a world leadership which does not depend solely upon our military and naval might.

Better Standards Sought

"We have learned to fight with other nations in common defense of our freedom. We must now learn to live with other nations for our mutual good.

"We must learn to trade more with other nations so that there may be—for our mutual advantage—increased production, increased employment, and better standards of living thruout the world.

"May we Americans live up to our glorious heritage.

"In that way, America may well lead the world to peace and prosperity.

"At this moment, I have in my heart a prayer. As I assume my heavy duties, I humbly pray to Almighty God, in the words of Solomon:

"'Give, therefore, Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people?'

"I ask only to be a good and faithful servant of my Lord and my people."

TRUMAN SPENDS BUSY DAY; FARM NEVER LIKE THIS!

Conferences, Talk, Then More Conferences!

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 16—President Truman, the one time Missouri farm boy, never put in a busier day at harvest time than he did today in taking up the crowded routine of the White House.

After an early breakfast at his Connecticut av. apartment, from which he moved to Blair house this afternoon, he arrived at the White House at 8:15 a. m. Within a few minutes State Secretary Stettinius arrived for a 30 minute discussion.

At 10 a. m. the President met with British Foreign Secretary Eden, Ambassador Halifax, and Stettinius. The four conferred for 20 minutes, and it was believed Mr. Truman gave the British representatives a brief preview of the address he was to make to the joint session of congress at 1 p. m.

Churchill Message Delivered

"I am very pleased to have had the privilege of calling on the President," Eden said as he left the White House. "I am very grateful he should find time to see me on this day when he has an important message to deliver. I naturally brought him some messages from the prime minister. I told him how very gratified we are at the very close and intimate relationship which now exists between us in all our efforts."

After his appearance before congress Mr. Truman returned to the White House where he signed his first two executive orders and then resumed his round of conferences. One order authorized the civil service commission to certify for probational appointments civil service employes who lost opportunities for such appointments as a result of entering military service. The other reinstated A. M. Warren, chief of inter-American affairs of the state department, as a class 1 officer in the foreign service, a rating he had relinquished when he became minister to the Dominican republic.

Byrnes Pays Visit

James F. Byrnes, who hurried to Washington from his Spartanburg, S. C., home Thursday when advised of Roosevelt's death, visited Truman in the afternoon and as he left told reporters he had "no plans to come back into the government." Byrnes has been mentioned as one of the men who will be closest to the new President, possibly in the cabinet as secretary of state.

Byrnes said he had talked with Truman about war mobilization problems and "unfinished business." He said he would return to his home tomorrow or Wednesday.

Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national committeeman who is largely credited with engineering Truman into the Vice Presidential nomination last summer, spent 25 minutes with him, during which Ed Pauley, secretary-treasurer of the national committee, was called in. Hannegan said there was no talk of a federal job for Pauley. Asked if he planned to come into the administration Hannegan said:

"I did not discuss that. Of course, I am anxious to be of assistance to the President in any way I can serve." He added that his visit was primarily to congratulate the President "on his magnificent speech."

In spare moments Mr. Truman worked on the brief radio speech he will make at 10 p. m. [9 p. m. Chicago time] Tuesday to Americans in military service.

President's Kin Read His Speech

MRS. ROOSEVELT BEGINS PACKING; SEES SUCCESSOR

Washington, D. C., April 16 (AP)—Mrs. Harry S. Truman today conferred with her predecessor, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, for more than an hour.

Mrs. Truman arrived at the White House at 10:50 a. m. She left by a back entrance at 12:15 p. m. to go to the capitol to hear her husband's first address as President to a joint session of congress.

Mrs. Roosevelt showed Mrs. Truman around the White House, explaining the social and household duties of its mistress.

Mrs. Truman will receive further information from the chief usher, from Mrs. Meredith Helm, social secretary, and from Mrs. Henrjette Nesbitt, housekeeper.

Trucks Move In and Out

While Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Roosevelt conferred, army quartermaster trucks loaded with barrels, boxes, and excelsior moved in and out of the White House grounds.

This is only the beginning of the task facing Mrs. Roosevelt, who is trying to remove 12 years' accumulation of family belongings out of the White House to enable the Trumans to move in as soon as possible.

Mrs. Truman had a moving job on her hands today, too. The new President and his family will stay temporarily at Blair house, government guest house across Pennsylvania av. from the White House. They have been living in a Connecticut av. apartment.

Thousands of Items to Go

Aware that President Truman and his family are entitled to move into the executive mansion as soon as possible, Mrs. Roosevelt left Hyde Park yesterday within an hour of burial services for her husband. She returned to Washington on the special train that also brought the Trumans.

Aside from the thousands of ordinary family items to be removed from the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt will give special attention to the personal belongings of the former President.

There are his hundreds of marine prints and ship models, his stamp collection, thousands of books, and the mementos of his Presidency. Most of these probably will be placed in the library on the Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate which Mr. Roosevelt bequeathed to the government after the lifetime of his family.

OFFICE MACHINES STOLEN

Frederick H. Froemke, a real estate dealer at 1709 W. 59th st., yesterday told police that a typewriter, an adding machine, and a sweater, all valued at $100, were stolen in a burglary of his office over the week-end.

RADIO LISTENERS ACCORD TRUMAN A HIT IN 1ST TALK

President Truman has a good radio voice. An informal poll of persons who listened to his address yesterday indicated many were agreeably surprised.

"We have come to expect a good radio delivery from our national leaders," said Sherman Dryer, producer of W-G-N's Human Adventure and an expert in casting actors for radio shows. "President Truman showed a great improvement in his address yesterday over his campaign talks of last fall."

"A clear, natural, reassuring American voice," Frank O'Hara, associate professor of English of the University of Chicago, termed it. "The simple sincerity of the man carried over well on the radio."

Others remarked on the directness of his speech, his earnestness and conviction.

President Truman will be heard again over W-G-N and all networks from 9 to 9:05 tonight. This address will be shortwaved to American troops overseas.

tioned jewelry, books, works of art, boats, and other personal property in his will, but there was no mention of his famed stamp collection.

A provision in the will directing payment of an income to Miss Marguerite A. le Hand, for many years confidential secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, lapsed because of her death July 31, 1944. Miss Le Hand would have received "such sum or sums" which the trustees might deem necessary to pay her medical bills, and up to $1,000 a year for living expenses.

Executors and trustees of the estate are the late President's eldest son, Col. James Roosevelt; Basil O'Connor, his former law partner, president of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, and chairman of the American Red Cross, and Henry T. Hackett, a Poughkeepsie attorney.

LONDON PRESS HAILS TRUMAN'S FIRST SPEECH

LONDON, March 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—London morning newspapers today acclaimed editorially President Truman's first speech to congress and welcomed warmly his pledge of unwavering support to Roosevelt's ideals, policies, and "unconditional surrender" goal.

Stories about Truman's speech received prominent front page play. Editorial comment showed it was obvious that the British believe Truman's plans are similar to those of Roosevelt. His statement "It is futile to seek safety behind geographical barriers" was well received here.

JAPS PAT THEIR BACKS AT SUZUKI PRAISE FOR F. D. R.

LONDON April 17 [Tuesday]—(AP)—The Japanese patted themselves on the backs today for Premier Suzuki's expression of sympathy for Americans at President Roosevelt's death.

"Premier Suzuki's statement aroused dismay in the allied camp," Domei, the Japanese news agency, said.

"It is nothing to wonder at, however, for the milk of human kindness and sympathy has not yet dried up in the east. Here is praise by one great soldier to another. Suzuki's tribute is a manifestation of the great Samurai tradition which still governs Japan's conduct of the war."

BARRETT DRAFTS CODE TO SMASH GRAVES RACKET

New Cemetery Act Ready for Assembly

A new cemetery code for Illinois, aimed at smashing cemetery racketeering and fully protecting lot owners and the public, has been prepared by Atty. Gen. Barrett for early introduction in the general assembly.

The new code, the first complete act of its kind ever offered to the legislature of any state, has for its primary purpose the protection of perpetual care funds of cemetery associations, Barrett said.

"This code was drawn," Barrett announced, "to protect the grief stricken in the hour of their bereavement. It will assure them that the graves of their loved ones will be kept permanently in a proper manner. It will protect the public from the depredations of racketeers who prey upon the unfortunate in the hour of their greatest sorrow."

Thousands of Complaints

The code was drawn, the attorney general said, after thousands of complaints had been received by his office against cemetery associations that received payment for but had not rendered perpetual care to graves and lots, had used perpetual care funds for other purposes, had passed arbitrary rules and regulations, and had levied unwarranted assessments on lot owners.

Suits were filed on the basis of these complaints against a number of associations and the attorney general's staff instituted a study of cemetery laws in other states. The new code was drawn after the survey disclosed no state had a comprehensive law in effect.

The proposed Illinois code would exempt specifically from its provisions cemeteries operated by municipal and religious corporations as well as private and family burial plots. All new cemeteries would be required to organize as not for profit corporations, but all cemeteries now organized and operating would be subject to the provisions and penalties of the new act.

Bans Retroactive Rules

The code provides that rules in effect at the time a lot is sold must be printed on the deed and on the purchase contract and that no rules made after the date of purchase can be made to apply retroactively. Barrett stressed the importance of this provision. He said cemeteries had enacted new rules and regulations applicable to lots purchased as long ago as 30 years, that in some cases cemetery corporations had made rules requiring lot owners to buy tombstones from specified dealers, and that lot owners had been required to pay assessments for various purposes on the threat that no new graves could be opened in the lots or that titles to lots might be forfeited.

Another important provision of the act, Barrett said, would prohibit cemetery associations from making or requiring any involuntary assessments, contributions, payments, or charges from a lot owner over and above the original purchase price.

Loans from Funds Barred

Other provisions would bar making of loans to directors, officers, or trustees of a cemetery association out of cemetery or perpetual care funds and prohibit any cemetery official from receiving any part of his salary from perpetual care funds; require the treasurer of a cemetery association to be bonded with a surety bond for double the amount of all funds under his control; and prevent purchase and sale of lots for speculative purpose. A cemetery operating as a perpetual care cemetery must establish certain safeguards to perpetual care funds.

The attorney general said the proposed code would fix a maximum charge of $5 for transfer of title for a cemetery lot.

Penalties provided in the code would be fines of not less than $100 nor more than $5,000, or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed six months, or both.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

★The GARDEN★

AN experiment combining food production, recreation, and scientific breeding principles is being conducted on the Wheaton farm. The farm workers, with the help of the Illinois department of conservation, are cultivating bass, bluegills, and other game fish instead of poultry, beef, or pork in this new test of production.

The three ponds on the farm, totaling 2½ to 3 acres, are connected by open canals and tiled ditches. All of the ponds were drained last October and the carp and bullheads which had infested the waters were seined out. All the carp were destroyed and the bullheads were transferred to a nearby stream. Less than six inches of water was left in the ponds all winter, insuring that the total aquatic population was killed by freezing.

Three Ponds Restocked

Now the ponds are again full of water after the spring thaws and rains. Last week George Kuhn of the Illinois department of conservation visited the farm and restocked all three of the ponds with breeder fish. Twenty large-mouth bass, four to six years old and weighing 2½ to 4½ pounds, were placed in the main pond. Fifty bluegills and the same number of crappies were placed in the center pond, and 13 crappies and 55 spotted bullheads were put in the Half Moon pond. The breeder bluegills weigh one-half to three-fourths of a pound and the crappies one to 1½ pounds. Screen barriers were placed across the canals which connect the ponds, so there will be no mixing of the species.

When these fish have been permanently established in the ponds, farm employes will be encouraged to engage in hook and line fishing. No fishing should be permitted this season, according to Sam Parr, superintendent of the conservation department's division of fisheries. Spawning beds, made of wooden frames, will be sunk into the shallow water around the edge of the big pond for the bass.

Stable Water Level

One of the obligations of the farm workers for the next few weeks will be that of maintaining a fairly stable water level in the ponds to insure the best possible spawning conditions for the bass and other fish. Bass normally spawn in May and early June in northern Illinois, but because of the warm weather this spring probably will start spawning the latter part of this month. The major danger to spawning success is that of a fluctuating water level.

If the fish spawn successfully this season, fishing success should be insured next year. Fish scientists now recognize that one of the major factors in maintaining good fishing in a lake or pond is that of "cropping" the excess fish population each year. The farm residents will be glad to coöperate with this phase of the program by catching and delivering to their kitchens as many of the game fish as they can next summer.

GIRL WHO TURNED GAS ON MOTHER GETS PROBATION

Bernice Reynolds, 16, of 629 Fox st., Aurora, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Judge Charles A. O'Connor in Kane county Circuit court at Geneva on her plea of guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Another charge of assault with intent to murder was quashed. Bernice was indicted on both charges after she turned on all the burners in the gas stove in her home, where her mother, Mrs. Lottie Reynolds, 39, was sleeping, last Feb. 5. Mrs. Reynolds was revived by an inhalator squad after another daughter, Dorothy, 18, discovered her semi-conscious when she returned to the house a short time later.

Bernice was paroled to Mrs. Pearl Rayburn, chief probation officer of the children's department of the Kane county court, with the understanding that she will be placed elsewhere than in her own home.

BUNDLE OF 350,000 BOGUS GASOLINE COUPONS FOUND

Workmen for the Material Service corporation, cleaning up rubble near the canal at 33d st. and Racine av. yesterday, found a bundle of 350,000 counterfeit T gasoline ration coupons.

The counterfeit coupons, Rae E. Walters, regional office of price administration director, said, would be worth $350,000, or $1 each on the black market, except for one thing: They would not have become valid until Oct. 1. Legitimate coupons for the same period, Walters said, haven't even been printed yet.

FOOD VIOLATION COSTS CHEESE FIRM $1,000 FINE

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday fined the Ehrat Cheese company, 33 W. Kinzie st., $1,000 and costs on its plea of guilty to a criminal information charging violation of the pure food and drug law by sending adulterated cheese thru interstate commerce. The sentence was imposed after the pure food and drug administration had recommended a fine of $50 on each of four counts. Judge Barnes observed that such a light fine would make prosecution of the offenders a waste of time.

URGE PRICE HIKE AS A WAY TO END MEAT SHORTAGE

Washington, D. C., April 16 (AP)—The suggestion that consumers are able to pay more for their food, consequently beef cattle producers should be given higher price ceilings, was given to the senate agriculture committee today.

But some members of the senatorial group studying food shortages expressed belief that government relief for the industry should take the form of subsidies to producers rather than higher prices.

J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, however, said he couldn't reconcile having the government pay people's grocery bills in a period of "unusual prosperity and high wages."

Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] of the committee said that if retail prices of beef products were increased, people on salaries and wages probably would complain. He also feared that higher consumer prices would bring heavy pressure upon the administration to ease its "hold the line" stabilization policy.

THE ADDRESS TO CONGRESS

President Truman's address to congress and thru congress to the nation was distinguished for dignity and candor. His primary purpose must have been to make it abundantly clear to our enemies that America's war policy remains unchanged. The officers commanding our troops will not be disturbed. The determination to fight until complete victory is won has not been relaxed. If Hitler or Suzuki allowed himself to hope that fate had intervened in his behalf, the hope has now vanished. Mr. Truman closed the door to a peace of compromise and locked it.

The President wished, also, to reassure our allies that there will be no sharp break in foreign policy. His administration will continue to seek means of coöperating with other nations for the preservation of peace. He made it clear that the decision against postponing the San Francisco conference was his. It remains to be seen, of course, whether Mr. Truman will feel bound to carry out every private arrangement which his predecessor may have accepted at Yalta and in previous conferences.

Mr. Truman's references to congress have been particularly well received. Plainly he has great confidence in his former colleagues of the legislative branch, great affection for them, and great pride in the part which congress should always play in the national government. The new President made it clear that he intends to respect the division of powers laid down in the Constitution.

For these reasons, among others, the speech made a most favorable impression, evidencing directness of thought, candor of expression, and honesty of purpose. It was a most auspicious opening of what we all hope will be a distinguished chapter in the history of our country.

FRENCH EXPROPRIATION

Jean Couillard of the De Gaulle ministry of finance estimates that private property confiscated or sequestered from those adjudged collaborationists will run into the billions. It has been taken over by the state and some part of it will be liquidated on the most advantageous terms that can be obtained. Other properties, such as the huge Renault motor works, have been nationalized and apparently are to be operated with profits going to the state. The number of Frenchmen convicted and stripped of their property up to a month ago was 8,132. The process is continuing.

While this was going on a lend-lease agreement for 2½ billion dollars was negotiated with France. Among the aid this country is giving the De Gaulle government are 900 million dollars' worth of long-life articles such as locomotives, railroad cars, merchant ships, harbor watercraft, metal working machinery, industrial equipment, machinery for mines, and similar heavy equipment.

Meanwhile, lend-lease generally has been extended to allow three years in which to fulfill additional commitments entered before June 30, 1946. An extremely odd situation is thus presented. We find the French provisional government doing a thoro job of confiscating for the state from the French citizen, while Washington with equal fervor confiscates, again for the benefit of France, from the American citizen. There is not even the dubious satisfaction for American taxpayers of keeping the loot at home when the American submits to being stripped. The Frenchmen who is plucked at least has that compensation.

It might be thought that if the French state is proving so expert at confiscation, our government might let up on Americans and let Gen. de Gaulle forcibly borrow enough from his countrymen to take care of France's needs.

AMERICANS ALL

Sgt. Walter [Pop] Hall, a 48 year old veteran of the first World war, is one of Chicago's Negro heroes. Driving a tank bulldozer, he filled in a badly cratered road to permit a tank column to deploy at Beveland, in the Schelde estuary, and then knocked out a German 88 millimeter gun. His commander called him the outstanding man in the battle. Another middle western Negro hero, Capt. Charles L. Wilson of Detroit, won the distinguished service cross as a tank commander in France.

Strictly speaking, there isn't an American race, unless it's the Indians, but the millions of men in our army and navy are Americans all, altho their ancestry may represent almost every race on the face of the earth. The Germans and Japanese both had notions of racial superiority, but they've just about learned the last of their lesson. They've met the Americans.

The ancestors of John Basilone, killed at Iwo Jima, came from Italy, but he won the congressional medal, the highest honor an American can receive, at Guadalcanal. Lt. Alex Vraciu, fighter pilot of East Chicago, Ind., bears a Romanian name, but he shot down 19 Jap planes for America to win the navy cross. The seven Nevarez brothers of Los Angeles are of Mexican descent, but all are in the navy. Pvt. Felix B. Mestas Jr. of La Veta, Colo., a Spanish-American, killed 24 Germans before he himself was killed at Battle mountain, in Italy.

The 3d armored division drove deep into Germany with its commander at the head of the column. The commander, who gave his life, was Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, son of a rabbi in Denver. One of the seven Japanese-Americans of the heroic 100th infantry battalion to win the distinguished service cross at a single ceremony in France was Pvt. Kiichi Koda of Waipahu, Oahu. He was killed leading his squad against a German machine gun nest. One of the six men who raised the American flag above Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima was Pvt. Rene A. Gagnon, a second generation American of French-Canadian descent.

Sgt. Jose Calugas, a Filipino, won the congressional medal on Bataan. The same award went to Lt. Joseph R. Sarnoski, who shot down two Jap planes while dying of wounds. Brig. Gen. Leif J. Sverdrup of St. Louis won the distinguished service cross in seizing Lingayen air field. Tech. Sgt. Charles E. [Commando] Kelly, hero of the Rapido river battle in Italy, was granted the congressional medal. Maj. Richard I. Bong of Swedish descent is the leading American ace with 40 downed Japanese planes, while the leading ace in the European theater is Lt. Col. John C. Meyer, who has shot down 24 planes. Lt. Edward H. [Butch] O'Hare won the congressional medal by downing five Jap bombers in a single fight. Later he was killed in action.

Even the names of our top commanders reflect this variety of ancestry—Eisenhower, Spaatz, MacArthur, and Nimitz, for example.

Perhaps the most moving memorial address of the war was that delivered over the graves of the heroes who fell on Iwo Jima by Chaplain Roland B. Gittelsohn. He said, "Here lie men who love America because their ancestors generations ago helped in her founding, and other men who loved her with equal passion because they themselves or their own fathers escaped from oppression to her blessed shores. Here lie officers and men, Negroes and whites, rich men and poor—together. Here are Protestants, Catholics, and Jews—together. . . . Here there are no quotas of how many from each group are admitted or allowed. Among these men there is no discrimination. No prejudices. No hatred. Theirs is the highest and purest democracy."

WINNING AND GIVING AWAY

When President Wilson consented to the Japanese mandate over the Marshall Islands and Secretary Hughes, three years later, negotiated with Balfour the sinking of the American navy, the stage was set for Pearl Harbor.

It is not impossible, of course, that Japan would have risked war with the United States in any event, but the disaster that opened the war and opened likewise the floodgates of Japanese conquest would not have happened had we not diminished our naval strength and permitted the Japs to hold bases from which to attack what we retained. Lacking the advantages given by ineffective American statesmanship, Japan might well have considered the risk too great.

Congress has before it resolutions demanding that the United States retain the bases wrested from the Japanese, which have made assault on the home islands of the enemy possible. And Adm. King has warned the nation of the folly of sacrificing our navy again as we did after the last war. He asks, "How long can the United States afford to continue a cycle of fighting and building, and winning and giving away, only to fight and build and win and give away again?"

The answer is obvious. Surely our representatives will not again be so nearsighted as to leave these islands out of our possession and full sovereignty, or to sink the navy which has won the war on both oceans. Congress appreciates the folly of our past course, and so do the people. They know what the islands have cost us. The price is written in the casualty lists from the Pacific, and in the martyrdom on Bataan and Corregidor.

It is immaterial what the nation decides to do about a world security organization. No congress of diplomats can give us the security in the Pacific that an adequate navy, with adequate bases, will provide. Other nations are founding their policies on the principle that the world security organization may be all right, provided they keep themselves militarily strong. We are told, indeed, that we must not question Stalin's dispositions in eastern Europe for fear that he may cold shoulder the world league. Mr. Churchill proceeds with his declared purpose not to preside over the liquidation of the British empire, and in deference to that purpose the Atlantic Charter becomes a fainter and fainter echo of empty words.

The only people in favor of an American policy of perpetually giving away what we win are our own internationalists. In the face of history and of the present actions of our allies, they cannot persist in their proposals to yield what we have won in the Pacific without proving themselves false to their country.

Editorial of the Day

MAGNANIMOUS MR. ICKES

[Hartford (Conn.) Courant]

The chairman of the house appropriations subcommittee on the interior department, Rep. Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, has long been a thorn in the flesh of Secretary Harold Ickes. They have heartily disagreed on more than one occasion over the amount of money necessary to operate the department. Rep. Johnson has not hesitated to whip out his paring knife and slash considerable amounts from requests submitted by Mr. Ickes. But the self-appointed curmudgeon of the administration is not one to show ill will toward his congressional critic. He has now, according to Mr. Johnson, persuaded the President to "promote" the Oklahoman to the bench of the Customs court in New York. This wholly unsolicited offer of a judgeship posed a difficult question for Mr. Johnson, the slasher of Mr. Ickes' budget requests. He has resolved the issue by accepting the nomination.

It is probable that Rep. Johnson, now in his 10th term in the house, could have continued for many years to serve his constituents. But who would prefer the boisterous, tempestuous, trying life of a congressman to that of a judge, secure for life in a $10,000 a year position? It was, indeed, a very tempting bait that was dangled before Mr. Johnson. And, of course, Mr. Ickes is so interested in the maintenance of the high standards of the federal judiciary that he could willingly welcome this "promotion" for one of his arch critics. Such solicitude for Mr. Johnson's future career is moving, if not above suspicion.

BATTLEFIELDS OF YORE.

The rising tide of allied victory floods the theaters of ancient wars as it sweeps over Germany. Which of such battlefields of yore, we wondered, bear names that are associated with momentous changes in the currents of history? To refresh our memory we turned to Creasy's classic, "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World," and found only two: Teutoburger Wald, discussed in this column recently, and Blenheim.

* * *

A longer list, however, may be found in J. F. C. Fuller's "Decisive Battles: Their Influence Upon History and Civilization," written in 1939. Fuller cites ten such fields in Germany: Teutoburger Wald, Lützen with Breitenfeld as a companion piece; Blenheim with the Schellenberg as a curtain-raiser; Rossbach and Leuthen, considered together; Jena, Leipzig, and Tannenberg.

* * *

The American and British advance has already engulfed the scenes of Teutoburger Wald and Jena, and threatens several historic areas around Leipzig. The Russians have marched over the Tannenberg region in East Prussia, where they suffered a tremendous defeat in World War I., and the field of Leuthen in Silesia.

* * *

Lützen and Breitenfeld were fought near Leipzig; there Gustavus Adolphus with Swedish and Saxon troops defeated German Roman Catholic armies in the Thirty Years' war. The famous battle that bears the name of Leipzig and caused the erection of a great memorial near the city was a defeat of Napoleon by Prussians, Austrians, and Swedes.

* * *

Blenheim and the Schellenberg were fought in Bavaria, on the Danube north of Augsburg, in the war of the Spanish Succession, when British and Austrian allies under great commanders, Marlborough, ancestor of Winston Churchill, and Prince Eugene of Savoy, triumphed over a French invasion. The name of Blenheim is carried as a battle honor on the flags of certain British regiments.

* * *

Rossbach and Leuthen were victories of Frederick the Great of Prussia over French, Germany, and Austrian allies. The former was fought near Leipzig; the latter near Breslau.

WORLD OF TOMORROW

Today decides tomorrow's destiny.
We can reiterate old strife and error,
Or we can build a world triumphantly,
Unsullied by the scourge of hate and terror,
A world whose shining skyward towers would Reject old framework of discarded wrong,
A world of lasting peace and brotherhood,
A world of beauty and exuberant song.

Choose wisely, man. The coming era waits.
May it attain that blessed human goal
Achieved by men who let their nobler traits
Express the latent goodness of the soul.
Across the golden dawning now is hurled

Speaking of War Cries

A recent dispatch from Okinawa puzzled this column and caused us to suspect a typographical error. It stated that a group of Japs charged, but instead of yelling "banzai" they used a marine corps word, "bung ho." This caused the marines to say, "We'll bung ho them," and so they did.

There is no "bung ho" in a recent and official glossary of marine corps slang. There is, however, "pungyo," a Chinese word for comrade or buddy, which doesn't sound like a war cry. If the United States marines have ever picked up any Hindu expressions, they may have adopted "rung ho," which means "hurrah," "attaboy," or "go in and win." Anyway, we have marked "bung ho" as doubtful.

WILD CURRANT

Wild currant is out!
Now Caution, in retreat,
Calls her harrowing handmaids off—
Pale Sorrow and Dull Care,
And all their blighting troupe;
There is a magic in this wooded scent
They cannot bear!
Those kin to wild things only
Dare invite the secret spell,
And, briefly mad, take April's hand
And dance in beauty
When the wild currant blows!

What will the Yanks find when they get to Jueterbog? Well, it's a little old town on a vast, sandy, hillocky plain with only a straggly growth of purple heather for scenery. On this wasteland the German army of the imperial regime held its field artillery practice with live shells, and there was keen competition among the batteries. So you can call Jueterbog the Fort Sill, Okla., of Germany.

T. Y. writes: "How is it decided which parent shall receive a son's gratuity pay?"

Gratuity pay is divided equally between the parents.

J. B. writes: "My son was killed when struck by an automobile when on a 48 hour pass away from his station. As his dependent am I barred from benefits because he was away from camp and on pass?"

No. Injury or disease during military service will be deemed to have occurred in line of duty and whether on active duty or authorized leave unless it was the result of wilful misconduct.

V. L. S. writes: "Can creditors collect any part of the insurance benefits and pension that I now receive as the result of my husband's death in action?"

They cannot. Payments of benefits due or to become due are not assignable, are exempt from taxation, claims of creditors, and not liable to attachment, levy, or seizure under any legal or equitable process whatever either before or after receipt by the beneficiary. This provision does not apply to claims of the United States, nor does the tax exemption extend to property bought out of such payments.

A. R. writes: "What is the maximum loan a veteran can obtain from the farm security administration for operation of a farm?"

If the loan is for the purpose of buying seed, fertilizer, tools, machinery, or livestock, the maximum is $2,500 payable in one to five years at 5%.

BLADDER TRAINING

CHILDREN can be taught to control the bladder early in life by painstaking supervision. At the age of 12 months, some can regulate this action during the day. The majority of tots are "housebroken" by the following year. If bedwetting persists after the end of the third year, the trouble is called "enuresis." The term should not be applied to the youngster who has an accident after great excitement, rage, fear, pain, or during illness.

The causes are twofold. Occasionally irritation of the urinary passageways may be responsible, brought on by infection not only within this system but also about the pelvic region. Rectal disorders, including pinworms, may be the basis.

The intake of liquids must be considered. The bladder fills quickly in those who drink excessively. On the other hand, the urine in youngsters consuming small amounts may be highly concentrated and acid in nature. Irritation is aggravated by certain types of food and there is an uncontrolable urge to pass water.

Perhaps the most important influence is habit, resulting from inadequate training. Many parents prefer to blame it on "weak kidneys" or inheritance rather than on themselves. Punishment is seldom successful and may make the victim more irritable and less coöperative. Harsh methods of discipline often bring out resentment or hostility which is expressed thru continued wetting.

Many psychological factors serve to aggravate emotional tension which in turn intensifies bladder contractions. A common situation is the birth of a brother or sister. Apparently junior unconsciously desires to remain "the baby" as other conditions such as the notion to drink milk from the bottle, be fed, or go in for "baby talk" may be observed along with enuresis.

Not infrequently the home environment needs adjustment. The child must feel safe, which he cannot do if father and mother are bickering constantly. We can well understand how personality problems can arise with such a background.

Treatment should always include a thoro physical examination and a study of the urine. If everything is normal, a careful training regime is advised. The victim should not drink liquids after 4 p. m. and semi-solid foods are avoided at supper. During the day, regular periods should be set aside for the passage of fluids. By increasing the length of time between the act, the bladder enlarges gradually. At night the same procedure may be pursued. Every three hours the lad should be awakened until the symptom disappears. Under this plan, effective results can often be obtained within a few weeks. It means an added hardship for the parents but the end fully justifies the sacrifice.

If not checked, the difficulty lasts until the sixth or seventh year. Occasionally it continues well into adulthood. Now and then it returns years later, if the normal routine of life is disrupted suddenly.

NOT ALWAYS SERIOUS

H. S. writes: Does every one have albumin in the urine at some time or other?

REPLY

Yes. It may follow vigorous exercise, dietary indiscretions, or be associated with fever. It is also present in the urine of certain individuals during the day time but not at night [orthostatic].

TOO YOUNG

K. C. writes: Is it all right for a child 2½ years old to go to the movies?

REPLY

Are you having "sitter" trouble, too? I doubt if children of this age appreciate movies and, furthermore, they are more susceptible to infection.

TOE DEFECT

A. W. writes: Are there any simple measures to reduce the discomfort of a hammertoe?

REPLY

If proper padding and well fitting shoes do not give relief, surgery may be necessary.

In preparation for our armies' approach to the Alps, the American home front is now yodeling "O-le-ohhhhh!" . . . A well known Chicago av. restaurant displays the slogan, "Be Served with a Smile," but it is assumed that the patrons will still wistfully prefer meat. . . . She Proved the Point

The matron observed on the bus by Neil McCarthy was dozing comfortably. In her lap lay the book, "How Never to Be Tired."

Reward

A seaman in the coast guard wrote from Greenland to ask that a favor be done for a young singer in whom one of his superior officers is interested. He said he would be most appreciative. "Who knows," he wrote, "but that this may result in my becoming at least a commander—when all I'm striking for is a double breasted pinstripe suit."

Mitch Gets There

[Letter from a flyer in the Pacific to his mother in Chicago.]

"At last Mitch is on his way. He should arrive within three weeks. Now to tell you what to do with him: He has ticks, and these should be picked off. They got on him while he was in quarantine, and we never had the time to make sure all were picked off.

"Within his doghouse or on him I have sent the following articles: A leather collar and leash with one of my old dog tags fastened on the collar, an army blanket, his eating and drinking pans [a can and a tin plate], and enough food for four weeks. I don't think he'll have any food left when he arrives, but don't worry about his being thin. It is better that he be a little lean.

"For some time he has been penned. Please be careful that he doesn't get lost. He actually has no knowledge of city life, traffic, grass, or fireplugs, and women are virtual strangers to him. The only woman he has known was a WAC. He made a big fuss over her, so I imagine you'll get along.

"Mitch's full name is Bill B. Mitchell. The B stands for his uncertain parentage. I found him June 11 while going thru gunnery school when he was just a month or two old. In the first few weeks with me he became used to all kinds of gunfire, both in the air and on the ground.

"When we completed training and went down under to Makin, he went right with us. I gave him sleeping pills and took him aboard the plane in a bag. It was a two day trip, but he stood it as well as any of us. Down there he went everywhere with me when I was only flying local, but when we went on missions I'd ground him, for several crews in the squadron who flew their dogs with them on missions had bad luck. They were shot down.

"It was a long flight back this time, and we stopped at two different islands on the way. It was funny to watch Mitch each time we took off. He seemed to sense we were going somewhere and would not return, for he always was waiting and ready to climb aboard long before we were.

"Well, Mom, I hope Mitch won't be too much bother for you. He is, or was, plane broken and housebroken. The trick he can still do is to shake hands with his right paw. Don't let him give you his left. I did have him saying his prayers. He did this by sitting on his haunches and placing his two front paws and head on the edge of my cot. He could sit up and beg, too, but he has forgotten both of these. If you wish, you can try to reteach him.

"Really, Mom, I hated to see him ship off this morning, but the little feller will be better off with you. Many a night he has eaten the only piece of meat on my plate, and I don't want him to go thru that again. . . . He should arrive shortly after you get this letter. Then you'll see the cutest and rightest dog that ever was in the central Pacific area."

CONDONING ADULTERY

IN THE PACIFIC, March 28—We, as married men and soldiers of the United States army, object to a recent ruling of Atty. Gen. John E. Martin of Wisconsin. He finds that the unfaithful wife of a soldier serving overseas may "terminate legally the parental rights to an illegitimate child without the knowledge of her husband."

This is piling injustice on injustice. The office of dependency benefits has ruled that a soldier husband must furnish an allotment to a wife even tho it may be proven she is unfaithful in a thousand instances. The ruling of Atty. Gen. Martin is a further step in a legal process that has taken more and more rights and liberties from those who are fighting for them and indirectly condones and encourages adultery in the lives of service wives.

The German nation encourages such immorality in its women on the premise that a child is a potential soldier for the reich and soldiers are wanted at any price. We, as soldiers and husbands, condemn such women and any or all authorities that encourage immorality even indirectly. Such a ruling makes it possible for the soldier's wife to commit adultery and hide her offense by disposing of the child unknown to her husband and with full sanction of law. If this is what we are fighting for we regret the two and a half years we have served overseas while our legal representatives encourage infidelity in the wives of service men.

This is not being written from selfish motivation because we distrust our wives. This is being written because we object to the extra-marital activities of unworthy wives and to representatives who give them legal protection and assistance while they practice adultery.

WHAT BRITISH NAVAL UNITS?

Chicago, April 12—"The facts are plain" says the Tribune editorial of April 12. "Britain needs us, but we do not need Britain."

How quickly we forget. In September, 1940, the United States and the rest of the world prayed that the British would give them time and their prayers were answered by the miracle of London.

As to the Pacific, have you forgotten that Pearl Harbor virtually destroyed the Pacific fleet of the United States leaving the burden of defense with the British navy units?

The facts are plain to those who wish to read them.

THE BEGGARS ON OUR DOORSTEP

Baileyville, Ill., April 10—I hear news commentators assert that we must take care of the occupied countries after this war is over.

Why? Were we of the United States responsible for the condition in which they have found themselves? Those countries have fought among themselves for the last thousand years, and human nature being what it is, they will fight for the next thousand or more.

If my neighbor bankrupts himself by drinking and carousing around, is it mandatory on me to bankrupt myself to save him, when he will turn around and do the same thing all over again as soon as he gets on his feet?

If Germany is responsible for the condition the countries of Europe find themselves in, then let Germany do the paying, if it takes the next thousand years for them to do so. Maybe it will keep them from making war again and also be an example for any other country that might get the same ambitions in the future.

One thing is certain. The United States cannot carry Russia, Great Britain, France, Holand, Belgium, Poland, Italy, Greece, China, Australia, and the hundred and one other countries on its financial shoulders, unless we wish to strip ourselves of all our natural resources, and then be at the mercy of a friendly, peace loving Europe.

R. W. SWEARINGEN.

FIGHTING THEIR WAR.

St. Paul, Minn., April 10—It is about time that the American people woke up to the fact that they are being sold down the river to save Europe. We have fought and financed and won the war for them and now they want us to rebuild their countries for them. They can say what they want but we were fighting their war, not ours.

This country got along fine up to 1917 when we were pulled into World War I, and now we are in War II. We were told we were fighting to get rid of the dictators but we are setting up a bigger and worse one than we have licked.

The talk now is about a world peace governed by peace loving nations. I would like to know who the peace loving nations are, outside of the United States.

Let's get back to the good old days when we minded our own business.

The Illinois limitation period is five years on oral agreements and 10 years on written contracts, but a creditor might claim that the period had been extended by part payment or a new promise. Hence, it is not practicable to name a definite date for destroying receipts. The decision will depend on the nature of the debt and the reputation of the creditor, as bearing on the practical probability that future claim may be made.

TEEN-AGED PAIR KIDNAP AND RAPE SOLDIER'S BRIDE

Two teen-age boys who had just raped the 18 year old bride of a soldier in a stolen car, and were still struggling with her, were arrested early yesterday by Morton Grove highway police in Thatcher av. near Montrose av. The girl had been seized and dragged into the car an hour earlier in the 6200 block in Irving Park rd.

Those held are Richard Gibbons, 17, of 331 S. Bell av. and James Bailey, 15, of 334 S. Western av. Police said both admitted raping the girl and that Gibbons admitted the theft of the car.

Also held is Patsy Tardi, 13, of 2848 Arthington st., who was with Gibbons and Bailey but who, according to police, took no part in the attack on the girl.

Doctor Confirms Rape Story

The girl, who was married five weeks ago to a soldier now stationed in Georgia, told her story to Deputy Sheriff Leonard Hurwitz of the county highway police after she had been examined at Westlake hospital in Melrose Park by Dr. Edmund Brust. He confirmed her statement that she had been raped.

She said her sister visited her Sunday at the home of her husband's parents. At 11:45 p. m., she said, she accompanied her sister to Melvina av. and Irving Park rd., where her sister caught a street car. While waiting for the car, she said, she noticed an automobile parked near the intersection.

As she started to walk home, she said, the car pulled alongside and one of the occupants got out. He asked how to get to Fullerton av., she added, then forced her into the car, which was driven rapidly to the spot where Gibbons and Bailey attacked her after threatening her with a nine inch knife.

Try to Steal Her Rings

Then, the girl continued, they ordered her to take off her wedding and engagement rings. As she was struggling to keep them, Hurwitz and Deputy Sheriff William Pottow drove up alongside the parked car.

Gibbons and Bailey were turned over to Lt. John Kelly of the state's attorney's police, and were questioned yesterday by Assistant State's Atty. Sam Papanek. Tardi was placed in the juvenile home.

The car in which the attack took place was stolen earlier Sunday evening at Western and Gladys avs. from Henry C. Rehn, owner of the D. & R. Special delivery service at 1315 Van Buren st., by whom Gibbons formerly was employed.

COUNTY POLICE 'ALERTED' FOR VOTING TODAY

Ninety-seven Cook county municipalities will hold elections today. Many of them have unopposed "harmony" tickets, but in a few the contests were so lively that Sheriff Mulcahy yesterday ordered the full strength of the county police force to be ready for duty.

Chief John J. McGinnis was assigned to Calumet City, night life center, where Mayor Jaranowski, long a political power, is opposed by Frank L. Kaminiski, running on the United Voters ticket.

Close contests are looked for in Skokie, where President Blameuser, Republican township chairman, is opposed by John W. Wuerth, reported to have the Democratic township chairman's support; Maywood, with three candidates for president; and Waukegan, which is one of 19 Lake county municipalities holding elections.

Other suburbs with contests include: Evergreen Park, which also will vote on a 2 mill library tax; Niles, Bartlett, Bensenville, Wheeling, Park Ridge, River Grove, Lansing, Glenwood, South Chicago Heights, Northbrook, Glenview, Westchester, Riverside, La Grange, Western Springs, Morton Grove, Elmwood Park, Hinsdale, Elmhurst, Lockport, Blue Island, Des Plaines, and Barrington.

ILLINOIS UNIONS URGE ASSEMBLY TO KILL CON CON

The Illinois State Federation of Labor yesterday urged legislators to vote against the resolution favoring a constitutional convention to revise Illinois' basic law of 1870. This measure has the indorsement of Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly, but most of the rooting is being done by radical elements and professors.

Altho the resolution was recommended for adoption by the house executive committee last week, some of those voting for it said they would vote against it on the floor.

President R. G. Soderstrom of the IFL in letters to legislators pointed out that neither the Republican nor Democratic state party conventions last year declared for general revision of the constitution.

Opposition to "con con" by the labor federation represents more than 600,000 wage earners, Soderstrom said. The IFL feels that no general constitutional revision should be attempted for at least five years after the war, he said.

THE QUESTION

Why would you like to live at least 25 years longer?

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS

Benjamin B. Shapiro, consulting engineer, 401 Gregory av., Wilmette — After President Roosevelt's sudden death I'm very anxious to know what's going to occur in world affairs. Many things will be different from what they would have been and I want to be on this earth to witness them.

S. J. Hamele, credit manager, 320 S. Clark st. — Because I enjoy life. I have my friends and family that I'm interested in. I don't know what's going to happen to me when I die. Tho religion has taught us of a life beyond, no one really knows. Since I don't know what's on the other side, I'd just as soon stay here.

Henry Kahl, accountant, Detroit, Mich. — Because I'm enjoying life I would like to continue living at least another 25 years. I have two children and I'd like to take care of them and watch them grow up. This is the only life I have ever known and I'd like to hang onto it because I like it.

Walter Berenson, 10, of 2205 Lowell av. — I want to live 25 more years, at least, so I will be old enough to join the marine corps. I want to be a marine flyer. I wish I were old enough right now but since I'm not I'll just have to be content to hope that some day I will be old enough to get my wish.

Mrs. Richard Stagman, clerk, 4530 Malden av. — For one thing I'd like to be alive after victory to see what living will be like in a world of peace. The second reason is that I'd like to prove to my husband that I'm a good cook. I'm such a poor one now that I'm sure it will take me 25 years to learn.

A full page color photo of President Truman, reproduced in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, was framed and hung near the bulletin board of the Chicago service men's center in the Auditorium hotel. Activities at this center and in the center at 176 W. Washington st. returned to normal Sunday afternoon after three days of quiet in respect to the memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

VOTING PUZZLE IN LYONS; COURT OVERRULES 'INS'

Voters in Lyons did not know last night whether the ballot for the village election today would carry only the ticket of the party in office, the Progressive Citizens, or whether the local election board would decide at the last minute to obey the rulings of three judges and restore the Regular Peoples' candidates.

Judge Joseph A. Graber in Superior court yesterday denied a motion to stay his order of last Thursday directing the board to reinstate the Peoples' slate. Joseph Bulger, village attorney, was not in court. Reached by telephone, he would not say what names would be on the ballot.

Judge Graber said if the Peoples' candidates were left off the ballot he would order the board members before him tomorrow. "I know what I can do to enforce my order," the judge said.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher previously had ruled against the board's invalidating the Peoples' ticket.

INSIGNIA RULES FOR YANKS BACK IN U. S. ARE TOLD

Until his assignment to a unit in this country, a soldier returned from duty overseas is authorized to wear his overseas insignia on the left shoulder, Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general of the 6th service command, explained yesterday. Upon assignment to a unit serving within the United States, the soldier will wear the insignia of his new outfit on his left shoulder and will be permitted, altho not required, to wear the overseas insignia on the right shoulder.

BACK BENSON FOR BRANDON'S WELFARE POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 16—Gov. Green was flooded today with telegrams from Republican county chairmen asking that Arnold P. Benson, former president pro tem of the state senate, be appointed director of public welfare to replace Rodney H. Brandon.

Alfred Schupp of Joliet, Will county chairman, who has played an inside role in Republican politics during the Green administration, wired copies to the other chairmen to the effect that Benson would make a good director of welfare.

A member of the governor's staff said that seemingly every county chairman had sent a telegram and that they were solidly against retaining Brandon. State committeemen also joined in the opposition with telegrams to the governor.

Green last week declined to withdraw Brandon's renomination after the director's retirement had been asked by a senate Republican caucus and by the executive committee of the Republican County Chairmen's association.

Benson of Kane county now is assistant state treasurer.

"BARK" is the noise made by dogs that don't bite. "Bark" is also the tough external covering of a tree. Bark, you see, is one of those words with more than one meaning.

Drama League Has Busy Few Weeks Ahead

BY JUDITH CASS

THE Chicago Drama league, whose membership list has been closed since the first of the year, will have a busy few weeks before the end of the current season is observed in the annual meeting planned for the middle of May. The league now has a membership of about 855, with 40 or more on the waiting list. In addition to giving entertaining morning programs and breakfast parties, the league supplies members with front row center seats to current theatrical productions.

About 100 members will be down front at tonight's performance of "Dear Ruth," which opened last night in the Harris theater. The Edwin A. Seipps, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Goltra; Mrs. Alvin W. Jenkisson, president of the league; Mrs. Carl W. Defebaugh, Mrs. Harry Kirk, and Miss Cornelia Conger are some of the members who obtained choice seats thru the league for tonight.

Another 100 will see tomorrow's matinee, and the same number of seats have been obtained for duplicate performances next week. Members also will see "Sing Out Sweet Land" on the 25th and 28th, and blocks of tickets to three performances of "Othello," May 2, 8, and 15, will be available.

One reason the organization, now in its third decade, has stabilized its membership growth is the difficulty of handling increasing numbers at its programs and luncheons. One hundred and twenty-five members are expected in the Arts club at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow to hear Maxine Stetson in a play review of "I Remember Mama." Among those who will stay to luncheon afterward are Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett, Mrs. Ira Humphrey, Mrs. Laban J. Brady, Mrs. Lessing Rosenwald, and Miss Anita McDermott.

On the Calendar

The committee in charge of a benefit party, "Cocktails for Campers," which the North Shore Junior board of Northwestern university settlement will give May 4 in the Racquet club, will discuss plans at the board's annual spring tea this afternoon in the home of Mrs. George F. Falley of Evanston. Her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Galt, is on the committee.

The proceeds of the party will go to the settlement's summer camp. Some of those working on the benefit are Mrs. Ralph Condee, Mrs. George B. Everitt Jr., Mrs. Loren B. Gordon, Mrs. Henry H. Hixon Jr., and Mrs. Filipp Kreisl. Mrs. J. Hayden Macdonald is chairman.

Miss Harriett Vittum, head resident of the settlement, will speak before the settlement's Evanston board at its monthly meeting today in the Evanston home of Mrs. John E. Wilder.

Members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations are looking forward to a luncheon meeting tomorrow in the La Salle hotel at which Dr. T. Z. Koo, adviser to the Chinese delegation to the San Francisco conference, will speak. Dr. Koo, who left Chungking in January after spending three years in Hong Kong and Shanghai, will give a "Report on China."

Today's Events

Mrs. Harry Dingman, who has served as president of the Cercle Francais for the last two years, will entertain her board members at luncheon in the Blackstone hotel today preceding the final program of the season. Jean Viala, French consul, and his wife will be among the luncheon guests, and Mr. Viala will speak at a meeting of club members this afternoon in the clubrooms in the Fine Arts building. Mrs. Cyril L. Ward is the Cercle's new president.

A luncheon today in the Casino club will open the 1945 membership enrollment drive of the Chicago Seeing Eye committee. Divisional chairmen, team chairmen, and workers on the enrollment committee will be present. Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. is chairman of the enrollment.

Moss Hart's Direction, Expert Cast, and Young Man Named Evers Make "Dear Ruth" a Hit

"DEAR RUTH"

Comedy by Norman Krasna, directed by Moss Hart, with a setting by Frederick Fox. Presented by Joseph M. Hyman and Bernard Hart in the Harris Monday evening, April 16, 1945.

THE CAST

Dora	Betty Burghardt
Mrs. Edith Wilkins	Leona Powers
Miriam Wilkins	Rosemary Rice
Judge Harry Wilkins	William Harrigan
Ruth Wilkins	Augusta Dabney
Lt. William Seawright	Herbert Evers
Albert Kummer	Leslie Litomy
Martha Seawright	Virginia Skinner
Sgt. Chuck Vincent	Jimmy Holden
Harold	Jimmy Phelan

In the no doubt tight little precincts of playgoing, there's nothing like a new hit in town to cheer up the citizenry, so permit me to echo the buzz of pleasure, the chortles of amusement, the occasional whoops of glee that welcomed "Dear Ruth" when it bowed last night at the Harris. It's no doubt true, as alleged in more statistical quarters, that this newest manifestation of the adolescent ego is the same old story retold, but what of it? It's delightfully done. Willie Howard is engaged on a series of tomes intended to prove there isn't a new joke in the world, but the discovery hasn't closed him up as a comic institution. It isn't the joke and never has been, but the way you tell it. And if "Dear Ruth" fails to duplicate in Chicago its overnight success in New York, berate me as a bum prophet. For I had a fine time at its debut.

It came at exactly the right moment. The town is in the mood for a fresh little comedy that lets you check your thinking cap at the door of laughter. Norman Krasna's story isn't a series of gags wisecracked into synthetic hilarity. It's a story of real people you like, and the direction is Moss Hart's best since the gala nights of "Lady in the Dark." There's affection in the laughter, and that is why "Dear Ruth" can't help being a hit.

Perhaps "Dear Ruth" started out to be another of those comedies centered on precocious adolescents with adult stooges that have flourished ever since playwrights saw Lenore Lonergan in "The Philadelphia Story." Sounds reasonable, because Lenore plays that part in New York and Rosemary Rice in our cast is following the general outlines of her phlegmatic style and figure. But the story got out of hand, at least in Chicago. The adults are stooges, at least by one crack actor, William Harrigan, and one ditto actress, Leona Powers, and it's a love story, as you know from the instant Herbert Evers makes his entrance.

Mr. Evers is something. As a gunner who after 25 overseas missions has a Long Island mission to live up to his "Dear Ruth" letters to Augusta Dabney, who is something herself, he is the romantic conception of the air corps in person, and a good actor to boot. The minute he walks in the door you know Ruth isn't going to be such a dope as to marry Albert, even tho it was little sister who signed her name to all those letters. Albert, deftly played by Leslie Litomy, is one of those irritating people who say "Not I" before the echo of your own "Not me" has had time to fade from the landscape.

I don't see why I should waste more of your time when you could even now be seeing about tickets. But you might like knowing that when Mr. Harrigan asks the lieutenant, "How are things in Italy?" he answers, succinctly, "Italian." And I would like knowing if when Mr. Hart returns from his own mission overseas he will direct me a maid like Betty Burghardt.

Exhibit of Art by Chicagoans Is Impressive

BY ELEANOR JEWETT

One of the important organizations in Chicago is the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptures. The association's current exhibition, which opened yesterday to the public at the Chicago Galleries, 215 N. Michigan av., is one of the finest it has ever had and by all odds one of the most brilliant and pleasing of the many shows scattered about town this month.

In the first gallery five paintings dominate the scene. The beautiful "Pink Cockatoos" by Karl Plath is superb. It is matched in masterly painting by Rudolph Ingerle's subtle portrait of his Siamese cat. "Contemplation" by Arnold Turtle is a delightful medley of color centering on the relaxed figure of a young girl; opposite it the vital, fresh, vigorous portrait by Winnifred Pleimling of "Mary Conwell as Muriel McComber in 'Ah Wilderness'" increases thru contrast its atmosphere of early spring, youth, and adventure. The well handled and amusing "Entrance to the Ring" by Eugenie Glamen, with its performing poodles and actors in costume, strikes a different note in this group of five distinctive canvases.

In the larger gallery the proportion of outstanding paintings is larger. Marie Blanke has perhaps the painting in the room with her beautiful study, "The Old Desk." Louis Grell has a very charming, an utterly lovely portrait in "Bettina," a painting one would like to own even in ignorance of the sitter. Macena Barton has a strong piece of work in "Portrait of My Mother," but it is a hard portrait, a frightening likeness. "The Stubborn Bull" by J. Jeffrey Grant is excellent. "Abundantia" by Julius Moessel is a huge, decorative canvas, a superb composition.

"Marilyn" by Oskar Gross is one of the loveliest portraits from his brush that we have seen in some time. "Still Life" by Edithe Jane Cassady is a brilliant scrap of a picture, an outstanding item, "A Blizzard" by Tunis Ponsen is nostalgic with its pump lonely in a blinding snow storm, and Gianni Clifone with "Vermont Covered Bridge" and Rudolph Ingerle with "Blue and Silver" portray two picturesque parts of our country with unfailing genius.

The exhibit will continue to May 5 and is well worth seeing.

A Wronged Child Needs Help to Regain Sense of Security

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Have you ever heard a man or woman, not a child but an adult years past the hurt he or she has sustained when young, talk bitterly about the favoritism shown a brother or sister? I would like to think that the parents or other loved grownups who practiced that form of cruelty didn't realize the lasting hurt they inflicted. Here is a letter in point:

When a child such as this little boy believes he has been thrust into the family background he seeks a way out. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have a problem about which I hope you can advise me.

"Two months ago my husband and I had to go away so I left my son, 26 months old, and my daughter, 15 months old, with my mother.

"Before my trip my son was a good and jolly child, especially with his sister. He always would give her his toys, pet her, and so forth. They got along fine. Now it's a nightmare.

"When we came back from our trip my son just stood, sucking his hands. When we started to talk he started to howl. As far as his sister is concerned, he hits her with anything, throws her around, and takes anything she has. He won't eat or do anything he's told. I'm really worried. I took him to a doctor, but he said there was nothing wrong with my son.

"Yesterday I met the woman who helps my mother. She told me that my mother made a great fuss over my daughter but didn't bother with my son at all when any one visited at the house. Mother kept Sonny in the background.

"Do you think that is what is wrong with him? I've tried everything. Scolded, spanked, given him all the attention, but nothing helps.

"Please, if you can, help me bring son back to his normal self and I'll be deeply indebted to you."

There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that the grandmother's treatment of the small boy, scarcely more than a baby himself, is responsible for his present behavior. He is bewildered and hurt. It has been a real emotional shock to be thrust aside for his baby sister. His world has wavered. His sense of security, if not gone, is threatened.

It will take time to make Sonny sure of his place in the sun again. He should not, for some time, be scolded or punished for anything he does, and I mean anything. He should not be reproved or frowned at. For a long while his precious sense of security, which has shrunken, must be warmed and nourished so that it will grow strong again—with loving words, stories told, approval expressed, and other devices sought to reassure him. Especially when there are visitors should he be given the feeling, "Here is my little son, whom I love and of whom I am proud."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bonniwell of the Seneca hotel announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Ensign Alfred H. Lupton III, of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lupton Jr. of Bridgeton, N. J. Miss Bonniwell attended the Dominican School for Girls and studied dramatic art at Columbia college. While working with the British air commission in Washington, D. C., she served as a junior hostess at the Sulgrave club and the Stage Door canteen. She now is a member of the Uptown Players group here and serves as a junior hostess at the St. James church midshipmen's teas and at the Officers club in the Knickerbocker hotel.

Ensign Lupton was graduated from the Lawrenceville school in 1942 and attended Princeton university, at which he was a member of the varsity soccer team. He is a direct descendant of Peter Aldrich, colonial governor of Delaware. Miss Bonniwell is a great-great-granddaughter of William Bonniwell, one of Wisconsin's pioneer settlers.

Solid Advice: Make Little Things Count

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"Success isn't just a chance; it's a habit," is the newest solid advice given to teenagers by a well known charm adviser. "The girl who learns how to do the little things well, whether it's fixing her hair or typing out a letter, is apt to be the girl who can run a dance or organize a bond drive. If you want to make a success of yourself as a person start with the little things you do every day."

on the SOLID side

Her formula for charm covers three majors: [1] Develop an enthusiastic interest in some one thing, whether it's football or learning French; [2] keep yourself "in the pink" with plenty of sleep, fresh air, and vitamins; [3] look your very best all the time.

Cleanliness is her first "face rule"; make soap and water and cold cream your steady friends. Second, give your face a foundation, vanishing cream, or a makeup pat, but take it easy! Leave eye makeup for parties and then only a touch. And count on lipstick for a bright, lively look. Never try to hide your features under makeup. Service men, almost to a man, vote for the girl who looks natural, the girl who "lets her face show." The last rule is, makeup and forget. Don't patch in public, but do a bang-up job before the mirror, then forget yourself and put your mind on those about you.

When it comes to your wardrobe it isn't the size of it that counts, but the shape. Nothing is more shattering to poise than a hanging hem or crooked seams. And that goes for baggy sweaters, unpressed jackets, and the white dickey that was fresh yesterday. Curb that impulse to overdecorate! If you wear too many pieces of jewelry, too many colors, or too many frills, you give the impression that you're a mixed-up kind of person—just couldn't make up your mind what to wear. A dress that is simply cut, with one smart ornament, a bow, or pearls [never all three], shows you're a person with a plan.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Gentleman Caller

This might be called the Episode of the Gentleman Caller and a White Collar Girl. It happend recently in a Chicago office where, shortly after noon, two girls agreed that when no one was looking they were going to play hookey. It chanced that the young woman in charge of the office overheard the remark and, as a joke, went over to the desk of one of the girls and securely tied her legs to the chair with a big rope.

A few moments later a stranger, distinguished and sedate, appeared in the doorway in quest of information which the tied-to-the-chair girl didn't have on her desk. She started to rise, then bethought herself of the rope, but there was nothing to do except quietly, without comment, untie it, while the man stared in astonishment. No explanation was offered, but the girls vow that as he left the office he was overheard to murmur, "What people won't do nowadays to keep their help!"

Working on the Railroad

Then there's a WCG [she works on a railroad] who went to a great deal of trouble to explain to the yard workers that you say mouse, mice; goose, geese, etc. The climax came today when she received a note dealing with two "blice" which turned out to be two blouses. The very next yard report mentioned "five cabeese." For an hour she hunted one authority after another, unable to find two agreeing on the plural of the word caboose. At last she banged down the phone and commented heatedly, "Now I know why the Pennsy calls them Cabin Cars."

For the Business Man

In addition to advising the white collar girls what to wear [and do] in their business lives, Esther Eberstadt Brooke, suggests to the men:

"Wear a well-pressed suit of conservative cut and color, well-brushed, especially around the shoulders. And a clean shirt. Even if it means a rift in the family, don't wear your Christmas ties and socks to business unless they are discreetly inconspicuous.

"Applying for a job, or working in an office, wear a hat and coat. Leather jackets, sweaters, sport shoes, and bare heads are taboo for the rising young business man.

"Invest in a can of shoe polish and use it. Your trousers get shiny with age but not your shoes!"

INSTALMENT XLV.

Finally we entered the outskirts of Toulouse, a welcome if not beautiful sight, and a few minutes later we found ourselves in the station. In leaving the train, Mac and I lost sight of the rest of the group, so we stood by a pillar waiting for the crowd to be cleared. I don't think either of us knew what most of the others in our party looked like. We saw several pairs of young men strolling up and down the platform, and only after some time distinguished Herk and the Frenchman, Paul, talking to the guide.

As we approached the men, the guide left and went into the station buffet where we followed. We four were the only people in the cafe. Soon a waiter appeared, and after serving Herk and the captain, came over to our table. Most optimistically I ordered a large cognac, for I still had an early morning chill, but the waiter told us he had only some broth.

My first expectations of pleasant things in Toulouse was crushed.

However, the broth did prove to be more sustaining than I had anticipated. By the time we had finished our first bowl, only two or three others of our group had wandered into the cafe.

Our instructions were to remain in the cafe until we received further information, so we had another cup of the broth and read some old newspapers for about an hour. Meanwhile my dreams of being lavishly entertained faded, and when the waiters appeared to set the luncheon tables, it became quite clear that we weren't going anywhere to rest, wash, and eat a huge, hot meal. Soon the guide came to tell us that we would stay at the cafe for lunch, and afterward go to the station waiting room and remain there until our train to Narborne was ready to leave.

This disappointment should have taught me not to expect any comforts on the trip, but, nevertheless, I began thinking of the evening when we were to arrive in Perpignan where, it seemed to me, we would spend the night pleasantly with some friendly people.

Soon after Paul and Herk went into the dining room, and we followed. The waiter brought us a menu, but quickly gave us no choice.

He said we were allowed only 100 grams of bread, some more broth, ham, and spinach. The broth had lost its initial appeal, the ham he gave us was little more than a sliver, and the spinach had been badly cooked.

It was not a very sustaining meal after our long ride. We asked for something more, but only succeeded in getting one more order of the unpalatable spinach. The guide came into the restaurant, and by coincidence, was seated at our table. She seemed very tired and spoke only a little. There did not seem to be much to say, and we ate our lunch in relative silence. As she departed she informed us that we would have to stay in the station until our train left and should go to the waiting room to remain as inconspicuous as possible.

We went out on the platform again and stopped at the news kiosk to buy several magazines and papers. I had not anticipated a sumptuous waiting room, but certainly nothing as grim as that of Toulouse. From the outside it looked rather like a dungeon. There were two doors and no windows. One could barely distinguish, thru the semi-darkness, the floors, walls, and ceiling, all of which were made of gray concrete.

After reading for a short while, I decided that I was not really in the mood to labor thru a French paper, so I just gazed about the room.

Some of the other members of our group came in, but the majority seemed to have escaped this dreadful room. Its one redeeming feature was its warmth. In spite of its smell, it was preferable to the windy platform, so we suffered it until half an hour before the train time. We strolled up and down the platform for about 20 minutes before discovering what track the train would leave from. To board it we had to go up over a ramp.

The train soon arrived and we all clambered aboard different cars. Mac and I luckily found a seat on the train which was very crowded.

The people in our carriage seemed to be much different than those with whom we had traveled from Paris. They spoke French with a pronounced Spanish accent. Some of them spoke Spanish, and many had characteristics more typically Spanish than French. In our compartment there were four other men and one girl, who looked like a Soho tart with the would-be Latin appearance.

A policeman stood outside our door almost all the train trip. At first it seemed quite natural, but after two hours had passed I began to be rather suspicious, and certainly wished that he would go. Evidently his presence there was coincidence, for he never paid any attention to us.

The trip was very slow. We stopped at every little station an incredibly long time. Occasionally I would read for a few minutes, but during most of the journey I looked out of the window and kept careful check on the policeman.

The countryside was mountainous and wooded, and very beautiful that late November afternoon. As we neared Narbonne, the sun was setting. When we stepped off the train at Narbonne, the warmth of the day had gone, and raw chilling mountain wind drove us from the platform to the station cafe, where Mac and I stayed until the train for Perpignan came in. The cafe was quite an ordinary one, typical of France, with its tile floor, marble topped tables, and hard wooden chairs with wire backs. We were able to have a few aperitifs which were welcome, bad as they were.

There were few people in this bleak little buffet, so Mac and I could do a bit of talking without fear of being overheard. He thought we would probably start over the mountains that night.

Frank and one other boy came into the cafe and ordered a couple of drinks, but all the others stayed outside. A few people came into the restaurant for broth, and two luftwaffe men came in for a single drink apiece.

When we went out the platform was crowded. There were all sorts of people—Italian soldiers, German sailors, soldiers and airmen, Petainist Youth, and civilians.

By the time the train came in the twilight had turned into night and we had a little difficulty in finding a seat. Most of the compartments were pitch dark, which necessitated probing about to find an empty place. Just as I sat down I saw two figures going down the corridor, one of whom looked like Herk.

After every one was seated, the blue black-out lights were turned on. I could see some of the people with us. Two had many bags and looked as if they were going all the way thru to Spain. The others went only a short distance.

After we had been on the train for an hour, I became rather worried about the possibility of missing our stop. In the black-out it was impossible to see the station names.

At every station I poked my head out of the window, but all I could see was a mass of people milling around the blue light. Mac did not seem to be paying much attention to the distance we had traveled, assuring me that my worries were in vain.

At the next stop some police came in. They wanted to see our papers and ask us questions. I was terrified, but before I had an opportunity to become really scared, they had finished with me. There were two of them, one French and one German. Fortunately, I got the German, who could not speak French very well and was willing to let my few mumbled words pass for the northern accent.

The Frenchman gave Mac's papers a much more thoro examination and asked many questions.

I began to worry about Herk. How would he ever be able to go thru with this? He would not even be able to understand the German's bad French, and if he did, he probably would answer, "Twenty-three years old," when asked where he was born, as he had so often when I tried to drill these questions and answers into him in Paris.

I thought there must be a W. C. in this carriage, and if I could be seen coming out of it as the police passed by, they might not bother looking inside it to see if it were occupied.

Herk was sitting in a seat by the corridor. He saw me approach, and by the expression on my face must have guessed that all was not well. At a place in the corridor where no one could see me, I pointed toward the W. C. Herk arose from his seat and led the way.

The lavatory was ideal for this strategy for the door could be opened almost completely, and yet leave enough space for Herk to hide behind. Finally the police came to our end of the car, and the success of our plan depended entirely upon timing—upon my leaving the lavatory while both policemen were in the little passageway, giving them an opportunity to take a quick glance, which we hoped would satisfy them that it was empty.

Herk pressed himself against the wall with all his might. As I took one last glance at him in the sinister blue light his skin was pale and grayish, and wide eyes made him look like a corpse.

I opened the door sufficiently to give them both a good view, and at first looked at the floor pretending to be unaware of their presence. When I looked up I saw that they were both looking into the toilet. The trick had worked, unless they had seen more than they were supposed to have. As the door automatically closed and I went back down the passageway, I saw that the policemen were going on to the next carriage, having been satisfied with their peek into the W. C.

I went back into the compartment to relax.

Mac was soon back to say that Herk was safely in his seat, and that the next station was Perpignan.

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of spades.

Against the contract of three no trump, West elected to lead the three of spades, tho most modern players, on hopeless hands of this sort, are in favor of a short suit lead, trusting to find partner's strength.

The four of spades was played from dummy and East guided by the maxim, "third hand high" won with the ace, he returned the queen which was permitted to hold, and the third round of spades was taken by declarer. The club finesse was now taken and lost to East, who was unable to return a spade, and the declarer romped off with the rest of the tricks.

The hand was not given a further thought. Every one presumed that the normal result had been obtained. Actually, East was guilty of lack of vision in blindly following the adage "third hand high."

East's proper play to trick one was the queen of spades, for this reason: If partner holds the king, the play is immaterial, but the no trump bid almost certainly marks South with that card. The important point is that South cannot have the singleton king. This is apparent both from the no trump bid, and from the fact that partner led the three [his fourth best], which means that West has at most five cards in the suit [provided he also has the deuce]. East should realize that if he plays the ace, declarer will refuse to win the king until the third round, and surely West cannot have an entry card with all the strength in sight.

If, however, East had played the queen, South would have been compelled to win the trick, and consequently when East obtained the lead with the king of clubs the ace and another spade would defeat the contract.

It is true that South could still have made the hand by refusing to win the queen, but this is a play which he would hardly have been able to make unless East had been somewhat careless in holding his cards, and had placed the ace directly in South's line of vision. This type of strategy is a defense against the hold-up and should be employed when you are persuaded that partner cannot have any entry cards.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Even if the European war should end quite suddenly, we shouldn't kid ourselves into thinking that we're going to have plenty of meat, butter, cheese, and other scarce foods right away. We shall have to exercise ingenuity in meal planning for a long time yet.

The canned food shortage really is serious, but thousands of war gardeners except to can bushels of home grown tomatoes, green beans, corn, and other vegetables. There's no excuse this year for any kind of canning except the modern, safe kind, which requires pressure cooker processing for all vegetables but tomatoes, boiling water bath for tomatoes and fruits. Food is too important to take any chances with old fashioned, unreliable methods.

Not many of us will spend much time making jellies and jams this year. A few jars of each of the popular varieties are all most families will be able to provide the sugar for. But strawberries and fresh pineapple are "in" now, and the temptation is great to make a few glasses of preserves.

Strawberry Preserves
4 cups sugar

Wash berries in colander, drain, and stem. Add sugar and let stand until dissolved. Do not mash berries, but stir lightly now and then with a fork to distribute sugar. Heat gently to boiling point. Cool and let stand about six hours. Again bring to boil and boil fairly rapidly until sirup thickens, about six to 10 minutes. Pour into clean, hot jars and seal. Regulation canning seals are better for preserves than paraffin, since fruit preserves retain more moisture than a jam or jelly and need a completely air tight seal to prevent the development of mold.

Fresh Pineapple Preserves

Choose ripe pineapples. Cut in fairly thick slices, then pare and core, holding the slices over a bowl so that all the juice will be caught. Shred or slice thin. Pack pineapple into cup to measure. Measure three cups of sugar for each 4 cups pineapple, place in a kettle, and let stand until sugar has dissolved. Heat to boiling and cook fairly rapidly until pineapple is clear and sirup is thick. Transfer to clean, hot jars and seal at once, using regulation canning lids, either the self-sealing type or those with rubber rings.

In cooking any kind of jam, jelly, or preserve, remember to use a wide container, so that evaporation takes place over a large surface, and cooking time is shortened. Overcooking any kind of fruit preserve causes darkening and loss of flavor.

Church Group Makes Plea for Peace Meeting

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

More than 600 Protestant Christians and Reform Jews spent yesterday afternoon and last night in discussing and praying for the kind of peace which will find its lasting beginnings at the San Francisco conference, opening April 25. The conference and seminars were held in Sholom temple, 3480 Lake Shore dr., under joint auspices of the Chicago Church federation and the Federation of Reform synagogues.

Leaders of the seminars were Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of St. Louis, Mo., substituting for Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson of New York, N. Y., and Dr. Walter W. VanKirk of New York, head of the Federal Council of Churches' commission on a just and durable peace. Dr. Van Kirk stressed the neglected influence of members of church and synagogue who do not keep members of congress aware of their views. He said that in earlier days, followers of the Rev. Charles Coughlin flooded the mails with protests to congressmen against this or that.

A feature of the fellowship was the Christian-Jewish service at night, when combined choirs of First Methodist church, Evanston, and Temple Sholom led the music. A seven point resolution was adopted to be sent to members of the United States deputation to the San Francisco conference.

The resolution asked the coming conference "to provide the framework for continuing collaboration among the united nations in solving problems of the peace; to establish the machinery for dealing with economic and social problems, often the causes of conflict; to continue the building of a body of international law so that the relations among nations may be governed by law with the sanctions of force, if necessary; to move toward formulation and acceptance of an international bill of rights; to seek for dependent peoples the opportunities for self-government and responsible participation in the life of the world community; to make provisions for the eventual inclusion of all nations which are willing to accept responsibilities and obligations of membership, and, to promote the spirit of mutual understanding and respect which alone can assure the success of any organization that is formed."

Petticoat-Vestee Combinations in Fashion's Favor

BY REA SEEGER

Clever designers can easily combine beauty with practicability. For proof, see the new gay taffeta petticoat-vestee combinations. The skirt is a four gored slightly flared affair and sewed securely to the belt. In front is the vestee of the same material. Both are cut on the bias to make the most of the striped plaid or checked taffetas. The color contrasts are eye catching in the bold stripes of many colors that include typically French pairings of lime, mauve and pink, cerise, jade green and yellow, and so on. The precise stripes of even width in white with red, green, or deep blue are most effective because of the diagonal line of the bias cut material.

Crisp taffeta in white and colored half inch checks of red, green, brown, navy, and black is an ideal contrast for navy blue and black or gray. For these clever petticoats and vestees are useful with suits or with redingotes, as well as with a sunback dress alone or teamed with a bolero or hip length jacket. They can be worn with thin summer sheers, with woolens, with ribbed bengaline or faille coats, or with gleaming satin or dull crepe. Later they will serve with costumes of black or neutral colored linen or butcher's linen.

The vestee top is ample enough to pass as a blouse. There is a convertible neckline, and some have wide bias cut bows to tie either under the chin or at the low vee neckline. The belt is narrow and fastened to both vestee and petticoat. And tho the price marks are anything but modest, the garment is worth every penny.

St. Olaf Choir Sings Serenely and Beautifully

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

So firmly has the St. Olaf Lutheran choir established itself in the affections of that part of the public which cares for rarely beautiful a cappella singing of religious character, that with little blowing of advance trumpets Orchestra hall again was completely filled for the group's annual concert last night.

With the national mourning of the last few days still weighing heavily upon the spirits of many, the serene spirituality of the choir's music carried a consolatory appeal. Olaf C. Christiansen, son of the choir's founder, and now in his second season as its director, is a musician who obtains results with a minimum of effort and a maximum of effectiveness.

The choir has never sounded better than this season, when most choruses have been sadly maimed by the war's drain of personnel. The St. Olaf male section is complete, with basses of particularly fine quality who easily plumb the low depths usually reserved for Russian choristers. The women's voices have a softly ethereal quality, and the entire group has been welded into a masterly ensemble that becomes an instrument sensitively responsive to its director's every demand.

Everything the choir sings is stamped with the same degree of authority and perfection. The Swedish folk song "Rock and Refuge," offered striking contrasts of power, and Kodaly's Hungarian "Birthday Greeting" discovered the true navite of folk music. Both Christiansens were represented by compositions, the father by a charming "Cradle Hymn" and the son by the impressive "Trumpets of Zion."

By the time Beverly Watts had overcome the initial nervousness of her recital in Kimball hall last night—which was too late for a Bach aria and two Mozart songs to leave any definite impression—she disclosed a contralto voice that may have possibilities if in the near future it receives better care than it has been accorded to date. It now has some solid low tones but an exceedingly unreliable upper register, and its monotony of color, not to mention certain dubious musical features, is little suited to the interpretation of Schubert songs—sung in English, but with not more than two recognizable words to each of the four songs.

BY EDWARD BARRY

This is at once a presentation of one of the most tragic events in Jewry's tragic history and a dramatization of the conflict between two ethical ideals — that of charity toward enemies no matter what the provocation and that of vigorous resistance against intolerable wrongs.

The subject of "The Miracle of the Warsaw Ghetto" is the battle between the Nazis and the Jews in the Polish capital in the spring of 1943. The occupying forces, on the eve of the Passover, sought to exterminate the pathetic, underfed remnants of Warsaw Jewry only to meet unexpected resistance from the despairing people and to be compelled to bring in heavy weapons—even tanks—to accomplish their purpose.

The young Israel, a devout student of the Talmud who tho dazed by the horrors he has seen yet recognizes that the Jews can never repay the Nazis in kind because they cannot descend to their bestial level, was played with tragic intensity by Jacob Ben-Ami. Set against Israel is his former teacher, the holy man, Reb Yitzhok, who sanctions an uprising against the Nazis and blesses the pathetic, ragged group as it awkwardly carries the guns to which Jewish hands are unaccustomed out to meet almost certain annihilation.

Menachem Rubin played the part with a full understanding of its complexities—complexities which are the result of the conflict in Reb's soul of the ideals which are the theme of the play.

The play has considerable impact even aside from the importance it borrows from its historical background. Characters are firmly drawn and of great individual interest.

The music by Sholem Secunda and the sets designed by H. A. Condell are sober and fitting. The play remains at the Blackstone for a one week, nine performance engagement.

'Leave It to Blondie'; You Can Take It or—Leave It to Blondie

By Mae Tinée

Dagwood, Blondie, and all the little Bumsteads, to say nothing of Daisy and her offspring, are back on the screen. Arthur Lake is in a state of perpetual confusion and Penny Singleton is much the same as she has been in earlier films of the series. There is a great deal of misunderstanding concerning a song entered in a contest, a wealthy widow, Dagwood's boss, etc. It's all simple family comedy that won't affect you much one way or another.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 16—Four newcomers who make their debut in "Miss Susie Slagle" are doing all right. Pat Phelan, who's 17, is longing for his 18th birthday so that he can join the navy. Billy De Wolfe inherits "Ready, Willing and 4-F" which was first talked about for Bob Hope, then Eddie Bracken, or Danny Kaye, who didn't have time to do it. Now Billy will be starred in it. Bill Edwards is doing the lead in "Our Hearts Are Growing Up." Not only our hearts but Diana Lynn herself is growing up. She's five inches taller than when she played "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." . . . The long and short of it is that Bunny Waters, six foot glamor gal, will be Lou Costello's dancing partner in "Abbott and Costello in Hollywood." He's five feet four. As soon as the boys finish this picture, they start a nation-wide tour in the interests of their Abbott and Costello Youth Foundation to combat juvenile delinquency. They will make appearances at youth rallies conducted by juvenile court judges in the cities visited. Bud and Lou will be gone three months, and have talked Universal into permitting them to get this project under way before reporting in September for "You Hypnotize Me."

Who Isn't in the Mood?

The reason Pine and Thomas selected "I'm in the Mood for Love" for Frances Langford to sing in "People Are Funny" is that song is No. 1 on her request list in hospital wards. At Paramount the other day, Frances recorded the song on the same set where just 10 years ago she did the same song for "Every Night at Eight." . . . Before Chill Wills went off to play in "The Yearling" in Florida, he said, "I'm awfully happy to be going down there, because I'd like to get a look at the country where my kinfolks live." His grandpappy was the only doctor in Dahlonega, Ga. In 1883 he piled his brood into two covered wagons and got as far as Texas, where Chill was born. . . . About a year ago Faye Marlowe talked Glen Langan into playing opposite her in "There's Always Juliet" for a little theater, and as a result of it, she got the second lead in "Hangover Square." Now Langan is up for the lead opposite Gene Tierney in "Leave Her to Heaven," and when Faye heard that Gene [now working in "Dragonwyck"] couldn't take time to make the test with him, she returned his favor by substituting for Gene.

It's An Ill Wind

Mary Young, who has been cast opposite Barry Fitzgerald in "Stork Club," is taking advantage of the strike to make a flying trip to Tyler county, Texas, to look over her oil property, which is having a boom. Ross Hunter and Judy Canova a twosome at Mocambo, but only for professional purposes. They just finished "Louisiana Hayride" and Columbia is lining up another for them. . . . Chucho Martinez is stopping with Arturo De Cordova while in Hollywood. He opens at the Trocadero the 19th. He has never been seen on our screen, but has a good part in Orson Welles' unreleased picture, "It's All True." It was shot in Mexico. . . . Jack Haley borrowed Dave Street's car to keep a luncheon engagement. He had to park in a gas station. When he returned for the car, it had been washed, had a grease job, and an oil change—which cost him $4. Jack won't be borrowing cars for lunch any more. . . . Busiest guy on "The Dolly Sisters" set is the prop man who has to polish the bakelite floor which June Haver and Betty Grable dance on. They spend three minutes dancing, and it takes him about an hour to get it polished again for another take. . . . That song which Ella Logan composed while overseas—"I've Got a Date with a Ranger"—has been adopted by the Rangers as their official song.

Thru the Looking Glass

With all the babies being born these days, it's not easy to keep your little remembrances original and attractive. You might, if you're on the hunt for shower gifts, like to know about some sacheted hangers that recently came to town.

These are cute tricks indeed, and the mother of any small child will tell you that they're practical as can be. Small coats and suits and dresses need hangers their own size; larger ones pull them out of shape. And what house nowadays has enough adult size hangers to go around?

The little sachet hangers are covered in blue or in pink, and they're sweetly scented. They're quite inexpensive, too, and you can give a pair or a dozen, depending on how expensive a gift you want. You'll undoubtedly take a bow for thinking of something different.

Sachets, as we probably needn't remind you, are among the nicest of shower gifts under any circumstances. They're particularly suitable for the war bride, who hasn't a home in which to place household goods, but who does love to be well groomed and nicely scented even tho she does live out of a suitcase. A nice thought for her, whether she is to live at home or in hotels, would be these same sacheted hangers in the adult size. They're not expensive, either.

Then, of course, there are the usual little pillows and cases. Every bride adores these things, and they serve a good purpose in helping her to feel feminine and well turned out, no matter how difficult her living conditions. Well made and beautifully perfumed, they scent hose, handkerchiefs and lingerie, and the cases are sensible because they help keep order in overburdened bureau drawers.

George J. Tikalsky, 20, of 5132 S. Honore st., a coast guard seaman, was killed when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a tree at 6109 S. Damen av. His body, police said, was placed on a nearby porch by his two fellow riders, who then fled.

Thru the license number, supplied by witnesses, police traced the automobile to William Jefferies, 19, of 5147 S. Wolcott av., who also was hurt in the crash and who is in South Town hospital.

Another passenger, police said, was Joe Bartkowiak, 17, of 5152 S. Wolcott av., who has been charged with disorderly conduct. An inquest was opened yesterday by Deputy Coroner Edward Edelstein at Marine hospital, but was continued until May 8.

Betty Jean Leighton, 7, of 614 Campbell av., Joliet, was killed by an automobile as she was on her way to Farragut school in that suburb with her brother, Robert, 8. The driver was Benjamin Benson, 1000 Glenwood av., Joliet, a real estate dealer.

Harry Eisenberg, 51, of 5649 W. 63d st., was killed when he was struck by an automobile at 63d st. and Major av. The driver, Edward Strable, 56, of 6132 S. Laflin st., was later booked by Chicago Lawn police on a charge of reckless driving.

DUNHAM URGES MONTROSE SITE FOR PLANE STRIP

Mayor Kelly said yesterday he would refer for consideration by the Chicago aero commission an alternate proposal by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, that an experimental, small plane landing strip be built on an unused boulevard extension at Montrose av. and the lake, instead of on Northerly Island as originally recommended by the commission.

The Northerly Island site off 14th st. was selected by the National Aviation Trades association, which has agreed to operate the experimental field free of charge for four months this summer to prove the feasibility of small landing strips near metropolitan business districts.

Dunham has expressed fear that planes taking off and landing on the proposed Northerly Island location might get out of control and crash into the nearby Chicago Natural History museum, the Shedd aquarium, or the Adler planetarium.

Ben Regan, chairman of the Illinois aeronautics commission, characterized Dunham's concern as groundless and said that "what Mayor Kelly needs is fewer aviation advisers and more action."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox and Indians will get together in Cleveland this afternoon, weather permitting, to do their share of launching the 1945 American league race but their thoughts probably will be less about the start than on where they'll be next October.

The Sox, with far less than they had last season when they wound up just one notch above the cellar, face a summer that may convince James Dykes, the boss, that all his previous years at the Comiskey helm were mere romps.

The Indians, also weakened somewhat by service calls, have no pennant ideas but they do have, at least on paper at present, a chance to finish within striking distance of the team landing in the No. 1 spot next fall. And the Indians also have Lou Boudreau, their shortstop-manager—a standout pace setter. Poor Mr. Dykes has no such man to help him along the 154 game highway.

A Last Minute First Baseman

Dykes enters the season without several players he put to good use last season, plus an absence of replacements of known consequence. Until yesterday he didn't own an experienced first baseman, when the Sox filled this gap by purchasing Kerby Farrell from the Indianapolis club, for which he hit .293 last season. He's 31 years old and will report in Cleveland today, but whether he'll be put to work immediately will depend upon what Dykes thinks after looking him over. It is reasonable to guess Dykes will use him in place of the inexperienced Bill Nagel later, if not today.

At third Dykes will start off with Tony Cuccinello, but Tony is an old fellow who needs his rest periods. Joe Orengo can sit in during Tony's periods in the rocking chair and so can Nagel, if he's around. The army will look him over shortly. Shortstop is a problem which at least has a chance to be solved eventually by either Cass Michaels or Dan Reynolds. When, or if, Wally Moses goes into service 10 days hence there will be only three outfielders. Poor Mr. Dykes!

Kerby Farrell

More Sympathy for Dykes

Dykes can't derive consolation from any mention that he has a fairly good layout of experienced pitchers. Pitching counts a lot but no matter how good it is the trimmings are vital. There must be somebody around to stop at least some of the grounders from seeping thru the infield. And even the good pitchers can't succeed unless somebody gets them a few runs occasionally. Whether the Sox as now constituted are going to hit or field consistently is questionable. Again, poor Mr. Dykes!

From the very start Dykes is assured of four men able to take their

THE FANS HAVE BEEN WAITING ALL WINTER FOR THIS!

Here is the Cub lineup which will battle the world champion St. Louis Cardinals in the opening game of the National league season in Wrigley field this afternoon. Most critics are agreed that if the north siders can get good pitching regularly they will be a factor in the 1945 pennant race. Paul Derringer, honored with the starting role, has shown in spring practice the form that once made him one of the circuit's outstanding performers. [TRIBUNE Photo]

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Chicago Cubs, who didn't get around to beating the world champion Cardinals in 1944 till their last trip to St. Louis, this afternoon will seek to break that precedent at the earliest possible moment. To do this, with an opening day victory over the Cards in Wrigley field, Paul Derringer, who lost three to the champions last year, while failing to win, will have to vanquish Morton Cooper, who won two and lost one in competition with the fourth place Cubs last season. Or, if the Cooper strike memories are too fresh, it might be that Derringer may have to beat Max Lanier, Ted Wilks, or Blix Donnelly.

Manager Charley Grimm, inspiring leader of the Chicagoans, believes Derringer [a new Derringer, many have opined this spring], is ready to get the Cubs off to a flying start. The skipper not only has great confidence in the predicted rejuvenation of Derringer, but is pleased with the readiness of the supporting cast.

Hack Shows Improved Form

Grimm has noted that Stanley Hack has been showing "even better batting form" than in 1935 and 1938, when he contributed to Cub pennant successes with marks of .311 and .320. He is confident, too, that Phil Cavarretta will equal or surpass 1944, his best year, in which he batted .321. Comforting also is the presence of Bill Nicholson, who last year led the National league in homers, with 33, in runs scored, with 118, and in runs batted in, with 120. Boss Charley hasn't seen the Maryland muscle marvel in competition this year, but he has had detailed reports on the manner in which Bill has been busting the ball while training with the Phillies.

Lennie Merullo, whose only shortcomings have been traced to overeagerness, will be at short, after some confidence building seances with Grimm. In Don Johnson the Cubs have the best defensive second baseman in baseball, Grimm opines, without dissent hereabouts. Mickey Livingston, army dischargee is back, giving the team strength in perhaps its weakest department last season, catching.

Three Bid for Left Field

There is hot rivalry for the left field among Eddie Sauer, who will start today, Frank Secory and Peanuts Lowrey, all tested performers.

At every position Grimm has able reserve strength, tho, of course, the manager does not expect to need this as the season starts. He tries to win each day's contest as it is played. Today is the season opener against what is supposed to be the best team in the world. That the pitching staff at the moment seems numerically inadequate may or may not be the worry of a later day.

The Cooper boys, Morton, the pitcher, and Walker the catcher, may start, despite their strike, a sort of armistice having been effected. There were at least three alternate possibilities as to the starting pitcher, however. Some dispatches from St. Louis named Max Lanier, long a Cub annoyer, others nominated Blix Donnelly, world series relief star and still others veered to Ted Wilks, who won 17 for the champions last year.

No Game Tomorrow

The weather man hasn't been too encouraging in his promises for this afternoon. If he could deliver an afternoon like it was yesterday, the management probably would send him several bushels of peanuts with lemonade to match. But no one ever has been able to bribe a weather man, especially in Chicago in middle April.

The series will be brief, even if the weather is favorable. No game is scheduled for tomorrow, and the final is booked for Thursday. Friday the Cubs will be in Pittsburgh to collaborate in a Pirate home opener for the first time in many years.

Plan Ethics Code for Prep Sports Setup

A citizenship program and a code of ethics for Chicago public school athletic contests designed to prevent friction among students and schools and to promote good citizenship and Americanism was announced yesterday by Supt. William H. Johnson.

Johnson's program, prepared by a committee of district superintendents and high school principals, places the chief responsibility for the citizenship plan on the individual school principal and suggests that the student body at each school develop its own definition of citizenship.

Must Control Outsiders

The principal must recognize that athletic programs require proper planning and faculty supervision, must take an active interest in his school's athletic events, and recognize that spirit shown by players and spectators reflects the spirit built up in the school, Johnson explained.

Upon the principal also is thrust the responsibility of devising means to cope with nonschool elements which Johnson asserted frequently are the cause of difficulties. The principal also must effect proper coordination between school and community authorities.

Formulation of the citizenship program by superintendents and principals, and the code of ethics by superintendents, principals, and coaches, was begun as a result of disturbances between Von Steuben and Amundsen High school boys after a basketball game last Jan. 19.

Teachers Should Attend Games

The code of ethics makes each staff member of the physical education department responsible for the conduct of department activities but says that the principal should instruct teachers that he expects them to take an active interest in the athletic program by voluntary attendance at games and a helpful enthusiasm for the contesting teams.

Faculty supervision of spectators at athletic contests also is requested in the code of ethics, which adds that "school and nonschool elements which do not conform should be excluded. There should be no taunting, either from the stands or from the players' benches."

CHICAGO RACING LEADERS QUIET ON NEW REPORTS

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Chicagoland race track operators and officials, in the main, still are holding close to their policy of "no comment" on all of the many rumors anent lifting of the ban on the sport which went into effect last Jan. 3.

A report yesterday out of Baltimore, Md., that a government announcement setting May 10 as the date on which horse racing may be resumed is expected before the end of this week, fell on deaf ears in Chicago except for this father terse statement from Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board, "I am inclined to doubt it." Maj. Williams, who also is president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners, just returned from Washington, D. C., and New York.

Hears Rumor in East

"I heard in New York last week that the Baltimore report would come out today, but that the date would be May 8," continued Williams. "Racing men in the east are of the opinion that in view of the death of President Roosevelt, announcement of the date for resumption of racing at this time would be in extremely bad taste and that the public's reaction could be unfavorable."

"However," continued Williams, "the opening of baseball will be an aid to racing's cause if the attendance is good. It will be an indication that the public is clamoring for diversion."

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Arlington and Washington Park, returned from the east yesterday but would offer no comment on the current rumor.

Sportsman's Park Ready

John L. Keeshin, head of Sportsman's Park, which is scheduled to be the first Chicago track to open [April 28], has his track in readiness for racing as soon as the word is given.

"In the event May 10 is the opening date," said Keeshin, "it will leave us only three days of our 13 day spring meeting, but we will run, nevertheless and I am sure that Maj. Williams and the Illinois Racing board will adjust the season's schedule so that no one will be injured. However, I doubt very much if May 10 is to be the opening date."

Concessionaire Denies Report

Caterers for the New York tracks are said to have been ordered to report on May 9, but altho it was said in Chicago last week that the Max Silverburg & Co., which handles the refreshment stands in Sportsman's Park, had been told to have their employes ready for duty on April 28, Silverburg said yesterday he had received no such word from the track officials.

Pvt. Joe Maxim Defeats Brown in Detroit Ring

Detroit, Mich., April 16 (AP)—Pvt. Joe Maxim of Cleveland outpunched Clarence Brown, 200, of Chicago, to gain a unanimous 10 round decision tonight before 1,784.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

MAJOR league baseball today begins its fourth war time season with prospects that it will be as successful both competitively and financially as it was in 1944. . . . When the history of athletics in World War II. is written, baseball is among the sports that can hold its head high. . . . It has raised substantial sums for war charities. . . . It has provided many hours of discussion for Americans thruout the world. . . . No matter what the grouch columnist may tell you, the evidence is overwhelming that our fighting men want the game to continue. . . . Baseball under the intelligent leadership of the late Commissioner Landis and Presidents Will Harridge and Ford Frick has conformed to every wish of the Washington burocrats. . . . Nobody connected officially with the sport has raised a protest when certain players were lost to their teams who unquestionably would have been classified 4-F were they not celebrated athletes. . . . Some few are shouting for the early appointment of a commissioner to succeed Mr. Landis, but certainly none could have performed with greater enterprise and tact than have Harridge, Frick, and Leslie O'Connor. . . . The United States before the war and thru the war has been a sports loving nation. . . . It will be even more so in the post-war era. . . . Baseball remains the most economical buy within range of the sports shopper. . . . Some owners have reduced the number of bleacher seats, which this department thinks is a mistake, but when you compare this minor evidence of greed to the prices asked for professional boxing matches it isn't important. . . . A few clubs, among them the White Sox, have been hit harder than others by army demands, but the world champion Cardinals will present much the same front they employed in the 1944 series. . . . The only notable absentees will be Danny Litwhiler and Stan Musial. . . . Walker Cooper is awaiting call, but he doesn't know when it will come. . . . If he is summoned they still have Ken O'Dea. . . .

Lt. Tom Creevy, former Mount Carmel High school and Notre Dame quarter back, who has made 35 bomber missions over Germany, recently was awarded the distinguished flying cross with a bronze star, for bringing back his Fortress on New Year's eve after part of the tail and two engines had been shot away. . . . John Gales, who represented New Orleans in the recent Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, has signed as catcher with the baseball club of that city. . . . Chicago's Wrigley field and Comiskey park are not the only baseball plants using usherettes. . . . They have them in San Francisco and Sacramento, too. . . . Clark Shaughnessy, Pittsburgh football coach, had this to say about the All-America conference when he visited San Francisco a week or two ago: "It's a much stronger league than I first thought it was. Men like Tony Morabito and Buck Shaw in San Francisco make it look mighty powerful. Paul Brown and Dick Hanley give further evidence of its strength. If the owners are willing to spend money to attract that type personnel, the conference will succeed, sooner or later."

BROWNS, TIGERS MEET IN TODAY'S FEATURE GAME

St. Louis, Mo., April 16 (AP)—The American league pennant race will open on a high note here tomorrow with the champion St. Louis Browns having as their first guests the Detroit Tigers, voted by baseball writers as the club most likely to dethrone the title holders—if they are dethroned.

One armed Pete Gray has convinced Manager Luke Sewell that he deserves a chance in the starting lineup and will go to left field. In the six game city series with the Cardinals he batted .240 and handled 14 putouts and one assist without error.

WALKER COOPER
[CARDINAL CATCHER]

Coopers Call Truce; Still Want $15,000

St. Louis, Mo., April 16 (AP)—Altho the Cooper brothers, Mort and Walker, will be in uniform with the St. Louis Cardinals for tomorrow's opening National baseball league game with the Cubs in Chicago they said tonight they will not accept less than $15,000 a year in salary.

President Sam Breadon had no comment on the Coopers' decision to suspend temporarily their four day old post-contract demands except to say the star pitcher-catcher combination would not be penalized for the time away from the club.

Won't Let Fans Down

Manager Billy Southworth said Walker Cooper will catch in the opener with the Cubs and will bat fourth.

The Cooper brothers over the week-end told Breadon they would quit baseball unless their contracts were revised to meet their new $15,000 salary demands. They explained their change of heart today was "out of regard for the loyal St. Louis baseball fans" and upon the advice of Leslie O'Connor, chairman of baseball's advisory committee, and Lee J. Havener, their attorney. They expect to confer with O'Connor in Chicago.

Still Want $15,000 Each

"We have decided to join the Cardinals on schedule and await further consideration of a reasonable adjustment of our salaries," they stated. "We will not accept less than $15,000 a year."

The Coopers signed their 1945 contracts for $12,000, the club's ceiling, but later refused to accept Breadon's offer of $13,500 when they learned Shortstop Marty Marion's contract called for a figure above ceiling. Marion's wage was subject to stabilization board approval.

Lack of Fishing Tackle Prompts Query from G. I.'s

BY BOB BECKER

Copies of THE TRIBUNE really get around the world to be read by men in service. The following letter expressing the hope that we can find some fishing tackle has just come from North Africa as a result of four boys reading the March 20th issue of this newspaper in which we asked fishermen to contribute their excess tackle to the men in service.

"We ran across your article in the March 20th TRIBUNE and were much interested in your effort to help obtain fishing equipment for boys in the service.

"There are numerous 'would be' fishermen here in North Africa but we have no equipment whatsoever. We would appreciate it very much if you could do something for us.

"A group of us are organizing the North African Izaak Walton club with hunting and fishing trips planned. We have some shotgun shells and guns but are out of luck as far as fishing goes. There are numerous lakes and streams around here with fish in them. And we have seen wild ducks around these lakes.

"Any help you can give us would be appreciated beyond words."

The letter is signed by Staff Sgt. Jack G. Charlesworth, Glen Ellyn, Ill., Carlyle C. Varner, Lincoln, Neb., John S. Robertson, Oradell, N. J., and Joseph Ujlaky, Cleveland, O. All are in the 1258th AAFBU, NAFD-ATC.

The letter again emphasizes the tackle needs of soldiers all over the world. With little tackle having been made for several years and no bait casting reels and rods being turned out, the army advises us that it can't get priorities for the manufacture of all the tackle it wants to send to the men in service. If any reader has any extra equipment he wants to contribute to the boys in Africa we'll be glad to forward it from this office.

The pros are (left to right): Harry Adams, chairman of rehabilitation committee; Jimmy Hines, chairman national tournament committee; Eddie Bush, secretary treasurer; Alex Cunningham, president, and Gordon. The ribbing was the result of the feat of Gordon's son, Bill Jr., in making a hole in one recently, something his dad has not been able to accomplish in 22 years as a pro.

Cause and Effect

Soul deep scars within his breast
Can never understand the one
Who only longs for rest.

Casts a sympathetic eye
On the harried crowd of seekers
Who must forever "try."

Take no side lest you belong there,
Both these types fulfill a need;
There would be none who could follow
Were there not some one to lead.

Cornerstones

[And the stone which ye, the builders, rejected has become the cornerstone.—Holy Writ.]

Centuries ago those words were said,
How often we make this same mistake
As, blindly, going our way,
We reject those things as not worth while,
Which, if we could only know,
Are the very ones on which we could build
A structure to burgeon and grow.

How many times do we disregard
Some gentle, retiring soul
And cater to more outstanding ones
Who might help us achieve some goal!
How many families have grievously learned
That when sorrow and heartache are known,
The one they have never counted on much

A cornerstone four square and strong
When the ill winds of trouble blow,
Quietly comforting, sharing a strength
You never dreamed they could show.
Ah, yes, the byways are cluttered and filled
With many a cornerstone
On which something beautiful might have been built,
If we could only have known.

ILLINOIS P. G. A. SETS UP TRIPLE SUMMER GOAL

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Adoption of a concentrated program of tournaments for rehabilitation of World War II. veterans, resumption of the annual team matches with the Wisconsin section, and coöperation with THE TRIBUNE's annual free golf school were the highlights of last night's spring meeting of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America in the Morrison hotel.

The meeting attracted a full attendance, including several new members of the section. Among the newcomers welcomed by President Alex Cunningham of North Shore and Secretary-Treasurer Eddie Bush of Oak Park were Jimmy Hines, formerly of the Northeastern New York section, who is National P. G. A. tournament chairman; Pete Thomas, late of Minnesota, who is the new pro at Chicago Golf club; George Gammon, formerly of Wisconsin and now manager of Riverside; Matt Jans of Rolling Green, past president of the Wisconsin section, and Norman Cameron, new Green Acres pro who formerly was assistant to Byron Nelson at Toledo's Inverness club.

Golf's Part a Big One

Harry Adams of St. Charles, who has been appointed chairman of the rehabilitation committee, said that 18 months' work with the government's program for sending athletic equipment to overseas forces had convinced him that the task of using golf as a method of reconditioning veterans will be one of the most important post-war jobs confronting professional golfers.

Adams and Bill Gordon of Tam 'o Shanter, tournament chairman of the Illinois section, have incorporated four special pro-amateur events for the rehabilitation program in the regular competitive schedule. The first of these will be held June 17 at Twin Orchard, where a members' committee composed of Ben Leiser, Harry Wolff, and Mickey Karzen, already is at work. Other tentative sites and dates are July 8 at Riverside, Sept. 17 at a club to be announced later, and Sept. 24 at St. Charles.

Bid for Title Event

The annual 54 hole battle for the association championship, won last year by George Smith of Onwentsia, will be held some time in the period between Aug. 7 and 20. Three clubs are bidding for the event.

The section also will make every effort to renew the team duel against the Wisconsin section, which was not held last year.

The members pledged their support to The Tribune golf school, for which they have provided the faculty since its inception in 1933. During the last 12 years, they have given gratis instruction in the fundamentals of golf to 463,500 men, women, and children in the Chicago district.

Marios Take No. 32; Crown to Pepsi-Colas

The Mario Restaurant girls, captained by Henrietta Wilman, last night swept their series from the Lustre Creme Shampoo five to run their string of successive triumphs in the Bowling Lanes Ladies' Major league to 32, equaling a city record established two years ago by the Pla-Mor Lanes team of the South End Traveling league. Their three victories were not sufficient, however, to win for them the championship which went to Betty McCarthy and her Pepsi-Cola girls, who also scored a sweep, blanking Durkee's Margarine. The games were the final of the league's season.

The Pepsi-Colas owned a two game advantage in the standings over the Marios, who were runners-up. Rickey Kaad led the Pepsi-Cola scoring with a 602 series, while Mrs. Wilman paced the Marios with an even 600, contributing to a 2,852 team total, highest of the night. Scores:

WRIGHT IS RELEASED

Boston, Mass., April 16 [AP]—The Boston Braves management tonight reported the release of Outfielder Ab Wright to the Buffalo International league club.

SOX BRAVE NEW SEASON—MEET INDIANS TODAY

turns on the mound and give a reasonable account of themselves. Thornton Lee will start today. The Indians, when they traded him to the Sox in the winter of 1936, never dreamed he'd be around at this late date. Next in line are Bill Dietrich, Ed Lopat, and Orval Grove. Behind this quartet Dykes has plenty of fillers in such as John Humphries, Joe Haynes, Lee Ross, and some lesser lights who may or may not be retained for long. Allie Reynolds probably will oppose Lee today for Cleveland.

O, for Ed Carnett

The team the Indians put on the field today won't differ greatly from that of last summer. Ken Keltner is gone from third base and that's a loss. Ray Mack is gone from second base. One of the outfielders will be Ed Carnett, traded by the Sox last winter. Dykes now wishes he had Ed back for solution of a first base problem unsuspected at the time of the swap, in which the Sox obtained Oris Hockett. Otherwise the Indians will look natural except that a rookie—Jim McDonnell—may have to do most of the catching.

The Tribe's new second baseman is Al Cihocki, a medical dischargee from the coast guard and altho his previous baseball experience was on the opposite side of the diamond Boudreau thinks the lad will fit into the picture. Anyway, a manager can't be too choosy these times. As for third, the position may eventually windup in possession of Roy Cullenbine who played the infield before deciding to make fly chasing his business.

Mistele to Brewers

Just before leaving last night for Cleveland the Sox announced the optional release of Pitcher Bob Mistele to Milwaukee. He will be subject to 24 hour recall.

Joe Barry, retired Sox secretary, was drafted for the Cleveland trip, subbing for Frank McMahon who suffered a broken leg when he stepped on a defective sewer cover in the ball park at Terre Haute.

Will Harridge, American league president, started yesterday for Philadelphia where he'll attend today's opener.

SHOP STEWARDS BACKED ME, SAYS FOE OF CIO REDS

Tells Court 19 Denounced His Suspension

Nineteen shop stewards at the Chicago Flexible Shaft company, 5600 Roosevelt rd., signed a statement protesting the "Hitlerlike" action of the CIO union's Communist dominated executive board last June, the day after the board had suspended Harry Morgan as chief steward of the war plant. They demanded he be reinstated.

This was brought out yesterday at Morgan's effort before Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Superior court to enjoin the union, local 1150 of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers [CIO], from having him fired under a maintenance of membership contract.

Morgan, a turret lathe operator in war work, contends he was suspended thru influence of the Communists on the executive board and in his shop because he refused to join the Communist party and would not condone the CIO's political action committee electioneering for the New Deal. He insists the union's charges that he was disloyal to union principles were trumped up against him.

Denies He Knew Aims

Atty. H. B. Ritman, for the union, tried to compel Morgan under cross-examination to admit he knew in 1942, when he was active in organizing the shaft company's shop for local 1150, that the CIO was "nationally engaged in a political campaign on behalf of the New Deal." Morgan, however, insisted he never knew it until "the fall of 1943," more than a year later.

Atty. William J. Grace had questioned Morgan on direct examination:

Q.—Did any one in the CIO or the union tell you in May, 1942, when you were organizing and joining local 1150 of the UE, that you were giving up any rights as a citizen in becoming associated with the union or CIO? A.—No, never.

Q.—If you knew that the union in its affiliation with the CIO would get into politics as a member of one party, would you have signed up or helped to organize it? A.—I would not—never.

Tells of Organization

Q.—If you knew the union would form within itself a group of ward and precinct captains, would you have joined it? A.—I would not.

Morgan earlier had testified that ward and precinct captains, who were to work independently of the regular organization Democratic and Republican ward and precinct officials, had been "appointed" in local 1150, under orders of the CIO political action forces.

He testified yesterday that the only objectives ever outlined to him by Ernest De Maio, regional head of the CIO-UE, and Theodore Baer, organizer for the CIO-UE, when he began to help organize the flexible shaft shop for the union were "wages, hours and working conditions." He admitted that as a union man he had been interested in "legislation on behalf of labor," but denied vigorously he believed the union should interest itself on behalf of specific candidates of either party. He reiterated he believed "the union should stay out of politics."

Lists Three as Reds

The witness testified earlier that Baer admitted having been an organizer for the Communist party before becoming an organizer for the union. Morgan said Baer told him De Maio was a Communist and that Irving Krane, attorney-business manager of local 1150 and prior to that a "field representative" of the international UE, was a member of the Communist party.

"Baer also tried to sign me up for the party," Morgan testified. "He told me several of those in the shop had joined."

TAVERN PAPER'S CURFEW SCHEME OPPOSED BY WMC

A recommendation in the April 15 issue of the trade publication Tavern Keeper that taverns defy the curfew two nights a week and close completely on one day a week prompted William H. Spencer, regional director for the war man power commission, to warn possible violators yesterday.

The paper, which is published by William Cepak, former Cicero boxer, urged that the taverns stay open until 2 a. m. Saturday mornings and 3 a. m. Sunday mornings, as provided by city ordinance, and close all day Monday to contribute to the war effort. The action was urged because violators have not suffered disciplinary action, while those observing the curfew have allegedly lost money by being deprived of profitable week-end business.

Spencer said all known violators have agreed to comply with the curfew and that widespread violations would lead WMC to "take steps."

Unauthorized Lay-Off Perplexes Buick

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

Altho no dispute existed between one of Chicago's most important war plants and 6,000 of its employes, they took a full holiday yesterday from their work benches, lathes, drill presses, and other important war production positions at the Buick Aviation Engine plant, North av. and La Grange rd., in Melrose Park. The "holiday" was declared unauthorized by CIO union officials who represent the employes and neither company nor union officials could fully explain the action.

Only 2,500 reported for work on the two shifts at the plant up to midnight last night. Production of engines for C-54 and C-47 transport planes and for Liberator bombers was greatly curtailed.

Can't Account for Holiday

Union officials last night admitted that the company and union have had a friendly relationship since production of the aircraft engines began late in 1941. In contrast to other war plants in the Chicago area, few production disturbances have occurred.

Dale Williams, plant manager, brought the "holiday" to public attention early yesterday when he announced that "the management is unable to account for this absenteeism of its workers. No grievance has been presented."

Later, Capt. George Barnes and Sgt. Harold Enger of the police labor detail received a call that "5,000 unionists were out of control at a meeting at 4306 North av." They found the Buick employes in a noisy meeting.

"Misunderstanding" Blamed.

Robert Stack, vice president of local 6 of the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union, who, with other union officials, was attempting to address the unionists, told police that some "misunderstanding must have taken place" because the union had not authorized a walkout.

Stack said that during the last week notices had been posted thruout the plant announcing that the union would conduct a strike vote among its membership "to determine whether they want to petition for a strike election under the requirements of the Smith-Connally act." The union has 100 minor grievances which the company has refused to hear, he said. The election was set for yesterday at the North av. hall and the election hours were from 12 noon until midnight to allow all three shifts of employes to vote. Union officers had no intention that the vote was to interfere with production at the plant, Stack said.

Plant "Shutdown" Announced

Stack said that after the 4,000 unionists on the day shift went to the hall instead of going to work in the plant, "some one" announced to the meeting that "management had closed the plant at noon." This might account for the 2,000 absentees on the second shift, which began at 3:30 p. m., he said.

Since early January, shortly after the national labor relations board reversed its ruling and allowed foremen to organize, the management at the Buick plant has hardened its treatment of the CIO union, Stack charged. The company has maintained that foremen are part of its supervisory force and not eligible for union membership.

Williams denied Stack's charges. "There has been no change in the manner of the company's dealings with the union," he said.

HEAD OF Y.M.C.A. COLLEGE OUSTED; DENY RACE ISSUE

Dr. Edward J. Sparling, president of the Central Y. M. C. A. college of Chicago, 19 S. La Salle st., for the last eight years, was ousted yesterday by the college board of directors in a controversy which the board laid to his "lack of administrative coöperation." Dr. Sparling accused the college managers of fostering racial discrimination.

The board announced that it had "accepted" the president's resignation, but Dr. Sparling said last night he had not resigned.

William P. Wiseman, chairman of the board, said the "policies and practices of the college over a period of 50 years" refuted Dr. Sparling's statement that the board had "restrained his academic freedom of action in regard to race, color, and creed." Dr. Sparling recently became associated with a group which is planning to establish a new college known as the Thomas Jefferson college of Chicago.

FATHER IN 1-A SHOOTS 2 SONS AND KILLS SELF

East Peoria, Ill., April 16 (AP)—Officer Byron Oesch of the East Peoria police force said tonight Ray Hudson, 29, a war worker recently classified 1-A and divorced two months ago, today shot and fatally wounded his two sons, Raymond Jr., 6, and Richard, 3, and then committed suicide.

Oesch said Hudson shot both boys and himself at the home of their maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Messer, of 1037 E. Washington st., East Peoria.

The boys had come recently from their mother's new home at Oak Lawn, Ill., so their father could visit with them before he went into service, the policeman said. The mother has remarried and is now Mrs. Robert Johnson, Oesch added.

A long distance telephone call from the children's mother in Oak Lawn to her new mother-in-law, Mrs. Elsie Johnson, of Peoria, failed to prevent the shooting, Oesch said. Hudson had telephoned his former wife, Mrs. Johnson told police, and told her he was going to shoot himself and the children. She called her mother-in-law who summoned police, but they arrived after the shooting.

FUND APPROVED FOR CAPITOL AS LINCOLN SHRINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 16—The state budgetary commission today approved the post-war expenditure of $1,268,000 to purchase the old state capitol here and restore it as an Abraham Lincoln memorial. Gov. Green indorsed the project, which will be submitted to the legislature as part of the state's post-war budget.

Of the total, $600,000 is to go to Sangamon county for the old capitol, now the county courthouse, and the public square. C. Herrick Hammond, state supervising architect, said the balance, $668,000, would be adequate to repair and restore the building to its Civil war condition.

A bill permitting downstate grade school districts to increase tax rates for educational purposes if approved by a referendum was passed by the house tonight and sent to the governor.

WINDS SWEEP CITY, BUT CAUSE LITTLE DAMAGE

Winds of 44 miles per hour velocity swept thru Chicago yesterday, banged a few signs, but did virtually no property damage. Stronger winds, sometimes ranging up to 60 miles, hit distant suburban areas.

Forecaster E. S. Hanlon said that winds will be almost as strong today, reaching perhaps 35 to 40 mile velocity. He said the wind marked the eastern fringe of a storm moving into Minnesota.

Dino De Servi, 30, of 1919 Foster st., Evanston, suffered fractures of both legs when a pile of lumber was blown off the truck on which he was a helper, in McCormick blvd. near Dodge av. He was buried beneath the lumber. Electric power was cut off and trees were blown down by severe winds, which swept between New Lenox and Manhattan, six and 10 miles west, respectively, of Joliet in Will county.

STOCKS CLIMB ON CONFIDENCE IN PRESIDENT

Average Gains 1.1, Widest Since 1941

New York, April 16 (AP)—The stock market today voted approval of the new President by making one of the broadest advances in more than three years during which sales were largest in 10 months.

Gains ran to more than three points for pivotal rails and industrials. New highs, particularly in the utility group, were numerous and blocks of low quoted power issues ranged from 1,000 to 40,000 shares after the opening. Volume of 770,000 shares in the first hour was largest for this period since May 10, 1943. The pace slowed thereafter and some top prices were trimmed before the close. Turnover of 2½ million shares, a peak since June 16, compared with 1,800,000 Friday.

Confidence Swells Buying

Brokers attributed the heavy accumulation of buying orders over the two day recess to the belief the Truman administration would carry out the war and peace program successfully and that an era of prosperity would follow victory. Pressure of idle investment funds and low money rates were factors.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 1.1 at 63.5, a high since Sept. 4, 1937, and the widest move since Dec. 30, 1941. The industrial, rail, and utility averages also were at tops since 1937. Of 990 issues traded, 779 were up, 84 down, and 127 unchanged.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER

Prices were higher in turnover of 64,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of 105 issues traded, 80 rose and only 11 declined. Active stocks gaining fractions included Chicago corporation common, Central and South West Utilities, Libby McNeill, Commonwealth Edison, and Middle West corporation, which rose ½ to a 1945 peak of 14⅛.

BOND MARKET ADVANCES

New York, April 16 (AP)—Secondary rails led the bond market higher today. Investment rated corporates shared in the advance to a lesser degree. Sales of $12,080,000, largest in about a month, compared with $8,960,000 Friday.

MILLS' BUYING PUSHES WHEAT FUTURES HIGHER

Large purchases of wheat futures by mills and intimations that government agencies would purchase all the flour mills would offer pushed prices higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. July advanced 2½ cents a bushel to $1.66½ at one time. Closing trades were ⅝ to 1⅝ cents higher.

Rye was up 2⅞ at one time, but eased in the late trading and closed ½ to 2½ higher. Corn closed ½ to ⅞ higher, oats ¼ lower to ½ higher, and barley ⅛ to ¾ lower.

Trading in rye was less active, but a professional trader bought deferred deliveries. May oats were under pressure in sympathy with a decline of 1 to 3 cents on the cash market.

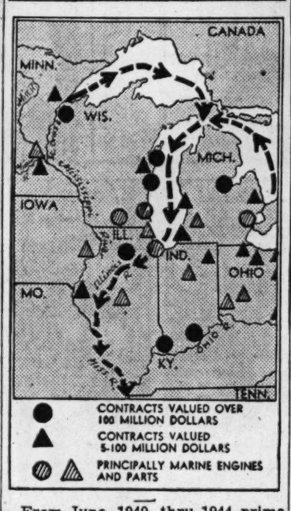
Midwest Shipbuilding



From June, 1940, thru 1944 prime contracts placed for ships in the midwest exceeded 2 billion 200 million dollars, 8.4 per cent of the country's total, figures released yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago showed.

Contracts awarded in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district included orders for ships, marine engines, and propulsion equipment. The bulk of the contracts was placed in the Detroit, Rockford, Chicago, La Salle, Saginaw-Bay City, Milwaukee, and Manitowoc-Sheboygan industrial areas.

Since June, 1940 about 20 million dollars have been spent for new shipbuilding facilities in the district. More than half of this expenditure was for equipment and the remainder for new structures. Shipbuilding employment was 7 per cent of the country's total.

HIGHER COSTS CUT GREYHOUND PROFIT FOR 1944

Operating revenues of Greyhound corporation rose 5.2 per cent last year to a record $156,587,879, but net income was slightly lower because of increased operating expenses, higher taxes, and a $659,319 increase in the provision for extraordinary post-war expense, C. E. Wickman, president, said yesterday.

Consolidated net income applicable to Greyhound stock in 1944 was $10,683,860, or $3.67 a share, compared with $10,762,469, or $3.80 a share on a smaller number of shares outstanding in 1943. Operating expenses per bus mile rose from 21.6 cents in 1939 to 28.5 cents in 1944. Operating taxes in the same period rose four mills a mile. Greyhound's total tax bill rose to $53,752,835 from $51,628,634 in 1943.

Wickman said passenger traffic will fall after the war, but the drop "will be less precipitous than might be generally expected." Demobilization will take a long time, millions of transplanted war workers will return home, and many people for the first time are travel conscious.

Borden Buys W. F. Straub Pharmaceutical Division

The pharmaceutical division of W. F. Straub & Co., has been acquired by the Borden company, Theodore G. Montague, Borden president, said yesterday. The Straub unit will be known as Straub Laboratories division of Borden and will be part of the company's special products division. W. F. Straub & Co. will continue its sale of food and soap specialties to food stores and institutional and industrial outlets under Walter F. Straub, president.

War Communications Output to Top 10 Billion

Production of communications equipment for war will top the 10 billion dollar mark this week, the Radio Manufacturers association said yesterday. It said the industry's output each month surpasses the total production of 1939 and that predictions in Washington, D. C., are that the industry will convert only about 20 per cent to civilian production after victory in Europe.

MIDWEST ARMS OUTPUT NEARS 5 BILLION MARK

Jap War Will Take Much of Capacity

Weapons and equipment valued at 4 billion 700 million dollars have been produced by contractors in the eight state Chicago ordnance district since the war program began, Col. John Slezak, district chief, said yesterday.

Speaking before the Western Railway club in the Hotel Sherman, he predicted that altho after the defeat of Germany many changes would be made in the production program, the war with Japan would continue to absorb a large part of American productive capacity.

Heavy Losses Predicted

"Altho Jap equipment generally is inferior to that of the allies, the Japanese army as a whole is well equipped," Slezak said. "It will require a great deal of effort to defeat this closely knit, fanatically stubborn foe, and under the best of circumstances our losses will be heavy."

One reason for the critical production situation is the principle of expending material to save lives, Slezak said. He explained that beginning with the Normandy invasion American forces consistently have fired 10 to 20 times as much ammunition as the enemy.

Top February Output

Earlier he said that during March contractors in the district exceeded February production of war materials more than 17 per cent. Output was $164,837,363 against $140,241,274. District ammunition production reached a record peak of $50,181,455 in March and tank-automotive total was $87,357,056, artillery $17,169,216, and small arms $10,129,636.

Slezak said Chicago district contractors are producing a fifth of all the ordnance material made by private industry and that the district leads the 12 others in production of ammunition and artillery items, and is second in production of tank-automotive equipment and small arms.

STRIVE TO AVOID OLD MONETARY ERRORS—AYRES

Bankers urging that the Bretton Woods proposals be administered thru one institution rather than a separate bank and fund are seeking to prevent disastrous economic errors made after the last war, Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, said yesterday.

They are asking that the lending procedure of a single institution be regulated so its loans made to aid countries in stabilizing their currencies would be well safeguarded, as will be its loans for reconstruction and development, Ayres explained in his monthly review of business conditions.

"One error was that after the first World war we financed an export boom while this country was still short of goods," he said.

"Our other economic error was that we spent, and lost, billions of dollars in supporting weak foreign exchanges of nations that had not yet made serious efforts to put their economic affairs in order following the war."

Rush, Delaware Corner Purchased for $84,000

The southeast corner of Rush st. and Delaware pl., 100 by 150 feet, was bought for $84,000 yesterday by the Rush-Delaware Building corporation from Louis R. Wasey and the Erwin estate thru Sherwood Steele, of Ross, Browne & Fleming, sole broker. Kamfner & Halligan, attorney for the buyer, said a new building is planned for after the war.

Consumer Aid Is A. & P. Stand in Trust Trial

Danville, Ill., April 16 (AP)—The New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company was accused by the government in court today of conspiring to gain a monopoly, but was defended by its attorneys as a "pioneer" which "passes its efficiency along to the consumer."

Statements to Judge Walter C. Lindley in federal District court opened the government's big anti-trust suit against the New York A. and P. and 28 officers and subsidiaries.

Charges Manipulative Power

Horace Flurry, special government prosecutor, alleged the "A. and P. group," because of integration of subsidiaries, "is in a position to sell food more cheaply than any competitor not equally integrated." He said the A. and P. could "put pressure on its vast system at will" to lower food prices in one area and drive out competitors. Flurry also accused the chain of bringing "pressure on individual manufacturers" by threats of withdrawing its business.

He said Business Organizations, Inc., headed by Carl Byoir, handled public relations for the firm and organized "false front consumer and housewife organizations, secretly used as propaganda sources intended to bring favorable sentiment to the A. and P. and hide the real practices of the system."

Maintains Policy for Consumer

W. M. Acton of Danville, a defense counsel, countered with a challenge to the government "to show any policy in the A. and P. that has not passed its saving along to the consumer. The A. and P. passed its efficiency on to the consumer. The government is trying to destroy its efficiency."

Acton said courts have held that "you can sell at any price you please—even give merchandise away—if it is not for the sole purpose of eliminating competition." He declared the A. and P. had "never done business with the intent of eliminating competition."

As the suit opened, Judge Lindley denied a defense motion to quash what defense said was between 250,000 and 275,000 exhibits in addition to 12,000 already listed.

CATTLE PRICES WEAKEN, ALTHO RECEIPTS FALL

Farmers yesterday sent about 25 per cent fewer meat animals to market than on Monday of last week. Twenty of the biggest stock yards received 202,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep, compared with 271,000 a week earlier and 294,000 the same day last year.

Reports that packers' costs of most classes of cattle are above the maximum monthly average drove costs permitted by the OPA, brought a bear raid on the Chicago market despite the slump in supplies. The $17.85 top equaled the 1945 peak, but most other steers ruled weak to 25 cents lower.

Plainer classes of cattle were hardest hit on the break which packers said was necessary as protection against OPA charges of paying too much to farmers.

NEW EXECUTIVE POST CREATED BY GOLDBLATT

President Is Made Board Chairman

Directors of Goldblatt Brothers yesterday enlarged the company's executive staff to include a chairman of the board and elevated Maurice Goldblatt from the presidency to the new position. The action followed a stockholders' meeting at which all directors were reelected.

Joel Goldblatt

Joel Goldblatt, who returned to the company recently following an honorable discharge from the army, was elected president. Louis Goldblatt, also honorably discharged from the army, was elected executive vice president and secretary-treasurer, succeeding Nathan Goldblatt, who died last November. All other officers were reëlected.

Plan Expansion Program

Joel Goldblatt said the management was planning physical improvements in many of the stores, and had in mind an extensive expansion program. The period immediately ahead will "test the ability and ingenuity" of the company's staff, he said.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, bowling and billiard manufacturing business, President R. F. Bensinger reported prospects for both foreign and domestic business after the war were favorable.

"During a comparatively short time we have seen a fast growing interest in billiards and bowling in Mexico and South America, a trend which should reflect an increase in our sales in these countries in the immediate post-war period," he said. "In anticipation of these new potential markets, we are constructing a new factory in Mexico City, and land has been purchased in Rio de Janeiro for the purpose of constructing suitable manufacturing facilities to serve that territory.

Domestic Market Growing

"With respect to our regular commercial business, reports from the field indicate that the potential market for bowling alleys and billiard table sales in this country is larger than ever. Hundreds of tentative sites have been selected for new installations, and many of our customers already have made plans for extensive modernization programs."

Bensinger also said the company faced no serious reconversion problem, and intended to make dividend payments at regular intervals.

In Detroit, George T. Christopher, president of the Packard Motor Car company, told stockholders plant efficiency increased more than 11 per cent since hearings last month by the senate war investigating committee. Evidence, which included testimony as to loafing and union ceilings on individual output, "has had a sobering effect on union leadership," he said. Industry hopes to persuade the committee to return to Detroit, he added.

Blame OPA for Illegal Sales; Beef, Pork Stock at April Low

Gives 'Comfort, Aid'

Cattle feeders and packers testified at a congressional investigation in Chicago yesterday that the office of price administration is responsible for the meat shortage and has given assistance to the black market by putting unnecessary restrictions on legitimate business.

A Democratic member of the committee, Rep. Stephen Pace [Ga.] interrupted one witness to say: "I know that the OPA is giving comfort and aid to the black market. If the OPA maintains ceilings under which it admits the packers cannot operate, it forces them either to go out of business or take steps to protect themselves."

Feeding Cut 70 Per Cent

Jones said it costs him 28 cents to put a pound of gain on his feed cattle, but he gets only 16 or 17 cents for it in the market.

Robert Greiser, head of the cattle department of the Chicago Producers Commission association, said a recent survey of 9,000 feeders in nine midwest states showed a 14 per cent reduction from a year ago in the number of cattle on feed, contrary to a government estimate of an 8 per cent increase.

O. E. Jones, vice president of Swift & Co., testified there was a decrease of 483 million pounds in meat slaughtered in February, 1945, compared with February, 1944. He said the shortage is the result of greatly increased buying power and reduced supplies.

Members of the Chicago Small Packers' association, a group of non-processing packers who buy 25 per cent of the cattle in the Chicago market and handle only fresh meat, are "losing money steadily," their representative, Isidore Vise, testified.

Chairman Offers Four Plans

Rep. Clinton P. Anderson [D., N. M.] is chairman of the investigating committee, which will hear further testimony today. Other members are Representatives Clemens [D., Ky.]; Andresen [R., Minn.]; Herter [R., Mass.]; Holmes [R., Wash.], and Gorski [D., Ill.].

Rep. Anderson read four committee suggestions for controling the black market and increasing meat supplies for civilians: 1. The war food administration should serve notice that it intends to re-examine all slaughter permits for a definite accounting of where the meat is going; 2. Federal inspection should be rapidly extended to virtually all slaughterers; 3. The United States military and war services should adjust their specifications of meat quotas on a realistic basis in keeping with the existing meat supply; 4. Government set aside quotas should be extended to many additional plants with the expansion of federal inspection.

Drop 58 Pct. from '44

Total stocks of beef, pork, lamb, and mutton in cold storage on April 1 were lowest on record for that date, the war food administration said yesterday. At 519,929,000 pounds stocks were 4 per cent below March 1 and 58 per cent below April 1, 1944.

Stocks of pork declined to a low since December, 1942, and of lard to a low since December, 1937. At 151,990,000 pounds stocks of beef were largest since September, but little more than half April, 1944, holdings. Lamb and mutton in cold storage totaled 15,254,000 pounds, a low since September.

Of pork holdings the government owned nearly one-fourth, or 77,356,000 pounds of frozen and cured pork. Of total lard holdings of 50,579,000 pounds 21,189,000 was held by the Dairy Products Marketing association, WFA, army, navy and other government agencies.

Less Butter and Poultry

Stocks of butter, cheese, and poultry declined substantially from both a month and a year earlier. Butter stocks were down to 29,639,000 pounds from 31,062,000 March 1 and 82,118,000 April 1, 1944. Of this quantity the government held almost half, or 12,570,000 pounds. Of 98,922,000 pounds of cheese, the government held 38,666,000.

Government holdings of eggs included 87,649,000 pounds of dried of total stocks of 99,881,000; 703,000 cases of shell of total stocks of 1,777,000, and 25,937,000 pounds of frozen of total stocks of 115,344,000.

The cold storage holdings of various commodities on April 1, compared with a month ago and a year ago, in thousands of pounds:

IGOE REFUSES RULING ON CITY TRANSIT OFFER

'Fairness' Is Passed to ICC and SEC

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Judge Michael L. Igoe of federal District court made it clear at a hearing yesterday that he would not take personal responsibility for saying that the city's offer to buy the surface lines for 87 million dollars is fair.

His remarks were made after two expert witnesses for the city had testified for four days to prove that the price, based solely on the earnings of the two companies, was equitable. These witnesses were Peter J. Boesen of the city's traction engineering staff and George E. Goldthwaite of New York.

Holds City's Case Improved

Judge Igoe said that, in view of many other valuations made in the past, all much above 87 millions, he could not "on such evidence" make a finding of fairness now. He recalled that three years ago a paper valuation of 179 millions had been set upon the same properties, in a unification plan rejected by the Illinois commerce commission, and that the city had not objected to the figure.

"The city has made out a prima facie case only," he said. "The matter will be passed on to the Illinois commerce commission and the securities and exchange commission for reports to the court."

Mayor Kelly's plan is to have the city transfer ownership of the two companies to a metropolitan transit district; this has the support of Gov. Green. Such a district would have no taxing power, but would be

COLLEGE INVESTMENTS—1

Declining bond yields on the one hand and possibilities of further commodity price inflation on the other have created serious investment problems for universities having large endowments, similar to the quandary faced by millions of individual investors. In response to these conditions, there has been a decided shift on the part of many of the larger colleges from bonds and mortgages to stocks.

This change in investment policy was more pronounced in the years prior to 1942 than it has been since, because of the universities' subsequent participation in the government's vast war financing thru purchase of treasury bond issues.

Previously large additions of common stocks were made to many university portfolios. The choice, it appears, was not only dictated by requirements for larger income than that obtainable from the same sums invested in top grade bonds, but was influenced by the widely held view that an ownership interest, such as common stocks represent, provides a measure of protection against loss of purchasing power of money.

In recent years, the rise in market prices of older bonds has provided an offset to the advance in many commodity prices and other costs, but there are manifest limitations on such adjustments because of fixed interest rates and maturity or redemption values of bonds.

The report of the controler of the University of Chicago for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1944, called attention to a decline in the university's endowment income from a peak of 6.2 per cent of the average book value of investments in 1929-1930 to a low of 4 per cent in the 1939 fiscal year, with a recovery to 4.32 per cent in 1944. The drop of nearly one-third in the rate of return has an effect similar to a shrinkage in the principal, if such a depreciation had occurred and the percentage investment yield had remained constant.

In turning to common stocks for higher yield, it is recognized that universities assume more investment risks, partly because of the junior position which such equities occupy with reference to the claims of creditors and holders of preferred stocks, if any. Means whereby it is sought to limit and distribute such risks will be discussed in later articles of this series.

SITDOWN ONLY FLY IN MAYOR'S COUNCIL HONEY

Waller Clings to His Republican Halo

Mayor Kelly, who completed 12 successive years in office last Friday, the longest unbroken term of any mayor in the city's history, was praised for his accomplishments yesterday by a rising vote of all but one of the aldermen in the council chamber.

Ald. Waller [R., 43d] remained seated after he gave notice to the council that the proposed vote would be an embarrassment to him.

Bowler Leads Acclaim

The resolution of praise was presented by Ald. Bowler [25th]. It mentioned that when Mayor Kelly took office "the city was under a large bonded debt," "property values had fallen," "employes were unpaid," and "essential services were lacking." Now, after 12 years, the "blot of gangsterism" has been erased, strides have been made in educational facilities, parks have been improved, and many post-war plans have been made.

"All this work was spearheaded by Mayor Kelly," Ald. Bowler said. The resolution described the start of the mayor's 13th year as a "great civic milestone."

Ald. Waller jumped to his feet before the resolution was seconded.

"A careful analysis of this should be made," he said. "It would not be proper for me, a Republican who may be coming up for reëlection, to vote on this. I ask to be excused from voting—but I want to congratulate you just the same," he said to the mayor, who thanked him.

When the rising vote was taken, Ald. Waller sat alone. As the vote was finished and the aldermen were reseated, another Republican council member, Ald. Bohling [7th], entered the council room. He said he had been delayed in the hall.

Referendum Ordinance Enacted

An ordinance providing for a referendum in conjunction with the judicial election June 4 on the proposed issuance of 26 million dollars worth of bonds for airport improvements and other purposes was enacted by the council.

The bonds, if authorized, will bear interest of 1½ per cent, will be callable at any time, and will begin maturing in 1947. They will include 15 million dollars for airport purposes, 5 million dollars for slum clearance, 2 million dollars for the erection of new police and fire stations, 1½ million dollars for buying new refuse collection equipment, plus half a million dollars for garages for this equipment, and 2 million dollars for new playgrounds and playground improvements.

Jimmy Walker a Guest

James [Jimmy] Walker, former mayor of New York, was spotted in the gallery and invited by Mayor Kelly to sit with him on the rostrum. "I came in to get a view from the bleachers," Walker said. "Chicago is such a nice place that I always come here on the slightest excuse, and now I'm in the city on legal business. It must be a great thing to be a mayor of a great city like Chicago; and it's also good to be an ex-mayor."

A resolution asking Gov. Green and the Illinois legislature to establish a four year general course college of the University of Illinois in Chicago was adopted on the motion of Ald. Moss [5th]. The resolution urged that Chicago Normal college and junior college facilities be used.

Old Tunnel to Be Closed

The council authorized Public Works Commissioner Hewitt to spend $6,000 to fill in and close the entrance to the old street car tunnel on La Salle st. at Randolph st. Ald. Bowler offered the resolution.

Motions by Ald. Kells [28th] asking the park district to name the Outer Dr. bridge for Franklin D. Roosevelt and authorizing Mayor Kelly to appoint a committee to plan a war memorial for the service men were passed. A motion by Ald. Sain [27th] to instruct the civil service commission to hold no more examinations until six months after the war was referred to committee on the suggestion of Aldermen Crowe [42d] and Crowley [41st], who said veterans who have passed various age limits should be permitted to take examinations when they return.

TVA DIRECTOR FIXES '44 NET AT 14 MILLIONS

The Tennessee valley authority earned 14 million dollars net from power sales thru 1944 and this year expects to earn 3 million dollars more than that, James P. Pope, director of that federally operated flood control project reported yesterday to members of the City club in the La Salle hotel.

Pope, former United States senator from Utah, struck back at recent charges by the Midwest Manufacturers' association which termed the TVA "an unwarranted intrusion of the federal government in the affairs of state and local governments."

He said that, if TVA had in any way infringed upon states' rights, the fact would have been noted by the governors of seven bordering states in whose opinions, as shown by a recent survey, the development was unanimously held to offer no threat to state sovereignty.
